Fiery Attacks Made on House Floor.

Washington, D. C., July 2.—[Special.]—The most scorching rebuke given a congressman in many years was written into the record today by the house when resentment against John L. Lewis and the violence attending his organizing activities reached the explosive point.

The victim of the reprimand was Representative Maury Maverick, loud and pugnacious Texas Democrat, who has espoused the C. I. O. cause and only yesterday boasted that he was permitting his congressional frank to be used to send C. I. O. propaganda through the mails.

Pointedly shunned by his colleagues, with the exception of a few radicals, Maverick left the floor a flushed and humiliated man. He had been held up to ridicule in such a manner as few veterans could recall and the house in almost unprecedented fashion had supported the withering criticism of him voiced by Representative Eugene E. Cox [D., Ga.].

Cox Rises to Reply.

In a day occupied solely by heated debate about the crucial labor situation, Maverick had criticized Cox as being "unfair" to Lewis. Late in the afternoon the tall Georgian, known for his oratorical abilities, rose in his seat.

"Mr. Speaker," said Cox, "I take no particular exception to what the gentleman from Texas, Mr. Maverick, had to say about me. I want to think better than well of the gentleman. However, it would be difficult for me to esteem him as highly as he might wish.

"I do want to believe, Mr. Speaker, that the gentleman loves his government and would not willingly lend himself as an instrument to its overthrow. I want to believe that the gentleman feels as Andrew Jackson felt when he said, 'Our federal Union, it must be preserved,' and as Daniel Webster felt in his Bunker Hill address when he said, 'Our country, our whole country, and nothing but our country.'

Members Roar Approval.

"Then I want him to join with me in asking the question, 'Where is the coward or scoundrel who would not fight for such a beautiful land?'"

The members roared their approval. Maverick twisted in his seat, reddening.

"Therefore, Mr. Speaker," continued Cox, "I must believe that the gentleman is never serious, that he is more interested in provoking amusement by his extravagance and buffoonery than in the molding of sound public opinion!"

Maverick jumped to his feet and shouted a demand that "the words be taken down." This means that the clerk is ordered to repeat the language just as used, as shown by the official reporter's account. Maverick then moved that Cox's words be stricken from the record.

Maverick's Motion Loses.

A member of the majority party is usually accorded this privilege when it is asked. But to Maverick's consternation his own "aye" was the only affirmative vote to be heard in the breathless chamber, while a thunderous chorus of "noes" rejected his motion.

Maverick pleaded with Speaker William B. Bankhead to declare that Cox's words had been contrary to the rules of the house. The speaker, in a cold voice, remarked that the house had determined the issue.

Proceeding, Cox said:

"I want to think that the gentleman believes in some form of government and that he has not become wholly Russianized and that John L. Lewis is not in fact the gentleman's candidate for President in 1940."

Again Maverick made a furious protest against the word "Russianized" and Cox said he would withdraw the term.

Asks Pointed Questions.

Cox then proceeded to put a number of questions to the fuming Maverick. Among them were the following:

"Is the gentleman collaborating with Mr. Lewis in the shaping of his official conduct here in this house?

"Is he in sympathy with the C. I. O. and its efforts to terrorize industry?

"Does he favor the forcible closing of industrial plants, the denial of ingress to owners, the denial of food to people who insist upon their con-

FUEL GONE, NO LAND NEAR, SAYS RADIO OF PLANE

HONOLULU, July 2.—(AP)—Amelia Earhart and her navigator, Capt. Fred Noonan, were believed to have been forced down in the Pacific ocean near Howland Island today when their fuel gave out on a flight of 2,570 miles from Lea, New Guinea, the longest and most perilous hop of Miss Earhart's attempt to fly around the world.

A radio message from them at 2:12 p. m. [Chicago daylight time], saying they had only a half hour's supply of fuel, and that no land was in sight, was believed to indicate they had overshot the tiny coral island, at which they were due between 2 and 4 p. m.

Washington Orders Aid.

The coast guard cutter Itasca, stationed at Howland Island, immediately prepared to search for the flyers northwest of the island. Late tonight a navy flying boat hopped off to join the Itasca.

Coast guard headquarters in Washington ordered its Honolulu division to lend all possible aid and to send the cutter Roger Taney from here to help the Itasca search, and the chief of naval operations, Admiral William D. Leahy, ordered the naval station here to assist. He gave the commandant here leave to send fast destroyers and planes across the 1,800 miles to Howland Island. The commandant said fair weather was predicted for four days in the Howland area.

An hour before the last radio message Miss Earhart reported the flyers were searching for the island, which she believed was not more than 100 miles away.

Previous reports indicated fairly strong headwinds, which apparently increased gasoline consumption. Officers of the Itasca estimated the plane could not remain aloft after 6:30 p. m.

Carries Emergency Equipment.

When the plane left Miami, Fla., June 1, starting the world girdling flight, it carried a rubber lifeboat and life belts for use if the craft were forced down at sea. The tanks of the land plane were equipped to be emptied quickly, serving to keep it afloat.

How long the Lockheed Electra low wing monoplane with its two motors could stay above the waves with the two flyers was a matter of conjecture.

The weather at Howland Island was reported partly cloudy, with visibility twenty miles. The coral island, two miles long and only a few feet above sea level, presented a small target for the plane flying the great expanse of Pacific ocean, dotted sparsely with other small atolls.

Husband and Wife Anxious.

At Oakland, Cal., Miss Earhart's husband, Publisher George Palmer Putnam, was gravely concerned as he awaited word of the fate of his wife. Putnam received messages from the coast guard while waiting at an airport.

Mrs. Noonan, a bride last March, predicted that the Itasca would find Miss Earhart and Noonan. The navigator attended public schools in Chicago.

This trip, Miss Earhart's second attempt to fly 27,000 miles around the world just for fun, started in Oakland May 21. From there she flew across the continent to Miami. Thence she hopped to Porto Rico, down the coast to Brazil, over the Atlantic to Africa, across Africa to India, Australia and then New Guinea.

Climax of Career.

Her route followed the equator as closely as possible. It was a reversal of her original attempt, which ended March 20 in Honolulu when the landing gear of her big twin-motored monoplane gave way on an intended takeoff for Howland Island.

Miss Earhart's adventure was undertaken as a climax to a career which already has embraced two trans-Atlantic flights, one solo, and a solo flight from Honolulu to Oakland.

32 Hurt in Evanston Train Wreck

CHORUS—"STAY AWAY FROM ME!"

Two Limited Sections Crash on Holiday Run

Thirty-two persons incurred injuries requiring hospital treatment last night when the second section of the Ashland Limited train of the Chicago and North Western railway crashed into the rear of the first section at the Davis street station in Evanston. Eighty-six others were cut and bruised and were given first aid on the scene.

Fourteen of those taken to the hospitals were kept overnight, and only two, a cook and a chef on the diner of the second section, suffering from burns, were the only ones whose injuries were considered serious.

The two sections of the Ashland Limited, bound for Ashland, Wis., were filled almost to capacity, with most of the passengers looking forward to a week end holiday in the north woods. The first section left the North Western station in Chicago at 7 p. m., and the second section followed almost immediately. A stop was scheduled at the Davis street station to pick up passengers.

Stop for Passengers.

The first train stopped at 7:20, and picked up more than a dozen passengers, among them Justice of the Peace James Barber of Evanston, who at the last minute had decided not to drive up north because of his fear of highway accidents. As the first section stood at the station, the automatic signals were set against the oncoming section. According to B. E. Terpning, general superintendent of the North Western, the signals were in proper working order.

Suddenly, despite the block signals, the second section appeared around the long, gradual curve that approaches the Davis street station. It seemed evident, according to Superintendent Terpning, that the engineer, William Schermerhorn of Milwaukee, ignored the signal. He saw the rear of the train ahead and jammed on his airbrakes.

Passengers Jolted.

With brakes screeching, the second section suddenly slackened its speed, jolting its passengers. The brakes were insufficient to stop the heavy train completely, and it slid at a speed of 7 or 8 miles per hour into the rear lounge car of the train ahead, partly crushing it. Despite the slow rate of the train, the crash was terrific. Screams of women mingled with the breaking of windows. The colliding train received the worse jolt, and most of the injured were in that train.

The crash was heard at the nearby Evanston police station, and Desk Sergt. William A. Johnson and Operator Robert R. Nethery quickly radioed for help, bringing 20 ambulances and 45 doctors to the scene. Twenty-eight of the more seriously hurt were taken to St. Francis' hospital, and four to the Evanston hospital.

Following is a list of injured pas-

Strikers Stop Mail, All Deliveries.

The Labor Front

Among the developments in the labor situation yesterday were:

1. Indication that Youngstown Sheet and Tube company will reopen early next week in Indiana Harbor under National Guard protection is seen in company's letters to its employes urging them to demand protection in their jobs. It is expected Indiana troops will be called if strike pickets do not abandon their picket lines. Details on page 3.

2. C. I. O. claims majority of Inland Steel company workers at hearing by national labor relations board hearing in Chicago. Economist for labor board testifies that Senator Wagner and others didn't mean what Inland Steel attorneys think they meant when they said in the senate that signed contracts between employers and employes were not obligatory under the then proposed Wagner act. Details on page 3.

3. Senatorial committee views newsreel of Memorial day rioting in Chicago and is told by its maker that it does not include mob's first attack on police. In Chicago police censors ban film and Corporation Counsel Hodes demands that public showings of the film include a still picture of the mob's attack. Details on page 2.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 2.—[Special.]—Twenty-five thousand truck drivers shut off their engines this afternoon for a "holiday" that threatens three million persons in Philadelphia with a food shortage. The strike was called by American Federation of Labor officials who charged John L. Lewis' radical C. I. O. was attempting to "muscle" into their territory.

Determined that no truck freight shall be carried within Philadelphia and surrounding towns, that none shall be shipped out and none permitted to enter, the striking drivers aimed their first violence against the United States mails.

Mail Trucks Turned Back.

Mail trucks in downtown Philadelphia and in the west and north suburbs were halted. The drivers were threatened with beatings. Then the trucks were turned back to the post-offices where drivers awaited the latest challenge of strike leaders to the Roosevelt administration.

With suspension of food, bread, milk and mail deliveries, newspapers in Philadelphia and Camden, N. J., did not attempt to send out late evening editions nor first morning editions. Publishers later announced jointly they would suspend publication until the holiday is ended. They did not want to endanger the lives of employés.

Immediately following announcement of the strike Mayor S. Davis Wilson ordered police protection withdrawn from all trucks except those servicing hospitals and public institutions. He hoped his action would bring about such a serious situation that public opinion would force strike leaders to send the truckmen back to work.

Sign with C. I. O.

Declaration of the strike was precipitated by the Freihofer Baking company, which signed a contract with the C. I. O. a few days ago when its contract with the A. F. of L. union expired. The company said 750 drivers had joined the C. I. O., which gave the radical organization a majority. Spokesmen for the teamsters' council declared 350 of its members had been forced by the company to sign C. I. O. cards.

Thus, in this strike, as in the recent steel strike, the only issue involved is the C. I. O. Threats had been made several weeks ago by Lewis' aids that they would organize truckmen in the Philadelphia-Camden district when they got ready to do so.

Election is Rejected.

Two hours after the strike was called the National Labor Relations board called officials of the baking company and leaders of their drivers together in an effort to obtain an agreement for an employés election

Victory in Irish Vote Assured for De Valera

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, July 2.—The new Irish constitution of sixty-three articles, giving a final twist to the British lion's tail and substituting a ceremonial Irish president in the place of a governor general formerly named by the British king, apparently received the approval of the Irish electorate in yesterday's plebiscite. That was the opinion of the political medicine men around the places where the votes were being laboriously counted today.

A survey of voting tendencies, as the ballots were being counted and sorted, also revealed, according to leaders of the Fianna Fail party, that the government of its leader, President Eamon de Valera, has been returned by a comfortable majority.

8 De Valera Candidates In.

Returns up until midnight showed fourteen candidates actually elected, including eight from the Fianna Fail party. Among them were Speaker Frank Fahy of the dail eireann [parliament], who was automatically elected. Also elected were four United Ireland party candidates, one independent, and one Labor candidate.

De Valera was elected in county Clare, with first preference votes numbering 14,012. In the election of 1933 De Valera got 18,585 first preference votes.

Much jubilation was occasioned in Dublin when the first candidate found to have been elected in northeast Dublin was Lord Mayor Alfred [Alfie] Byrne. Byrne is independent of all political parties.

Gen. Mulcahy Defeated.

In Dublin township Sean MacEntee, minister for finance in De Valera's government, was elected on first preference votes, with 10,024 votes out of a total of 37,773.

In the city of Cork the election of former President William T. Cosgrave, head of the united Ireland party, and Flinn [a member of De Valera's party] was accomplished on the first count.

One surprise was the defeat of Gen. Mulcahy, a minister in Cosgrave's former government, and the election of James Larkin, an Independent Labor leader, who, during the world war, was imprisoned at Sing Sing prison in New York. It is understood Larkin will not be allowed to take a seat in the dail, being an undischarged bankrupt. In that case Mulcahy will probably be awarded his seat.

Mrs. Walsh was defeated in Dublin township. In northwest Dublin Alfred Byrne, son of the lord mayor, was elected, as well as Sean T. O'Kelly, vice president of the executive council, the man standing next to De Valera in the organization of the government.

The first returns in the plebiscite on the proposed new constitution came from South Dublin. They were 32,464 for and 21,438 against.

Under the new constitution De Valera, "chieftain of the Irish race," may choose to become the ceremonial head of Eire, as the constitution designates the country, but the general belief is that he will decide to remain prime minister.

[De Valera, as head of the Irish government, now is officially known as president of the executive council and minister for external affairs.]

The new dail of 138 members will meet July 21, and probably will adjourn shortly afterward for a summer recess.

HOWLAND ISLAND DREARY, STRATEGIC DOT IN MID-PACIFIC

Washington, D. C., July 2.—(AP)—Howland Island, near which Amelia Earhart's plane was believed to have been forced down, is a 1½ mile long treeless sandpit, strategically located just north of the equator, on the direct air route between Hawaii and Australia. It is nearly 2,000 miles southwest of Honolulu.

Uninhabited until two years ago, it came into public notice when the commerce department took possession of it along with two other Pacific islets, Baker, 40 miles to the north, and Jarvis, more than 1,000 miles to the east.

For more than two years relays of Hawaiian schoolboys lived on each, making meteorological observations and maintaining title for the United States.

President Roosevelt, by an executive order in May last year, transferred jurisdiction to the interior department. Early this year a small public works allotment financed the construction of runways on Howland for a South Pacific air field.

A Mayo Doctor Finds Infantile Paralysis Germ

Los Angeles, Cal., July 2.—[Special.]—Isolation of the germ which causes infantile paralysis, a major step toward conquest of the dread disease, was announced at a secret session of doctors in Glendale tonight by Dr. Edward Carl Rosenow, professor of experimental bacteriology at the Mayo Foundation at Rochester, Minn.

Addressing 100 physicians, surgeons and medical research workers at Oakmont Country club, Dr. Rosenow said that his work with the spinal fluid taken from nurses who contracted the disease at the general hospital in 1934 enabled him to isolate the micro-organism. Bits of muscle and swabs from the nose assisted in his work, Dr. Rosenow said. Proof of isolation was obtained, he explained, when he injected the micro-organism into rabbits and later recovered it.

Must Develop Serum Next.

Asked what steps must be taken to fight the disease, now that isolation of the germ has been accomplished, Dr. Rosenow said that a serum similar to serums used to combat ravages of other contagious ailments must be developed. He said he had been successful in obtaining a composite vaccine which had proved favorable in preliminary tests.

Dr. Rosenow, who is 62 years old, formerly served on the faculties of the University of Chicago and the University of Minnesota medical school, read his paper which covered the results of many years' labor to isolate the germ and combat the disease.

Dr. Rosenow's efforts were begun while he was assistant professor of medicine at Rush Medical college in Chicago, and attracted attention at various times prior to the reading of his secret and official report tonight.

Practiced Medicine in Chicago.

Dr. Rosenow received his boyhood education at Alma, Wis., and served as practicing physician in Chicago for twelve years prior to his acceptance of a series of university posts. He came to Los Angeles during its last great poliomyelitis epidemic, which was in 1934, to study the disease under intimate conditions. At that time a number of physicians and more than 150 of the nurses in Los Angeles county hospital had contracted infantile paralysis because of lack of knowledge of proper protective steps. Dr. Rosenow conducted many of his latest experiments at the Los Angeles public hospital, assisted by Drs. E. T. Remmen and O. J. Sloan.

Find Woman Plane Crash Victim; Believed Chicagoan

Salt Lake City, Utah, July 2.—(AP)—The body of one of seven persons killed in an airplane crash last December was found at the mountainside wreck scene today, according to Frank Eastman, field manager for Western Air Express. The body tentatively has been identified as that of Mrs. John Wolfe of Chicago.

to determine whether the A. F. of L. or C. I. O. would represent employés in collective bargaining. The election plan was rejected.

The C. I. O. offered a conditional compromise, offering to meet and negotiate with Teamsters' Joint Council 43, the A. F. of L. ruling body, if the strike were called off pending the negotiations.

Dealers in perishable foods face a loss of more than 2 million dollars if stocks are not moved tomorrow. Anticipating the double holiday they arranged for one of the biggest movements of foodstuffs in history. Permission to divert a part of this stock to New York was refused by strike leaders, who would not let the drivers here formed an A. F. of L. local, was allowed to pass unmolested.

Food Supplies Needed.

Hotels and restaurants were alarmed tonight and feared that unless settlement of the strike was reached in the morning they would not have enough food to handle holiday crowds already arriving in the city. Milk and bread deliveries have been promised tomorrow to stores.

By early evening the "holiday" had begun to disrupt passenger trafic in the Philadelphia streets. Taxi drivers here form an A. F. of L. local, which voted not to go out on strike, but many drivers, fearful of reprisals, refused to accept fares. All cabs were withdrawn from the North Philadelphia station of the Pennsylvania railroad. Police guarded the central taxi stands of the city, but from outlying sections reports were received of cabs stopped and of passengers forced to alight.

Farmers Unmolested.

Farmers were permitted to bring their produce to the warehouses in their trucks under police protection.

Declaring the striking locals of the A. F. of L. were under contract with their employers, the mayor said:

"The question now confronting us is whether contracts are of any value or whether self-constituted labor leaders can take over the city and destroy our form of representative government."

Five newspapers in Philadelphia and two in Camden were affected by the strike, which leaders said they had promised would be spread to all surrounding territory in Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

STRIKE AT C. I. O. FOE

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 2.—[Special.]—A twelve year old case has been dug up by the government as a basis for tax liens of $76,040 filed here against Mayor Daniel J. Shields of Johnstown, who dared resist the rampant C. I. O. steel forces, and twelve other Johnstown residents.

Although a commissioner of internal revenue made an assessment against the thirteen men in 1935, the liens were not filed until this week, after the militant mayor had led a campaign against John L. Lewis' radical followers in the Johnstown steel strike.

"This looks to me like an attempt to get me into line or crucify me," the mayor said today in commenting on the tax case.

Earle's Ire Incurred.

Shields incurred the ire of Gov. George H. Earle of Pennsylvania when he opposed efforts of the C. I. O. to invade his city. Earle at one time shouted he would put Shields in jail "where he belongs," but the mayor continued with his ultimately successful "back to work" movement at the Bethlehem Steel corporation.

Suits similar to the one filed against Mayor Shields have been instituted against many other individuals who attracted the displeasure of the administration or its friends.

The case used as a vehicle for the present action dates back to 1925 when the old Emmerling brewery of Johnstown, which Shields and his co-defendants operated, was raided by prohibition agents, who confiscated 12,600 barrels of beer and 400 gallons of "distilled spirits."

Case Fought in Courts.

The liens on property of the thirteen men are for taxes of $76,040 levied on the illegally made beer and alcohol which was produced during the two prohibition years of 1924 and 1925.

Shields and others were indicted in 1925 for operating the brewery in defiance of prohibition laws. Several of his co-defendants pleaded guilty but Shields fought the case to the Supreme court. At his second trial he was fined $2,000, but President Hoover reduced the sum to $1,000, which Shields paid.

"They've been persecuting me for twelve years," the mayor said today, "but I'm one of those fellows you can't scare. Every election they drag out that old skeleton and rattle the bones, hoping to frighten me, but I just let them go ahead.

"Reviving this thing obviously is being done to please John L. Lewis. It's a joke; the biggest piece of horseplay I've seen in public life."

Called "Routine Procedure."

Washington, D. C., July 2.—[Special.]—Government officials today termed the $76,040 tax suit against Mayor Daniel J. Shields and his fellow townsfolk of Johnstown "merely a routine procedure."

"Filing of the suit at a time when Mayor Shields is on the outs with his governor is purely a coincidence," was the only comment to be obtained from a bureau of internal revenue spokesman.

The action was filed by William Driscoll, collector of internal revenue at Pittsburgh.

SENTENCED ON BAD CHECK CHARGE.

Edwin Kasper, 44 years old, 819 Washington street, Evanston, was sentenced to 25 days in the county jail yesterday after he pleaded guilty to a charge of passing bad checks before Judge James M. Corcoran of the Evanston Municipal court.

"Does he favor the stoppage of the United States mails, the denial of the authority of the courts, the resistance to peace officers, the use of dynamite in blowing up water mains, the forcing of thousands of people into the breadlines, and the shooting down of people who resist the appeal of the communists?

Calls Attack "Insult."

"Mr. Speaker, let the gentleman make serious answer to these questions, and his brethren and the country will know him as he is."

While the chamber resounded to the cheers of the members, Maverick took the floor.

"This is intended as an insult to me personally," he declared, "and I do not think it is necessary for a person who was in the world war—and I am not going to brag about that—to answer those question. But I answer these insults, all of them, by saying, 'No.' That is the answer.

"It is easy to laugh and chortle when some one propounds insulting questions. These insulting questions were for the direct purpose of being insulting. I am not going to offer to fight him because I have already had all the fights I want."

The Texan shouted that "people become overpious and they wrap themselves in the constitution and the flag."

Promises Some Questions.

"Who is it," he yelled, "who is always fighting the plans of the President of the United States? Why, it is men like the gentleman from Georgia, Mr. Cox. There are lots of men in the C. I. O. just as honorable, patriotic, and courageous as Mr. Cox. When I have time I am going to propound some questions to him, too."

"And the gentleman from Texas," Cox interrupted, "will get an honest answer which he seems unwilling to give to my questions."

"The gentleman from Georgia has been unnecessarily insulting," responded Maverick, "and if such practices are continued in this house, we will end up merely by having rows and fist fights before this thing is over. All this talk about violence is liable to bring that on."

The sharp debate which preceded the Cox-Maverick clash saw Representative Clare E. Hoffman [R., Mich.] pleading with Maverick for a "sane" view of the labor situation.

"The majority need never employ violence, intimidation, coercion," he said.

SURVEY SHOWS REDS ACTIVE IN LABOR DISORDER

Communists Blamed for Michigan Troubles.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., July 2.—[Special.]—A survey completed here tonight shows how truly Gov. Frank Murphy spoke earlier today when he charged that communists caused most of Michigan's labor disorders, and their activities led directly to establishment of volunteer vigilante groups throughout the state.

Men whose records were scanned ranged from minor leaders in John L. Lewis' radical Committee for Industrial Organization to vice presidents of the erratic but powerful affiliate, the United Automobile Workers of America. It was disclosed that avowed communists or men who are openly sympathetic to the Red brethren hold positions of trust and responsibility in both labor groups.

Murphy Censures Reds.

It was of this crew of labor leaders that the governor said in Lansing today:

"Communists, when they could, deliberately created disorders as in the Lansing labor holiday, the Consumers' Power company strike, and in some phases of the sitdowns.

"They not only sought disorders but they sought bloodshed. They wanted bloodshed and they tried to draw us into a fight.

"When I speak thus of communists I do not refer to the C. I. O. membership, which is in the rank and file, of American citizenship; but to communistic cliques."

Deploring the organization of volunteer strike breakers the governor said:

"The vigilante movement, I recognize, is natural under the conditions which have existed.

"But they can't last and won't last and are wrong. We should direct ourselves so that we do not go to extremes. As this critical situation passes, and it is doing so now, we can heal the wounds and harmonize differences."

Dozen Active in Locals.

A cursory examination of union records shows there are nearly a dozen Reds active in Detroit locals of the U. A. W. These men are particularly powerful in the west side local, No. 174, where the president and vice president are both avowed communists. It is the west side local which must lead the fight against Henry Ford in his River Rouge plants at Dearborn because the automobile factories are in the territory assigned to the local's organizers.

There is, for instance, Tom Perry, alias Parrot, and half a dozen other names. He has been a member of the communist party since 1932 and active in a dozen big strikes here and elsewhere. His first assistant is William McKie who is not a party member so far as is known, but has been attending communist party conventions and making speeches at communist meetings for years.

Another communistic labor leader here is Nat Ganley, alias Kaplan, from the Bowery of New York. He is a long time communist party member and now holds the post of recording secretary of Detroit local, No. 155, U. A. W.

The Reuther brothers all hold posts with the U. A. W., and while none of the trio is known as a communist party member, in their writings and speeches they have claimed soviet Russia as "our country."

On Executive Council.

Walter Reuther, eldest of the three, is a member of the executive council of the national U. A. W. in Detroit. Roy and Victor, two younger brothers, were most active in the General Motors sitdown strike at Flint. Roy's Red activities resulted in his recall from Flint today.

John Anderson, now an organizer for the U. A. W., was on the ballot as communist candidate for governor of Michigan in 1934. He is known for the inflammatory speeches made to strikers throughout the state.

William Weinstone, who has just been chosen as secretary of the U. A. W.'s renter's and consumer's league here to promote reduced living costs by mass pressure, is a member of the central committee of the communist party in New York and district organizer for the committee in Michigan. He is a speaker and rabble rouser for the U. A. W.

In addition to these minor characters, the U. A. W. has some extreme radicals in its highest posts. One of these is Wyndham Mortimer, first vice president, and another is Ed Hall, second vice president. With Maurice Sugar, general counsel for the union, they constitute the far left bloc among the national leaders.

This trio has been fighting constantly with Homer Martin, U. A. W. president, who is referred to privately among the more radical union circles as "that psalm singing sap-head." They also are constantly in conflict with Richard T. Frankensteen, member of the executive council who is regarded as the special protegé of John Lewis.

These Reds were absorbed by the U. A. W., according to a more conservative member of the national executive council, who agreed to discuss the point only when assured that his name would not be used, because they are known to be hard workers and experienced organizers.

Activities Embarrassing.

Now, however, their activities are very embarrassing to Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers of America, and other conservatives. The Reds, this man admitted, forever are stirring up dissatisfaction and trouble.

These radicals have given industrial chiefs their best weapon against the U. A. W. and the C. I. O. by constantly starting unauthorized strikes in plants where union contracts have been signed. The union has no defense to offer when the industrialists object to signing contracts because "the union is not a responsible organization," he said.

In some instances the Reds have been kicked out of unions by the workers themselves. One of the U. A. W. locals sent representatives to officials of the Motor Products company here asking the management to fire twenty-nine men whom they named as communists. The union representatives told the manufacturer that the Reds had been thrown out of the local in an effort to purge it of wild-eyed radicals.

Three are Disciplined.

That U. A. W. leaders do recognize the weakening effect of the Reds was proved today when Martin announced that Roy Reuther, William Cody, and Ralph Dale, all organizers in Flint, have been recalled to Detroit, as punishment for their calling of strikes in the General Motors plant there.

"Are you attempting a Red purge in the union ranks?" Martin was asked.

"The principle reason for the disciplinary action against these men was the unauthorized strike situation," he replied. "The executive board has determined to eliminate unauthorized action on the part of local unions. There also was the matter of a factional fight within the union at Flint."

Martin said that three members of the executive board with two other organizers now in Flint would comprise a union committee in charge of all U. A. W. activities there.

SENATORS VIEW FILM OF CHICAGO STRIKE RIOTING

Sequence Is Broken at Critical Point.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 2.—[Special.]—The newsreel motion picture showing part of the C. I. O. Memorial day riot at the Republic Steel plant in South Chicago, on the basis of which the Chicago police have been accused of "unprovoked murder," was shown by the so-called civil liberties committee headed by Senator Robert M. La Follette [Radical, Wis.] today. The film does not show the crucial moments of the riot scene, when the police were subjected to a barrage of bricks, concrete slabs, and other missils, and the cameraman explained that he was changing lenses at the time and did not photograph it.

Orlando Lippert, the cameraman, employed by the Paramount News Reel company, explained that he made a closeup view of the scene, showing the mob massed against the police line, and then began changing his lenses to make a general view. He said he thought he missed "four or five seconds after the encounter occurred."

Sees Missils from Strikers.

"After the last closeup before the combat I glanced up and noticed missils coming through the air from the rear of the demonstrators," he testified. "At the same time the demonstrators were being pushed back. I immediately got busy and put in my lens."

Before the break in the photographic record, explained by the changing of the lenses, the views show the police standing calmly in line, apparently pleading with the mob to disperse, as testified by Supervising Captain James L. Mooney and Capt. Thomas Kilroy.

Members of the mob in the front line are arguing with the police, while those in the rear are pushing forward and shouting. The police have testified that the rioters were cursing and yelling "What's holding us up? Let's get through and get them finks out," referring to loyal workers in the plant.

The police in this scene, before the beginning of the provocation, which is not shown by the film, are employing no force whatever. Not an upraised night stick is shown.

Break in Film.

After the break in the photographic record the police are shown surging forward and pushing the mob before them. Some of the police are shown swinging their clubs. Billows of tear gas are being wafted over the heads of the rioters. The motion picture is accompanied by sound effects, in which the words are indistinguishable. Gun shots can be heard momentarily, perhaps a second or two. No shooting can be seen, and it is impossible to determine where the shots came from.

The only gun that can be seen is in the hands of a policeman, and it is pointed in the air at an angle of 45 degrees. If this policeman should have fired directly before him, he would have hit a fellow officer a few feet ahead of him.

The film continues, with the police pushing the mob back until the field is cleared. The rioters in the background can be seen reforming their line. Meanwhile the police are shown assisting the wounded into patrol wagons. One man lying on the ground is apparently seriously injured and a policeman opens his shirt to aid his breathing.

After the showing of the film La Follette put on a succession of C. I. O. organizers and others who participated in the riot, all of whom denied that the members of the mob carried clubs, rocks, or any other weapons. The mob was peaceable and gay, according to their stories, and sought only to put on a mass demonstration in front of the plant. The police, they said, fired upon them suddenly and without warning, and then beat them unmercifully with clubs.

One of these witnesses was George A. Patterson, a paid C. I. O. organizer, who is an active member of the communist party.

The credibility of these witnesses was clearly shown when La Follette himself pointed out that newspaper photographs showed at least six rioters with clubs and one with "a good sized hunk of concrete" in the front line of the mob.

Hodes Demands Fair Play in Pictures of Steel Riot

Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes sent a telegram last night to officials of the Paramount News film company demanding in the name of Chicago citizens that in exhibiting the news reel of the Memorial day strike riot in South Chicago the company show an Associated Press still photograph depicting the preliminary attack of the mob on police.

Mr. Hodes acted in the absence of Mayor Kelly from the city. The company released the film for general exhibition yesterday after it had been shown at Washington by the La Follette committee. Chicago police officials testified before the committee that the attack upon police by the mob caused them to fire.

Points to Film's Bias.

"The film, by the sworn testimony of the photographer who took it, gives an incomplete picture of the riot," said Mr. Hodes. "The gap in the photographic record comes, unfortunately, at a crucial time, with the result that what was photographed gives by itself an obviously incomplete portrayal of what occurred.

"I have not seen the film myself, but, according to newspaper reports, the photographer got shots of the approach of the mob to the waiting line of police and then stopped his camera to change lenses. During this short period the attack of the mob on the police took place.

"The photographer, according to press accounts, told of missils flying through the air from the rear of the mob. The police have testified repeatedly that, in addition to this shower of rocks, shots were fired by members of the mob and the line of police was subjected to the vilest sort of abuse. Also, the police officers have testified that they were threatened with clubs, meathooks, and other dangerous weapons.

Completes Story, He Says.

"The film unfortunately shows none of this, I am informed. The nature of the attack on the police, however, is graphically shown by a still photograph made by an Associated Press photographer, which shows police being felled by hurled clubs, taking shelter, and staggering back with arms upraised to fend off the rocks and bricks hurled at them by the mob.

"In simple justice to the city of Chicago the Paramount company should include in its news reel a view of this still picture, and other photographs of the mob's violence as are available, with an explanation that it shows the position in which the police found themselves. Without such an explanation the film is an obvious slander upon our city."

In releasing the film for public showing, E. J. Richard, film editor of Paramount News, declared in New York that his company had held up the picture because it felt that considerable ill-feeling might have been caused by a release immediately following the riot.

Film Banned in Chicago.

Lieut. Harry Costello, head of the Chicago police crime prevention bureau, which censors films, announced that the news reels will not be shown in Chicago theaters. He pointed out that as a measure of preventing public disturbances, the Chicago censors do not permit showing of any picture which deals with riots, either local or foreign.

ASK EXTENSION OF NO PARKING ZONE NEAR LOOP

An extension of the no parking zone in the central business district was recommended to Mayor Edward J. Kelly yesterday by the Union League club. It was one of five suggestions prepared by the club's transportation committee to expedite streetcar and vehicular trafic in the heart of the city.

Under the plan the prohibition now in effect in the loop would apply to all streets bounded by Roosevelt road, Halsted street and Chicago avenue and would also apply to Milwaukee avenue, La Salle street and Clark street south of North avenue.

During the evening rush hours, from 4:30 to 6:15 p. m., the club recommends that all delivery trucks except police, fire, newspaper, postal and money trucks be barred from a zone bordered by Harrison street on the south and by the river on the west and north.

HOTELS' LOCKOUT IN FRANCE IS OFF; CONTRACT SIGNED

PARIS, July 3.—[Saturday.]—(AP)—Threat of a nationwide shut down of hotels, restaurants, and cafés today was averted early this morning as employers and workers signed an undisclosed agreement on working conditions.

Owners had scheduled a shut down to begin tomorrow as a protest against a five day, 40 hour week decreed for their employés by the Chautemps' government just after it took office.

At the same time, to offset the devaluation of the franc, Fernand Chapsal, minister of commerce, promised the senate all tarifs would be raised 15 per cent. He declared such action would be taken soon after the upper house passed a bill giving the government full power to change tarifs. The chamber already has adopted the bill.

C. I. O. CLAIMS A MAJORITY OF INLAND WORKERS

Submits Figures at Hearing by Labor Board.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

The C. I. O. steel union presented figures yesterday at the national labor relations board hearing of charges against the Inland Steel company showing that the union has signed membership applications from 6,429 employés at the company's East Chicago and Chicago Heights plants.

Since pay roll figures previously presented gave the total employés at the plant, including supervisory, clerical, and technical help not eligible to union membership as 12,432, this would give the union a majority of the company's employés unless its counsel can show that some of the employés have withdrawn from the union since signing applications.

The company stipulated that the names presented to the board were on the company's pay rolls of June 8 and that the membership application signatures corresponded with pay roll signatures. It did not concede that all of the men are still in the union.

Request for Copy Refused.

The list of employés was prepared at company expense, its attorneys said, and by agreement only a single copy of the names was made. After the list had been introduced Ernest S. Ballard, chief counsel for the company, asked permission to copy the list that the present membership status of the men named may be investigated. Charles A. Wood, trial examiner, refused the request at the moment, but took it under advisement and promised a ruling today.

Dr. David J. Saposs, chief economist of the board, finished his three days of testimony at the hearing during the day. In his closing testimony he asserted that senatorial backers of the Wagner labor act did not mean what company counsel contend they meant when the senators said that the law does not obligate an employer to sign a union contract.

The board complaint is based principally on the charge that the company refused to sign a contract with the Steel Workers Organizing committee, subsidiary of the C. I. O. This refusal to sign caused the strike at the Inland plants which ended under a truce agreement Wednesday.

Senators Quoted.

Attorney Ballard produced copies of the congressional record at Thursday's hearing, and quoted Senator Robert F. Wagner [D., N. Y.], father of the labor act, Senator David I. Walsh [D., Mass.], and the majority report of the committee which recommended passage of the bill by the senate, all to the effect that there was no mandate in the bill that employers sign labor contracts.

Yesterday, on re-direct examination, I. S. Dorfman, attorney for the board, asked Dr. Saposs what, in his opinion, Senator Walsh meant by his statement.

"The senator referred to a question raised primarily by opponents of the bill, but also by some of its proponents," replied Dr. Saposs.

Dr. Saposs' Explanation.

"This was whether the bill required employers and employés to arrive at terms of employment. He was explaining that the bill had no provisions to compel what is commonly known as compulsory arbitration, that it was designed only to expedite collective bargaining."

Dr. Saposs contended that the feeling in the senate was that if unions were recognized and protected in the right to organize, and employers required to bargain with them, ordinary and usual procedure in collective bargaining would lead to signed trade agreements.

Divorce Revealed

Mr. and Mrs. John Wentworth.

Mrs. Harriet Brown Wentworth, wife of John Wentworth, grandson of Chicago's early mayor of the same name and leading architect and aviation enthusiast, obtained a Mexican divorce in Juarez last Tuesday, it was learned yesterday. Mrs. Wentworth sailed yesterday from San Francisco for Honolulu with her aunt, Mrs. Honoré Palmer, Mr. Palmer, and Honoré Jr.

The grounds for the divorce were incompatibility, and Mr. Wentworth appeared in Juarez for the hearing, according to the report. The Wentworths were married Dec. 29, 1924, in Baltimore. Mrs. Wentworth was the daughter of George Brown and Mrs. William Minor Dabney of Baltimore.

The Wentworths went on a honeymoon trip around the world and then came to Chicago to live, although they spent much time in travel. Mr. Wentworth was a widely known world war aviator, and since the war he has taken an active interest in aviation development in Chicago. He is a member of the Chicago Aero commission.

FOUR TERRORIZE 100 WORKERS, GET $3,500 IN HOLDUP

Four robbers, armed with shotguns, terrorized 100 employés, mostly women, of the Liquid Carbonic company, 3100 South Kedzie avenue, and escaped with $3,500 yesterday morning in an automobile driven by a fifth confederate.

The company employs about 1,200 persons, but most of them had not arrived for work at the time of the holdup. Wearing smoked glasses, the four men rushed into the main floor of the building. One of the robbers went to Miss Hazel Krinby, 31 years old, 2722 West 60th street, a switchboard operator, pulled all of the connections from the board, and warned her against an outcry.

The other three went to the general offices on the second floor and announced a stick-up. They forced Miss Blanche Smetana, 23, the cashier, and Miss Helen Kekala, 21, from the cashier's cage, and scooped $3,500 in cash from the cash drawer and the safe.

During the course of the robbery, the man covering Miss Krinby with a gun, also kept watch at the entrance and as employés came in, he ordered them to the second floor, where his companions forced them to lie on the floor with the other employés. The four escaped in their car, which was stolen in June.

YOUNGSTOWN CO. MOVES TO REOPEN WITH TROOPS' AID

Indiana Workers Urged to Demand Protection.

The reopening early next week of the strike ridden Youngstown Sheet and Tube company mills in Indiana Harbor, where 7,000 men were growing restive at more than five weeks of enforced idleness, was indicated by developments yesterday.

Indiana National Guardsmen are expected to be on duty when the mills reopen unless the strikers, directed by the Committee for Industrial Organization, abandon their picket lines.

Under Indiana law the governor is required to call out troops for emergency action whenever local law enforcement officials request him to do so. That such a request would be made before the end of the July 4-5 holiday was deemed likely last night as Frank Purnell, president of the Youngstown company, sent a letter to all his employés urging them to demand protection for a peaceful reopening of the mills.

Neighbors Work Under Truce.

Last night the employés seemed in a mood to do so, as they watched their neighbors go to work at the Indiana Harbor mills of the Inland Steel company. The Inland mills were reopened on Thursday after a truce arranged by Gov. M. Clifford Townsend gave the C. I. O. an excuse to end the strike against Inland.

The Youngstown company refused to join in this truce, declaring it would make no agreement with the C. I. O. Gov. Townsend's labor commissioner, Thomas R. Hutson, made strenuous efforts to have Youngstown modify its position, pointing out that a direct contract between the company and the C. I. O. was not necessary. He asked the Youngstown officials to follow the same truce plan as the Inland, in which both sides made identical arrangements with the governor, but not with each other. All hope that it might do so was blasted yesterday by Purnell's letter to his employés.

Position Unchanged.

After reaffirming the company's willingness to negotiate with any labor organization Purnell's letter said:

"The company has not changed its position about making an agreement or signing a contract with the C. I. O. or the S. W. O. C., and will not make an agreement with either of them directly or indirectly.

"The right to work unmolested is the inalienable right of every American citizen. As citizens and taxpayers of Indiana you have the right to demand from the legally constituted law enforcement officers protection from intimidation and from fear of violence in the peaceful pursuit of your normal occupation for the support of yourselves and your families."

Feels Powerful Influence.

By telephone from Youngstown, Purnell summarized his opinion of the situation with the following significant question:

"What is this powerful interest that is preventing men from returning to work who want to return to work?"

Evidence of the temper of opinion among Youngstown employes was provided yesterday by the Rev. O. P. Manker, pastor of the Indiana Harbor Methodist Episcopal church, chairman of a committee of clergymen who took a postcard poll of all the workers. The poll showed that a substantial majority were in favor of returning to work if they were granted protection, the Rev. Mr. Manker said.

Del Ellinwood, executive secretary of the Association of Steel Employes, an independent union not affiliated with C. I. O., said his group's lawyer was drafting a new telegram to Gov. Townsend appealing for troops to protect returning workmen.

Men Grow Restless.

"The men who want to work are getting restless and we can't hold them much longer," he said.

The Youngstwon company moved forward yesterday with preparations for resuming operations in its small plant at 94th street and Ewing avenue, in South Chicago, where several hundred workmen were taken secretly by boat and train on Thursday. It was reported that 330 employes were in the plant yesterday and that one of the three blast furnaces will be started on Sunday.

The company's largest plant of the Chicago district is in Indiana Harbor, a section of the city of East Chicago, Ind. The name Indiana Harbor is used by the great industries of the district to avoid confusion in its mail address with the city of Chicago. The Little Calumet river divides Indiana Harbor from the rest of the city of East Chicago.

TWO WOMEN, C. I. O. ORGANIZERS, SEEK AND GET POLICE HELP

Washington, D. C., July 2.—[Special.]—Two women organizers for the Amalgamated Garment Makers union, a C. I. O. affiliate, were given a police escort from Washington today at their own request, to prevent possibility of harm coming to them. This followed a disturbance between the two organizers and a group of women said to be Washington factory workers.

Mrs. Otie Jenney of South Bend and a companion, who told Police Chief Harry Opell they had arrived in Washington to pay some bills, were the two women who left the city.

They were in their parked car when approached by a group of women. A dispute arose, and women are said to have slapped each other's faces and pulled hair before the police arrived.

Earlier in the week police had provided an escort for Mrs. Jenney and Frank Kwallek, another organizer, after a group of men workers had asked them to leave this city.

SENT TO PRISON FOR WOUNDING 2 WOMEN IN TAVERN

Clayton McGrath, 29 years old, 636 Truman avenue, Hammond, Ind., was sentenced to 1 to 14 years in prison for assault with intent to commit murder by Judge Peter M. Schwaba in Criminal court yesterday. On May 19 McGrath entered the Dog House tavern in Calumet City and seriously wounded Mrs. Dorothy McBride, his sweetheart, and Miss Betty Dunlop, an employé of the tavern. McGrath, a railroad fireman, who had pleaded guilty, begged to be sent to the Bridewell rather than the penitentiary. "I can't get a railroad job as an ex-convict, he said. "You are lucky you're not going to the chair for murder," the judge replied.

Pope to Broadcast Speech Inaugurating French Church

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy, July 2.—(AP)—Pope Pius XI. disclosed plans today to broadcast a speech which he will deliver on July 11 to inaugurate the new Church of Saint Theresa at the famous shrine of Lisieux, France. His speech will be given in French by radio from here. Vatican prelates said the pope, concerned over what he regards as a growing French tendency toward communism, may mingle religious and political notes in his address.

A. F. OF L. BUCKS REDS AT WORLD LABOR CONGRESS

French Battle to Take In C. I. O. Instead.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, July 2—The congress of the International Federation of Trades Unions adjourned its evening session tonight without accepting the American Federation of Labor as a member, though the A. F. of L. had been urgently invited to join.

Matthew Woll.

The French delegation, which represents also the interests of Moscow at the congress, led a lobby against admitting the A. F. of L. and in favor of taking in the John L. Lewis radical Committee for Industrial Organization, which accepts communist support. The French were supported by the Argentines, the Czechoslovaks, and the Mexicans.

Mexico's delegate is Alexandro Carrillo, who is closely allied with the communist third international in Moscow. He is the son of a former Mexican consul in Texas and was educated there. He charged the A. F. of L. savored of Fascism and suggested admitting it to the International Federation only on condition that the C. I. O. be equally represented.

Woll Combats Red Influence.

In an effort to countervail the hostile lobby, Matthew Woll, vice president of the A. F. of L., addressed the delegates. He was there to accept, on behalf of the A. F. of L., the International Federation's invitation to membership.

He said he was astonished to have the matter debated at this stage of the proceedings, especially when he found that a fourth pressing invitation was to be sent to a soviet professional union which had ignored three previous bids.

Woll explained to the assemblage the conflict between the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O., and pointed out that the International Federation could not take in the C. I. O. as a member because it was merely an informal committee, without a legislative body or regular meetings. He said the international group might assist by mediating in this dispute, whose seriousness he minimized.

In closing, Woll pleaded strongly for international unity in the labor movement, and warned of an unfavorable reaction in America if the A. F. of L. were denied membership, or if there were too much delay in admitting the Americans.

British Back Americans.

Sir Walter Citrine, president of the International Federation and secretary of the British Trades Union congress, supported Woll and after a secret conference predicted the A. F. of L. would be taken in. Nevertheless, at the end of a three hour debate, he preferred not to risk a vote tonight and adjourned the session.

Earlier today, the congress passed unanimously a resolution sponsored by Sir Walter calling on countries of the league of nations to use all means provided in the league covenant to restore Spain's complete political and territorial independence.

Carrillo argued for this resolution, observing that for twenty-five years the United States was Mexico's Germany and that the Mexicans, still combating the imperialism of their northern neighbors, sympathized intensely with the Spanish people.

2 MORE STRIKEBOUND STEEL PLANTS OPEN GATES AT MASSILLON

Massillon, O., July 2.—[Special.]—Two more strike-locked plants of the Republic Steel corporation opened in defiance of a C. I. O. picket siege today while Philip Murray, steel strike leader, spurred legal steps to wring signed contracts from independent steel producers.

Under protection of National Guard bayonets, workmen quietly trooped back to Republic's central and union drawn steel divisions for the first time since the strike started May 27.

Some 300 pickets booed and jeered but offered no violence as about 150 automobiles loaded with loyalists drove inside the plants. Steel helmeted militiamen kept the strikers away from the mills.

While this newest back to work movement was being carried out, Murray, chairman of the Steel Workers' Organizing committee, filed petitions with the national labor relations board at Pittsburgh.

The documents requested collective bargaining elections among employés at all plants of the big Bethlehem Steel corporation and the Weirton Steel company.

RUSSIA EXECUTES 70 IN ROUNDUP OF SPIES, WRECKERS

MOSCOW, July 2.—(AP)—A wholesale seizure of persons accused of wrecking activities and espionage for foreign countries, in which more than 120 were taken and more than 70 "liquidated," was disclosed tonight in northwest Russia.

Leonid Zakovsky, chief of the secret police in the Leningrad area, announced the roundup, mostly of Russians in the supposed service of other countries.

[At least 188 others are known to have been killed before firing squads in Russia since the soviet government began last August to stamp out alleged "Trotzkyism," espionage, and wrecking.]

Zakovsky said more than 70 alleged spies and wreckers for the Estonian intelligence service were arrested and "liquidated" [executed]. He announced execution of an unidentified Red army air commander, accused of recruiting mechanics who tampered with planes to cause fatal crashes.

FRANCE, BRITAIN THREATEN TO AID SPAIN WITH GUNS

Move Follows Rejection of Italo-German Plan.

PARIS, July 2.—(AP)—France made clear tonight that she and Great Britain will supply arms, munitions, and airplanes to the Spanish government unless Italy and Germany change their attitudes toward neutrality in Spain.

Disclosure of this position was made shortly after it was learned that Great Britain, acting at a meeting of a subcommittee of the international "hands off Spain" committee in London, emphatically rejected an Italo-German proposal that belligerent rights be granted the Spanish rebels. The British rejection created a tense situation.

French spokesmen, in announcing that arms will be supplied to the Spanish loyalists if Italy and Germany persist in their present attitude, said "resumption of normal commercial relations" would be permitted, meaning immediate reopening of the French frontier to the Spanish government.

Bar on Rebels to Stay Up.

Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco's frontier, it was said, would remain closed because he still would be viewed officially as the leader of an insurrection against the Spanish government and could buy nothing from France.

Large munitions contracts, which the government of Spain's republic placed in France before the uprising, spokesmen said, would be filled. The orders were suspended when the nonintervention committee was organized.

Spanish Government Premier Juan Negrin, accompanied by Jose Giral, Spanish foreign minister, conferred at length with Yvon Delbos, French foreign minister.

Sources close to the foreign office said the Spanish premier outlined in "great detail" the present state of the Spanish government forces and their requirements in war material.

Bullitt Sees Premier.

United States Ambassador William C. Bullitt conferred for half an hour late today with Premier Camille Chautemps over the stalemate on the London nonintervention committee.

Delbos earlier was reported to have informed the chamber of deputies foreign affairs committee that France and Great Britain might extend an Anglo-French patrol around all Spain, overriding Italo-German objections.

A return by France and Britain to "freedom of action" concerning the Spanish civil war pending another "reconstruction" of the problems of nonintervention was one of several possible alternatives, authoritative sources said.

They indicated "all possible means" would be used to woo Rome and Berlin back to collaboration with the "hands off Spain" committee.

Reject Italo-German Scheme.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 2.—An emphatic "No!" was Great Britain's answer to Germany and Italy today when the two dictator-led nations suggested that both the warring Spanish government and the Spanish rebels be granted belligerent rights.

The proposal and rejection, made at a meeting of the subcommittee of the international committee for nonintervention in the Spanish civil war, created a grave situation in European international relations centering about the conflict, diplomats said.

Of the nine governments represented on the subcommittee, five agreed with the British stand, it was said. Portugal was declared to be undecided.

With efforts to "control" the Spanish war deadlocked, the subcommittee was adjourned until next week. Power was granted the earl of Plymouth, chairman of the full nonintervention committee, to call a meeting of that body, to consider the ticklish situation.

Italy to Keep Membership.

ROME, July 2.—(AP)—Official circles declared tonight that Italy and Germany will not bolt the "hands off Spain" committee because of British rejection of their proposal to grant both sides belligerent rights in warring Spain.

Italy will retain membership, they said, as long as the way remains open for maintaining nonintervention.

A list of 75 Italian volunteers killed in the drive against Bilbao was published by the government. This brought to 613 the Italians killed while fighting with Spanish insurgent forces.

WILBUR J. CARR NAMED FOR U. S. ENVOY TO PRAGUE

Washington, D. C., July 2.—(AP)—President Roosevelt climaxed a series of diplomatic changes today by assigning Wilbur J. Carr, long-time assistant secretary of state, to a field post.

Widely known as the "Father of the American Foreign Service," Carr was nominated by the President to be minister to Czechoslovakia. There he is to succeed J. Butler Wright, who was designated ambassador to Cuba yesterday.

The President also nominated George S. Messersmith, minister to Austria, to replace Carr as assistant secretary. Secretary Hull said Carr desires to take the field post.

MANY WOUNDED AS REBEL PLANES BOMB SANTANDER

Foothold in Province Won, Is Claim.

MADRID, July 2.—(AP)—Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco's forces reported today they had reached Santander province, which contains the city of Santander, their major remaining objective in northwest Spain.

Capture of 2,000 foot Mount Mello, insurgent officers reported, gave them a foothold in the province south of Somorrostro. Another insurgent column was reported advancing westward along the Valmaseda and Castro Urdiales highway.

Defense commanders, however, asserted their Asturian-Basque line was withdrawing after several days of heavy pressure in the Somorrostro mining area. It was in danger of being flanked by an insurgent tangent toward the coast.

Many Inhabitants Wounded.

Insurgent squadrons bombed Santander for the sixth time in two days, wounding many inhabitants and damaging several buildings.

A loyalist government air fleet reported the destruction of several insurgent planes in a raid on an insurgent held flying field at Seville.

Police in Madrid reported the arrest of several men and women, whose names were not disclosed, on charges of espionage for the insurgents. Several foreigners were reported involved.

The spy ring, police officials declared, sought access to confidential records in the general security office and were trapped by an official, who pretended to work with them until he learned their secrets.

Officials said they confiscated a large sum in foreign currency.

Report 18 Killed at Burgos.

GIBRALTAR, July 2.—(AP)—The Spanish insurgent radio station at Salamanca reported today that 18 persons were killed and 21 wounded when Spanish loyalist government airplanes raided Burgos, former rebel headquarters. The station said the bombers also attempted to attack Toledo and other insurgent towns, but were driven off.

Rebels Renew Vatican Plea.

VATICAN CITY, July 2.—(AP)—Pablo de Churruca, marquis of Aycinena, the new representative to the holy see of the Spanish insurgent régime, today renewed negotiations with the Vatican for formal recognition of his government.

Spanish circles said no immediate outcome of De Churruca's request was expected.

DU PONT WIDOW DENIES HUSBAND EVADED U. S. TAX

Washington, D. C., July 2.—(AP)—The widow of Alfred I. du Pont said today that statements made by a treasury attorney testifying before the congressional committee investigating tax practices were "unwarranted and unjust."

[Arthur H. Kent, treasury attorney, told the committee on Wednesday that du Pont and his estate saved roughly $200,000 in income tax levies through a personal holding company to which he transferred his "palatial residence" at Wilmington, Del.]

Mrs. du Pont expressed her views in a telegram to Chairman Doughton of the committee, copies of which she made public.

She told Doughton that "every dollar" expended by a corporation to which her husband transferred Delaware property and $2,000,000 worth of securities is intended to maintain a hospital for the treatment of crippled children.

The transfer of the money and property, she said, was made to "Nemours, Inc.," in 1929.

"Not a dollar of the income of Nemours, Inc., was ever expended for the household expenses of Mr. du Pont or his family," his widow wired the committee chairman.

MOSCOW ORDERS TROOPS TO QUIT DISPUTED AREA

Truce with Japs Paves Way for Negotiations.

MOSCOW, July 3 [Saturday] (AP)—The Russian government announced early today it had ordered the withdrawal of gunboats and armed patrols from islands in the Amur river which both Russia and Manchukuo claim.

The announcement said the action was taken only after Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japanese ambassador, had announced the withdrawal of Japanese-Manchukuan military cutters from the disputed area.

Orders for the Russian evacuation, it said, were issued by Marshal Klementi E. Voroshilov, commissar of war and navy.

The communique was issued some time after Ambassador Shigemitsu announced he had reached an agreement with the soviet government which promised an early, peaceful settlement of the conflict on the Amur river, on the border between Siberia and Manchukuo. A battle was fought in the river at the island of Sennufu last Wednesday and a Russian gunboat was sunk.

Jap Boats Recalled, Is Report.

The government announcement said: "Shigemitsu called on [Foreign Commissar Maxim] Litvinov and declared he had received information from Tokio of the withdrawal of Japanese-Manchukuan military cutters from the islands in the Amur and that the ambassador desired the immediate withdrawal of soviet cutters and military patrols from the islands.

"Litvinov confirmed that this complies fully with the proposal made at the beginning of the conversations and promised immediately to communicate with the proper authorities, who will issue the necessary order.

"In reply to the ambassador's question about the restoration of the situation as it was before, Litvinov answered positively that the status quo ante will be kept when both parties present claims to the islands and that after demilitarization it will be possible to begin mutual examination of the claims.

War Chief Issues Order.

"The ambassador agreed upon the possibility in the future of beginning discussion of demarcation of the frontier along the Amur.

"Litvinov made clear that fixing the frontier will necessarily determine the ownership of the islands.

If this promise is fulfilled, the Japanese envoy asserted, Japan will consider the incident closed satisfactorily. The islands involved, Sennufu and Bolshoi, are 75 miles below Blagoveshchensk in the Amur.

Earlier in the day the United States ambassador, Joseph E. Davies, called on Litvinov, with whom he exchanged expressions of hope the tension between Japan and Russia soon would be eased.

Diplomatic quarters here believed immediate danger had been removed from the far eastern situation unless the armies on either side decided to take things into their own hands.

Japan Hopeful of Peace.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, July 2.—While the Japanese government was bending every possible effort to localize the dispute with Russia growing out of a clash between soviet and Japanese-Manchukuan troops on the Amur river in which a soviet gunboat was sunk, official word was received tonight that the Moscow government had agreed to withdraw its forces from the disputed area.

A spokesman for the foreign office here declared following receipt of dispatches from Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japanese ambassador to Moscow, that the government is confident further trouble will be avoided.

A feeling of great relief was noted in official circles. Newspaper extras carried the news to the populace.

If the latest proposal is carried out it will mean that a score of gunboats will be withdrawn from the disputed islands in the area, according to Shigemitsu's report.

The news of Russia's decision came while troops of both sides still were concentrating on the border.

The cabinet discussed the situation in a regular meeting today.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 2.—[Special.]—Joe Penner, comedian, didn't feel so funny today when a law suit by Clair Smith made him defendant in a $3,315 damage suit. Smith owns a house which he rented to the actor, and charged that the place suffered that much by Penner's tenancy, chiefly in articles removed. Penner admitted he took some articles, inadvertently, when he moved, but was willing to return them. He challenged valuation placed upon many things.

Inquiry Is Opened.

Railroad officials and police began an inquiry into the investigation, with the railroad promptly declaring that there were no signal difficulties at fault. The actual property damage to the trains was slight, considering the nature of the accident. Officials pointed out that the coaches were all steel, and that this reduced the injury list, and possibly prevented a worse accident.

The accident delayed the vacation bound passengers until a special train was put into service after 10 p. m. and the passengers transferred aboard. Thousands of Evanstonians gathered at the accident scene.

DECIDES BONUS FIGURES IN AID TO JOBLESS VETS

New York, July 2.—[Special.]—The temporary emergency relief administration is within its legal rights in withholding relief from war veterans who have not satisfactorily explained the disposition of their bonus, Supreme Court Justice Alfred Frankenthaler ruled today in a test case affecting about 5,000 former soldiers.

Veterans' organizations contended the TERA policy was contrary to federal statutes exempting the bonus from attachment, levy and seizure. This, Justice Frankenthaler said, is not true. Even if it were, he added, the situation would not be changed, since such a statute could not compel state authorities to overlook possession of the bonus in making allotments of state funds.

The test case was brought in the name of Harry McCormack, a jobless veteran of Brooklyn.

NEW COURT BILL BEFORE SENATE; FILIBUSTER DUE

Packing Plan Defeat Is Forecast.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 2.—[Special.]—The administration's compromise judiciary reorganization bill, which provides for packing of the Supreme court at the rate of one additional justice a year, was introduced in the senate by Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson today and leaders of the opposition immediately vowed to filibuster as long as may be necessary to prevent it from coming to a vote.

Informed opinion in the senate is that the opposition will not have to filibuster more than a few weeks. It is believed that once the administration leaders are convinced that the opposition is as strong in courage as it is in numbers—at least 43 men—the compromise court packing bill will be ditched rather than prolong the session of congress until fall or winter.

Battle Begins Next Week.

The long awaited senate fight, expected to be one of the most momentous in history, will begin next week when Senator Robinson calls up the President's bill and offers the compromise as a substitute.

The substitute measure, which is a composite of compromises offered by Senators Carl Hatch [D., N. M.] and George McGill [D., Kas.], provides for the appointment of not more than one additional justice in any one calendar year on the basis of present members more than 75 years of age who do not retire. The President's bill called for the appointment of a maximum of six additional justices, all at once, on the basis of members over seventy not retiring.

Three in Six Months.

If the compromise should be enacted, it would make possible the appointment of three additional Supreme court justices by Mr. Roosevelt in the next six months, one in this calendar year, one immediately after Jan. 1 and one to fill the vacancy left by the retirement of Justice Willis Van Devanter.

Besides the provisions for gradual packing of the Supreme court, the compromise bill would create a Supreme court proctor to supervise the work of the lower courts, and it contains most of the provisions relating to the lower courts as in the President's bill. Additional judges could be appointed to the lower courts on the basis of members over 70 refusing to retire, although the total number would be limited to 20, instead of 44, as provided in the President's bill.

3 JUDGES HEAR ZAZOVE DEFEND TRIAL CONDUCT

Charged by Hodes with Unethical Remarks.

Attorney Irving G. Zazove yesterday began his defense before three judges of the Circuit court executive committee, sitting en banc, who are hearing evidence on a complaint of professional misconduct against him.

Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes asked the investigation, charging that during trial of a personal injury case against the city, Zazove made statements extraneous to the issue, designed to bias the court's judgment, and reflecting on the integrity of members of Mr. Hodes' staf. If the charges are sustained the judges may order Zazove's suspension from practice before the court.

Contempt Petition Dropped.

A petition, involving the same charges and filed by Mr. Hodes, asking that Zazove be held in direct contempt of court, was dismissed Thursday by the three judges, Harry M. Fisher, Joseph Burke, and John R. Caverly. The dismissal followed Zazove's refusal to answer certain questions on the ground he might incriminate himself. The court committee, in order to qualify him to answer without imperiling his constitutional rights, then dropped the contempt charge so he might answer the questions in connection with the misconduct charge, which is not a criminal proceeding.

Clash Over Injury Verdict.

The clash between Mr. Hodes and Zazove started after a jury returned a verdict of $35,000 for the lawyer's client, Claude R. Wayland, 51 years old, 640 Wrightwood avenue. Mr. Hodes moved for a new trial on the ground that new evidence indicated Wayland's injuries were not as serious as indicated in the trial. The motion was later granted.

Zazove countered with charges against Mr. Hodes' assistants in arguments before the trial judge, William J. Wimbiscus, a country judge. Zazove declared that an assistant corporation counsel was involved in an offer made to him to buy the judgment for 65 cents on the dollar.

He charged that other assistants had been similarly guilty of arranging purchase of judgments by professional buyers in a manner indicating graft and corruption. Corporation Counsel Hodes and all others mentioned by Zazove have made explicit denial of his charges.

ILLINOIS BUDGET OUT OF BALANCE BY 12 MILLIONS

Veto by Horner May Chop Appropriations.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., July 2.—[Special.]—If he wants a balanced budget for Illinois for the next two years, Gov. Henry Horner must chop almost 12 million dollars from the appropriations passed by the legislature which adjourned sine die early yesterday.

As passed, the appropriations for the state officers, code departments, the state university, general assembly, etc., total $9,215,208 more than those voted for the biennium which closed yesterday. It is a record-breaking total.

It is possible that Mr. Horner will swing the veto scythe widely enough to force a balance between estimated revenues and essential expenditures. He will have to confine himself to the general revenue column and the difference between what was appropriated, and the estimated income of the state during the biennium is the difference between $234,968,018 and $223,300,000, or $11,668,018.

Deny Larger Deficit.

The figures are those of Representative James P. Boyle [D., Chicago], chairman of the house appropriations committee, and they are authenticated by finance officers of the Horner administration. These officials expressed irritation today at reports that the budget was out of balance all the way from 20 to 30 millions.

It was pointed out that these higher estimates include a reappropriation of 9 million dollars which remains unexpended in the treasury after being appropriated by the general assembly two years ago. Most of it is for state buildings in the process of construction. The money is being spent as needed.

In reaching their $11,668,018 deficit the financial officers are on less firm ground in failing to include an increase of $2,959,649 in the appropriations for constitutional and code officers, the University of Illinois, normal schools, and state boards and commissions. They think this increase will be made up by lapsed appropriations—that is, from portions of appropriations remaining unspent at the close of the biennium.

Speculate on Action.

Where the governor can find almost 12 million dollars which, in his opinion, are nonessential appropriations has every one in the state guessing. It is believed that he will chop about one million from the state university's budget, for he favored a bill totaling $800,000 less than the amount the university requested and was granted by both house and senate. It is predicted that at least the increase and perhaps other items may be stricken by the veto pen.

All save one of the constitutional officers kept their appropriation bills within the sums agreed upon at budgetary conferences and it is considered doubtful that Mr. Horner will do much in the way of slashing their bills. The exception is Secretary of State Hughes, whose appropriation totaled about $235,000 above the revised budget, but even should that be taken out it would be figuratively only a drop in the bucket.

A rather free hand was exercised by the legislators in voting appropriations for special commissions and investigating committees and the funds so authorized total $800,000 more than was counted upon in the revised budget. Some vetoes are likely among these items.

The so-called "earmarked" funds are out of reach of the pen. These are the fixed costs of the government and include 25 million dollars for old age pensions, 75 million dollars for relief, and 26 million dollars for the common school fund.

O. K's Some Appropriations.

One ray of hope is the possibility that the state will collect more from the retailers' occupation [sales] tax than was estimated by Sam Nudelman, director of finance, in the revised budget. The director calculated that 6 million dollars would be collected monthly or 144 million dollars for the biennium. Should that prove conservative and the tax bring in, say, 170 million dollars for the biennium, a balance would be achieved.

In signing about twenty bills today, the governor approved several appropriations, among them $25,000 for a statue of the late former speaker, David E. Shanahan of Chicago; $50,000 to pay the cost of holding the American Legion convention in Chicago in 1938 or 1939, should it be held there, and $7,624,699 for permanent improvements at the state institutions.

Another measure signed will impose permanent registration upon those Cook county precincts where it is not already in effect—namely: those outside the jurisdiction of the Chicago election commissioners.

Rule Standup Train Rider Has Good Grounds to Sue

New York, July 2.—[Special.]—A train rider who has to stand from Albany to New York has good grounds for a suit against the New York Central railroad, the Appellate term of the Supreme court ruled unanimously today, upsetting a decision in Municipal court which held that ownership of a ticket did not entitle a patron to a seat.

GETS FIRST LICENSE

Margaret Etta Nissen and Robert Clinton Moore, first to obtain marriage license under new Saltiel hygienic law.

Robert Clinton Moore, 25 years old, 4643 Lake Park avenue, and Miss Margaret Etta Nissen, 27, 4641½ Lake Park avenue, won the distinction yesterday of obtaining the first marriage license in Cook county under the new Saltiel hygienic marriage law. Moore presented Deputy Clerk John J. O'Brien with the proper physician's certificate and laboratory reports showing that he and Miss Nissen are free of venereal disease.

The second license under the new law was issued to Thomas P. Wyman, 32, of New York, and Miss Marion Gilman, 27, of 34 East Bellevue place, an instructor in social service at Loyola university and daughter of George P. Gilman, president of the Rotary Seal company. No licenses were issued Thursday, the day the law went into effect, after a record breaking rush for licenses Wednesday to avoid terms of the new act.

1937 DEFICIT IS NEAR 3 BILLION; ESTIMATES OFF

U. S. Treasury in Red for Seventh Year.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 2.—[Special.]—With his treasury in the red for the seventh consecutive year Uncle Sam closed his books for the 1937 fiscal year on Wednesday with a deficit of nearly 3 billion dollars.

The official figures, issued by the treasury today, place the deficit at 2 billion 707 millions, but this showing was attained only by excluding 104 millions applied to the reduction of the national debt. Inclusion of this item brings the deficit to 2 billion 811 millions. In 1936 the debt retirement item was 405 millions. Allocation of an equivalent amount to debt retirement in 1937 would have brought the deficit to 3 billion 112 millions.

Estimates Wide of Mark.

President Roosevelt's estimate proved wide of the mark. In his January budget message he estimated total revenue for 1937 at 5 billions 828 millions. Actually it was 5 billions 294 millions. Mr. Roosevelt overshot the mark by 534 millions. His alibi was that income tax evaders and avoiders had deprived the government of that much revenue, whereupon he launched his investigation of tax evasion and avoidance.

The investigation has disclosed nothing that has not been going on for years with the knowledge of the treasury, with the amount of taxes involved an infinitesimal fraction of the half billion dollars by which tax revenue failed to measure up to expectations.

On expenditures the President in January estimated 8 billion 76 millions. They actually were 8 billion 1 million with the sinking fund payment excluded.

Makes Revised Statement.

On April 6 the President made a revised estimate on the basis of economies he projected. At that time he overestimated revenue only 70 millions, but he underestimated expenditures 220 millions, his economies having failed to materialize. The deficit turns out to be half a billion dollars greater than he estimated in January and 150 millions greater than he forecast in April.

In January, 1934, the President predicted a balanced budget in 1936. That year the deficit was 4 billions 361 millions. His first 1937 prediction was made in January, 1936, when he said the 1937 deficit would be 1 billion 98 millions and the public debt would touch 31 billions 351 millions.

With the President's estimates so wide of the mark his forecast of a deficit of only 418 millions in the fiscal year just begun is called in question. Representative Bertrand H. Snell, Republican leader of the house predicts a deficit of 2 billions.

Debt Over 36 Billions.

The official figures place the public debt on Wednesday at 36 billions 425 millions, an increase of 2 billion, 646 millions over a year ago. In the fifth year of recovery, with the national income having risen from 40 billions to 70 billions, the nation has total obligations, direct and indirect, aggregating more than 43 billions. According to Mr. Roosevelt there is no need of worrying till the debt gets up around 70 billions.

The world war increased our debt about 25 billions. In the eleven years following the war the debt was reduced 10½ billions. Since 1930 it has increased 20 billion 600 millions, of which increase 14 billion 200 millions has occurred in the last three years.

The official figures show that the purchase and sterilization of gold caused a depletion of 1 billion 8 millions in the treasury's general fund. It was this constantly increasing volume of inactive gold that compelled the extraordinary borrowing by the treasury last month. This policy of segregating the gold purchased by the treasury was adopted last December in order to prevent it from entering into the credit structure and promoting inflation.

Morgenthau's Explanation.

Explaining a 475 million dollar increase in general operating expenditures, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau said:

"The increases in expenditures were 155 million dollars under the social security act, about 180 million dollars for expansion of the general public works program, 22 million dollars for the national defense, 117 million dollars for interest on the public debt, and about 85 million dollars chiefly in departmental. The decreases were 100 million dollars on account of expenses of the civilian conservation corps, 44 million dollars on account of the postal deficiency, and 10 million dollars on account of agricultural adjustment program.

"Expenditures for recovery and relief were 160 million greater than the expenditures in 1936 due almost entirely to the expenditures made during the late summer and fall to relieve suffering caused by severe drouth conditions in many sections of the country. About 165 million was spent for this purpose. The net repayments in the revolving funds exceeded those of last year by 166 million."

DEMOCRATIC BOSSES BAIL AIDS INDICTED IN VOTE FRAUD CASE

Kansas City, Mo., July 2.—(AP)—The names of portly T. J. [Boss] Pendergast and the man most likely to succeed to his political power, James M. Pendergast, a nephew, were swept today into the ever widening investigation of election vote fraud cases by a federal grand jury.

The two actively supplied funds for bonding many of the forty-six defendants already convicted, the grand jury stated in an open letter to Federal Judge Merrill E. Otis, and financed trial expenses.

"True," Pendergast immediately told newspaper men in response to inquiries, but he quickly asked: "If there is anything wrong with that why don't they say so?"

Pendergast is head of the Kansas City Democratic organization, which last November helped roll up a majority of more than 100,000 here for Democratic nominees.

The grand jury said James Pendergast put up $60,000 as security.

Witnesses at the trials testified there was a conspiracy to defraud voters by tearing up ballots, changing Republican votes to Democratic, not counting Republican votes, and driving honest counters away by threatening them with such things as "a one way ride."

COLOR IN ABANDON

By CALEB

I KNOW a boy who loves eggs but can't eat them. They are not good for him. Coffee throws an acquaintance of mine into considerable discomfort. A seventeen-year old girl cannot remain at all in the presence of cooked chicken of any kind.

People have learned much of what food does to them and for them.

They are only beginning to learn that color, too, has great capacity to affect them favorably and unfavorably.

National advertisers who spend thousands of dollars to place a colored advertisement before a magazine or newspaper audience know something of the "laws" and influences of color. A certain food advertiser knows it is inadvisable for him to combine green with his product. Advertisers of cosmetics can make their advertising ineffective or effective through their choice of colors.

Neon signs may be had in many colors. But we are surrounded by only those colors with the greatest visibility.

Airplanes avoid the use of yellow in their interiors. You may like yellow. But airlines are concerned with what your stomach likes, and stomachs, in their peculiar imperfect way, are not partial to yellow.

If you look at the baby rattles in all the stores, you will see that bright cerise is the color by far the most popular. Babies have not had to submit to formal questionnaires from producers of products, yet it is known they "go for" cerise.

Color does a great deal for the American woman and her children. Many people have extremely definite color prejudices. Most people have a certain love of color. That is one reason for the almost universal appeal of a beautiful flower garden. People who love color should walk periodically through our piece goods section on the second floor. Color runs riot there. It is a stimulating experience, even for a man who may not know taffeta from taffy.

Today much of the beauty elsewhere in the world comes to be reflected in fabrics, and since our piece goods section is the most extensive and the most daring in the country, it is always, and particularly in the summer, a glory to behold!

NAZIS CONVICT 2 PASTORS TRIED FOR DEFYING LAW

Both Fined; Two Other Defendants Freed.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 2.—Four members of the defiant Confessional [Evangelical Lutheran] church, which has been battling the Nazis for freedom of the Protestant creed, were tried today before a Nazi court, and contrary to general expectations only two were convicted. They were fined $240 each, but told they could go to jail for thirty days instead of paying the fine, if they choose to do so. Two were acquitted for lack of evidence. Three of the four were pastors.

The charges, under which the three pastors and one church attorney had been in jail for two weeks, were identical—that they had violated decrees published by Dr. Wilhelm Frick, minister of interior, forbidding the reading from a pulpit of the names of persons leaving the church and prohibiting the passing of a collection plate without special permission from authorities.

Church Lawyer Cleared.

The Rev. Mr. Niesel, who was expelled from his parish in Luebeck and later arrested in Dahlem, a fashionable Berlin suburb, and the Rev. Mr. von Arnimm-Luetzlow were fined. Those acquitted were the Rev. Gerhard Jacobi of the fashionable Emperor Wilhelm Memorial church in Berlin, and Attorney Ehlers, legal adviser of the Confessional church.

The Rev. Mr. Jacobi has been the butt of Nazi opposition for years. They assert he is one-quarter Jewish.

Niemoeller Still in Custody.

Great relief was felt in Confessional circles tonight when the sentences became known. Approximately 60 members of the Confessional movement still were in custody, including the Rev. Martin Niemoeller, wartime submarine commander and militant leader of the Confessionals, who was arrested yesterday.

The Rev. Stewart Herman, pastor of the American church in Berlin, will go to Oxford, England, to attend the Universal Council for Life and Work of the churches, which opens July 13.

Since the German church ministry ruled that no German-Protestant delegates would be allowed to go to Oxford, the American pastor was chosen to represent a Methodist group.

Chicago To Be Represented.

The religious crisis in Germany and the situations arising from church and state relations in several other countries have led many widely known churchmen to call the coming Oxford conference "the most important religious event since the reformation."

The conference will attempt to define the relation of church to state. It will also attempt to outline the relation of religion to social and economic problems generally. The council will officially represent every communion—Greek Orthodox, Anglican, Lutheran, and Protestant—except the Catholic church. The Catholic church, however, will have unofficial observers present. Chicago will be represented by at least a dozen denominational leaders

British Medium Horace S. Hambling in trance as he delivers "spirit message" from departed Chinaman, who says he is too busy to talk.

Lily Dale, N. Y., July 2.—(AP)—A Chinaman's "ghost" which Spiritualist leaders said they asked to speak for a machine called a spirit recorder gave them the busy signal today. Members of the Spiritualists' summer camp here said they had been curtly informed by Luan Fu, the departed spirit, that he was too busy to talk for experiments. "I'm busy right now, but give the people my blessing and tell them I promise to come again," was the message as spoken by a British medium, Horace S. Hambling.

SENATE PASSES FARM TENANT BILL FOR SOUTH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 2.—[Special.]—The senate today passed the administration's farm tenant bill, which has been assailed as a measure to put the government in the landlord business and to offer "land poor" Democrats in the backward states of the south a chance to unload on the government.

Originally intended to authorize a billion dollar bond issue, the bill, as passed today, was cut down to a mere beginning at the demand of economy advocates. It authorizes appropriation of only $10,000,000 the first year, $25,000,000 the second, and $50,000,000 a year thereafter.

The senate passed the administration's bill, which was introduced by Senator John H. Bankhead [D., Ala.], and then substituted it for the house measure. The house bill also authorized an outlay of $10,000,000 for the first year, $25,000,000 for the second, and $50,000,000 a year thereafter, but only in the form of loans from the farm credit administration. Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace objected to the loan provisions.

The senate bill sets up a Farmers' Home corporation with authority to acquire real or personal property, to improve, develop and maintain the same, to sell it on long term contracts or to lease it for periods of not more than five years. The rate of interest to be charged tenants and share croppers who purchase such land from the government cannot exceed 3 per cent. The house and senate differences will be adjusted in conference.

SOUGHT 17 YEARS AS SLAYER; GETS ROBBERY TERM

Walter Nicholson, 42 years old, who was captured in Huntington, W. Va., on May 6 after he had been sought for 17 years in the slaying of Chief of Police Harry C. Magers of Elmhurst in 1920, was sentenced to one to 14 years in the penitentiary yesterday by Judge William J. Fulton in Du Page county Circuit court at Wheaton. He pleaded guilty to robbery with a gun.

The lesser charge was brought against Nicholson because the robbery witnesses were more certain in their identification than those who saw the shooting of the police official, according to State's Attorney Russell W. Keeney of Du Page county.

Nicholson yesterday admitted that he was one of five men who robbed a group of Elmhurst residents as they were returning from a dance in the suburb. Chief Magers was shot down by two men shortly after the robbery when he battled them in St. Charles road, just west of York street. Nicholson denied he was one of these men, who authorities believed belonged to the robbery gang.

BANDIT SHOOTS IN TAVERN FIGHT; PEDESTRIAN HIT

A passing pedestrian was slightly wounded early today in an exchange of gunfire between a bandit and the owner of a tavern at 2426 Sheffield avenue. The victim was George Krapp, 32 years old, 2247 Sheffield avenue, a butcher. He received two shotgun slugs in the left wrist and was taken to the Alexian Brothers hospital.

The bandit with two companions menaced a dozen patrons in the tavern, including several women, Carl Eckel, 810 Buckingham place, the bartender, and Otto Getz, the owner. They took $108 from the till.

Getz suddenly opened fire on them with a revolver. One of the robbers fired at him with his shotgun. The charge crashed through the outer door as Krapp was passing. No one else was hurt. The gunmen escaped.

Nazi Girl Glides 18½ Hours and Claims World's Record

KOENIGSBURG, Germany, July 2.—(AP)—Inge Wetzel, a physical culture student, claimed a new world's glider flying record for women today: 18 hours 31 minutes of sustained flight. She took off Wednesday evening.

1 STRICKEN, PLOT TRIAL GOES ON WITH 11 JURORS

The trial of two lawyers and an ex-convict on charges of conspiracy to present false accident claims proceeded yesterday before Judge John Prystalski in the Criminal court with a jury of 11 men after one juror, Thomas Maloney, 56 years old, 3039 Arthington street, became ill. Attorneys for both sides agreed to try the case with eleven men for the first time in the recollection of court veterans.

The defendants are Attorneys Henry Mitgang and Samuel Baskin, who have offices at 77 West Washington street, and Dennis Xenos, 38 years old, 6500 Ellis avenue, who served a penitentiary term in 1932 on a similar charge. Two other defendants, Dr. John P. Casseros, 35, 4736 Magnolia avenue, and William B. Hall, 32, 1740 North Luna avenue, obtained severances to become state witnesses.

The indictment against the attorneys and Xenos charges they aided Hall and Miss Pearl Schwolow, 21, 1705 North Karlov avenue, in presenting false claims against the Chicago Surface lines growing out of a street car accident at State and Cedar streets.

Stirring Events of Past Relived in a Vivid Novel

Kenneth Roberts Writes Memorable Book.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Northwest Passage," by Kenneth Roberts. [Doubleday Doran, $2.75.] Published Thursday. July selection of the Book of the Month Club.

THIS "Northwest Passage" is a novel which covers most of the known English world of the late 18th century, chronicles a hero of gargantuan proportions [both good and bad], and brings alive scenes and people from the forgotten pages of history. It is an enormous tale in every sense of the word — in length, in breadth of action and in intensity. That it is truly a rewriting of history as well as a work of fiction is evidenced by the limited edition, which consists of two volumes, the first the novel itself, the second a compilation of the historical material on which the essentials of the novel are based. Far from making Kenneth Roberts' work seem a lighter task, this compilation of documentary evidence only proves his skill in reconstructing history.

Kenneth Roberts.

The tale begins in 1759. The chronicler of the book—it is written in the first person—is a student at Harvard college. He is eager to be an artist and draw Indians. A drinking party forces him to leave school, and a speaking out against corrupt government [overheard] forces him to leave his native Kittery, after which he joins Rogers' Rangers almost by chance.

The most exciting part of the book is the tale of the raid on St. Francis by the Rangers—weeks of starvation and superhuman endurance. The pages which describe that raid are as tense and as lyric as a taut harp in a gale.

After that there are other adventures almost as nerve-tensing, and descriptions of the conquest of wilderness, fashionable society in London, Indians and black-hearted white men. While these parts are excellent they are not equal to that first chronicle.

The young artist goes to London, and Mr. Roberts recreates a time and a place with brilliance and fidelity. Then he comes back to join Rogers in his dream of finding a northwest passage, and to paint more of the Indians which call to his pastels. Pioneer life fills the exciting pages.

"Northwest Passage" is a memorable and impressive book. But it lacks true greatness although it has the vital organs of greatness. It is told with sincerity. Its characters are in no sense stock figures pulled on the author's puppet strings. It is a tremendous story and it is written well. It lacks only genius to make it one of the greatest of modern historical novels.

Four Books Analyzing the Civil War in Spain.

"Behind the Spanish Barricades," by John Langdon-Davies. [McBride, $2.75.]

"Invertebrate Spain," by José Ortega y Gasset. [Norton, $2.75.]

"Spain in Arms, 1937," by Anna Louise Strong. [Holt, $1.]

Almost a year has passed since the world heard the first word that Spain was torn by bloody civil war. Day by day in the columns of newspapers journalists have recounted the horror of humanity unleashed, brother against brother, even nation against nation in this testing ground which diplomats fear will lead to the next world conflagration.

What is the truth behind the news accounts? What are this bloody conflict's meanings, its causes, its probable results? Four authors of varying abilities give us their interpretations.

From the standpoint of the rebels, F. Theo Rogers, Manila newspaper publisher, brings his message after nine months in Spain, both in "red" and "white" territory. Written hastily, and with the bitter passion of a fanatic, Mr. Rogers' book admits a few Fascist reprisals but contends that Franco is the hope of civilization, the color bearer of life against destruction, communism, and anarchy in Europe and the world.

Rogers says he went to Spain as a humane liberal, believing in the loyalist government. He came away still believing in democracy, but not for Spain, which he insists needs the iron of Franco's rule to bring peace out of chaos. There is no government there, he says — all Spain is ruled by the "Red" terror.

Langdon-Davies and Miss Strong present the opposite view. The former, a noted British journalist, and like Rogers a student of Spanish life, decries the nonintervention pact, which he contends is observed by no Fascist nation and which is being used blindly by democratic countries to kill democracy in Spain.

He pulls no punches in his account of loyalist excesses. But from the standpoint of intelligence he presents a more understandable interpretation of the aims and desires of the great mass of Spanish people, oppressed for centuries and striving to retain a republican government won by ballots. This is the same report Miss Strong, an American, brings home, but her book, a small brochure, has the same defect as Rogers, violent partisanship.

For the keenest insight into Spanish character and the centuries old lack of cohesion between the various economic, patriotic, and racial groups which make up Spain, a Spaniard, Ortega, is the best authority. His series of essays, written before the revolt, cast not only a great light over the entire war but present many observations adaptable to our own country and its present problems. His "Invertebrate Spain" is a psychological history of that land written by its greatest philosopher and interpreter.

A Psychological Study of Clashing Emotions.

"The Antagonists," by Paul Hervey Fox. [Holt, $2.50.]

Across the academic horizon of a professor of mathematics comes a woman who symbolizes the physical and material he has not known. He, 41 years old, has been content in his groping for the ultimate principle to coördinate time and space. She, 34, is worldly, indolent, incapable of fidelity.

Clash is inevitable. Julia can respond to the sudden surge of Joseph's emotion, but she cannot comprehend the abstract corners of his mind. When he asks her to run away from her husband, she does so, casually, for the sake of a new experience. Julia and Joseph go to Bermuda; when her husband is killed they return to a farm in Maine and are married. There Julia is faithless again and the book ends on a tragic note, Joseph's search for his mathematical principle abandoned, and Julia's libido confined. This is a well written psychological study.

Denmark's Way of Life Is Admirably Described.

"Denmark: Kingdom of Reason," by Agnes Rothery. [Viking, $3.]

It is a delightful paradox that the native land of Hans Christian Andersen, whose fairy tales have entertained the world's children, should be the hardest headed little country in all Europe. While her neighbors quarrel Denmark makes butter, raises pork and sells eggs, manufactures porcelain, and catches fish, and is prosperous. While the world is struggling through a depression she falls back on an enlightened social security system that puts others to shame. While capitalism fights to keep its place elsewhere her coöperative buying and marketing system is a boon to the farmer and the city dweller alike.

These Volumes Offer Something That's Different

One Fresh and Amusing; Other Fantastic.

TWO new books which are as different from others as hippogriffs are different from the inmates of the zoo have been published this week.

Journal of a Soldier Makes Gay Reading.

"My War with the United States," by Ludwig Bemelmans. [Viking, $2.50.] Published yesterday.

Ludwig Bemelmans of New York, known to thousands of children as one of their most delightful illustrators and writers, famous decorator of Jascha Heifetz's studio and the designer of the scenery for "Noah," as well as author of many remembered magazine articles, started to America in December, 1914, at the age of 16, with two pistols and much ammunition to fight the Indians.

When the United States entered the world war Ludwig Bemelmans, only a little more enlightened about us, became an American soldier. He kept a journal during the months that he spent at Fort Ontario, at Fort Porter, where he helped care for the insane, and at an officers' training camp outside Atlanta.

That diary, translated into English, is now published and it has the freshness of a sprig of edelweiss from the author's uncle's mountain top town of Klobenstein, which he used to remember consciously inch by inch whenever he thought he, too, must go mad with his charges. He could bring back the Tirol with a toasted piece of wooden orange crate because it smelled just like his sawmill there, and he would call long distance on the telephone because the sound was exactly like the sound of the cogwheel railroad to Klobenstein with its electric locomotive.

He found the American army and the "patriotic ladies" who needed soldiers for their entertainments, and "Good American Dreck" and his fellow men all amusing and novel, and he tells about them uniquely as when he says of southern whisky: "I drink a glass of it and it shakes me like a wet dog."

"My War with the United States" is FUN. It is illustrated by the author.

Charles G. Finney's Venture in Fantasy.

"The Unholy City," by Charles G. Finney. [Vanguard, $2.] Published Wednesday.

Charles G. Finney won the first National Book award [made by the booksellers of the United States] with "The Circus of Dr. Lao," which was chosen as the most original book of the year. That book bred passionate literary swordsmen for and against. All the duellers agreed it was nutty—its adherents that it had the madness of genius, its opponents that it was plain screwy.

Now Mr. Finney has taken a citizen of that mythical Abalone [which many said was Arizona], landed him in the mythical unholy city of Heilar-wey [a fantastic New York], and taken him through a day of adventure among its quaint customs. Those customs are travesties on life as it is lived today.

There is almost a sea of szelack, a drink which turns the hair of a Negro bright yellow; worship of the drachma; many attempts [unsuccessful] at seduction; a tiger wrecking the city; politics which result in three brilliant plans for the welfare of Heilarwey, the Ausgethrowai, the Rausmitemall, and the Ultima Ratio Regnum plans, all of which propose to exterminate the dissatisfied portions of the population; taxicabs that make fifty miles in ten minutes; a trial of a Negro; a building housing a foundation devoted to the business of keeping alive the richest and oldest man in Floreat Go-Lee, and other phenomena, none of which, according to my lights, have what it takes to make the best quality of mind titillating satire.

STATE MARSHAL JOINS FIGHT ON FIREWORKS SALE

Parents Urged to Forbid Use by Children.

Fire fighters joined yesterday with civic and patriotic organizations and local officials in the united campaign against the sale of fireworks; hoping to save countless lives by insuring a safe and sane observance of independence day tomorrow and Monday.

State Fire Marshal Sherman V. Coultas, president of the fire marshals' section of the National Fire Protective association, at Springfield yesterday named a committee to draft a uniform program for all states to confine the sale and use of fireworks to supervised and licensed public displays.

Vividly Points Out Toll.

'During the revolutionary war in which America won her fight for independence," Marshal Coultas declared, "4,044 Americans were killed in battle and 6,004 were disabled. During the last thirty years 4,290 persons met death in Fourth of July celebration and at least 96,000 have been injured. It is time for a united action by all states."

This was the same message offered by D. Melville Carr, director of life saving and accident prevention of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross. He urged all holiday observers to avoid fireworks and also to take precautions against drownings and trafic deaths.

Urges Parents to Coöperate.

A last minute word of advice was also given parents by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health. He said that if they would prevent their children from using fireworks or firearms in the holiday celebration the number of accidents from these causes would be kept to a minimum.

Instead of allowing children to have such dangerous toys, all local agencies urged parents to send their youngsters to the gigantic public fireworks display tomorrow night at Soldiers' field, put on by the Cook County council of the American Legion. A beauty queen to reign over the mammoth spectacle will be chosen tonight.

Judge Denounces Vendor.

Judge Eugene J. Holland denounced v ndors and manufacturers of fireworks who make their product available to children when he continued until July 9 a charge against Charles Dumenowski, 27 years old, 1109 North Ashland avenue, a storekeeper, of violating the anti-fireworks ordinance.

Judge Holland also fined Henry Soref, 50, 5913 North Clark street, $5 for selling fireworks to a boy 16 years old. Soref was fined an additional $5 for being abusive to policemen who arrested him.

Homer J. Byrd, superintendent, and A. J. Meadel of the state department of registration and education visited fireworks sales stands yesterday at Harlem avenue and Irving Park boulevard in Norwood Park. They found crackers longer than the two inches allowed by law, and ordered them returned to the distributors, the United Safety Fireworks Manufacturing company, in Franklin Park. They then visited the United Safety company and warned its managers, who promised to comply with the law.

TWO FINED FOR DRIVING ACROSS GARFIELD PARK

Two motorists who drove across the lawns of Garfield park to the lagoon Thursday night were fined for reckless driving by Judge George B. Weiss in Safety court yesterday.

One of the motorists, Martin J. Hassell, 27 years old, manager of a restaurant at 2144 South Cicero avenue, drove into the lagoon. He was fined $10 and costs and ordered not to drive for fifteen days. The other, Prof. Philip C. Huntley, 50 years old, 281 Northwood drive, Riverside, a teacher at Armour Institute of Technology, halted his car on the lawn at the edge of the lagoon. He was fined $3 and costs.

Hassell said he had just bought a new car and that it got out of control at the point where Washington boulevard swings around the lagoon west of Homan avenue. Prof. Huntley said he was so startled by Hassell's driving that he, too, neglected to turn and followed him into the park.

PAROLEE AND PAL SENTENCED FOR HOLDUP MURDER

Emil Trimarco, 19 years old, 3133 Polk street, who was paroled from Pontiac reformatory last September, was sentenced to life in the penitentiary by Judge Peter M. Schwaba yesterday for the murder of Frank Panfil, 55 years old, during a holdup in Panfil's delicatessen at 3756 Irving Park boulevard on April 11. Trimarco admitted firing the fatal shot.

Harold Julian, 18 years old, 3229 Flournoy street, Trimarco's companion, was sentenced to 25 years in prison. Both pleaded guilty to murder.

Mrs. Panfil, widow of the slain man, was in court when the two were sentenced. "I can show you no mercy," Judge Schwaba told Trimarco. "You were given a second chance and refused to take it. Further, you inveigled another young man into crime."

Fireworks Worth $1,200 Consumed in Noisy Blaze

Fireworks valued at $1,200 were destroyed last night in a noisy, spectacular blaze in the hardware store of John Karjalla, 675 McAlister avenue, Waukegan. No one was injured. Karjalla told police he believed small boys threw a match into the midst of the fireworks, which he had planned to start selling today.

TAXICAB STRIKES AND KILLS BOY SITTING ON CURB

Driver Jumps Out and Flees Scene.

A boy 6 years old, sitting on a curbstone at 1800 North Clark street, was struck by a Yellow taxicab and fatally injured yesterday afternoon. He was dead when taken to the Evangelical Deaconess hospital. Several hours later he was identified as Robert Martin, 334 Concord place, by his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Martin, wife of a WPA worker, who came to the Hudson avenue police station to report her son missing.

After the accidents, the driver, identified from records of the company as G. F. Duffy, jumped out of his cab, leaned over the boy, muttered "O, my God," and dashed into adjacent Lincoln park. Witnesses heard him threaten to drown himself as he fled toward the lake. He had not been found at midnight.

The Martins have two other children, a son 11, and a daughter 5.

Woman Loses Control of Car.

Mrs. Alberta O'Grady, 30 years old, 5442 Glenwood avenue, lost control of her automobile when driving south in Lake Shore drive near Lawrence avenue yesterday. The car jumped the curb, crashed through a small tree, and then ran through eight WPA workers who were at work there.

Six jumped out of the way, but Silas Brown, 59 years old, colored, 1930 Lake street, was seriously injured, and Frank Romano, 639 Scott street, was slightly hurt. Mrs. O'Grady was arrested on a charge of reckless driving.

Death Driver Ordered Held.

At the inquest yesterday into the death of Miss Olga Globis, 30 years old, 1308 South 58th court, Cicero, loop department store saleswoman, who was fatally injured by an automobile Sunday at Cicero avenue and 13th street, Cicero, a coroner's jury recommended that Theodore Wodecki, 28, 5117 West 29th street, Cicero, driver of the car, be held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter.

Witnesses testified that Wodecki passed another car beside a street car which had stopped when he struck the young woman. James Hayner of the Y. M. C. A. hotel, 826 South Wabash avenue, testified he was riding with Wodecki and that they fled from the scene following the crash. A squad car, passing the scene, gave chase and captured Wodecki.

Trafic Toll Continues.

From June 30, the day on which the state legislature, because of a feud over patronage, passed up its last opportunity to pass a drivers' license bill which has been found effective in reducing motor deaths in other states, to 4 p. m. yesterday, five persons were killed and sixty-one injured in trafic accidents in Chicago. Between Jan. 1 and 4 p. m. yesterday 519 persons had been killed in trafic accidents in Cook county, according to the coroner's office. During the same period 404 of these were killed and 10,705 injured by automobiles in Chicago.

MILLION TO USE CHICAGOLAND'S ROADS OVER 4TH

Holiday Crowds Start on 3 Day Outings.

BY HAL FOUST.

At dusk yesterday on the outskirts of Chicago, automobiles with outing equipment on running boards and bumpers were heading for the lakes and streams of the north woods. It was the beginning of a July 4 weekend trafic movement expected to exceed all previous records. Estimates indicate a million motorists to be on the roads of Chicagoland during the three day holiday ending Monday night.

At dawn this morning more departures were scheduled and the outgoing stream will continue through the afternoon. Independence day to motorized America means independence of distance in selecting a site for an outing.

Many Are Fishermen.

As in previous years, fishermen comprised a large proportion of the parties leaving Chicago yesterday for Wisconsin and Michigan resorts.

The weather forecast for today and tomorrow was favorable in most of the midwestern states, but showers were forecast for upper Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Iowa.

This morning and this afternoon, family parties will take leave of their homes for a week-end away from familiar scenes. On driving from Chicago, they will meet streams of visitors coming into the city to spend the holidays with friends or relatives here, or to enjoy the city's recreational facilities and Lake Michigan's breezes.

The Chicago Safety council warned that more than usual caution is demanded for driving in the heavy trafic this week-end. Twenty-five lives were lost in automobile accidents in the metropolitan area on the Fourth of July week-end last year.

Suggests Safety Hints.

Chief Walter Williams of the Illinois highway police offered these suggestions for reducing the risks of motor travel:

1. On four lane roads, keep to the right except when passing.
2. Don't tarry on busy routes. If you don't want to keep up with the crowd, if you're merely spending a few leisurely hours with no particular destination, try the side roads.
3. Refrain from alcoholic liquors and avoid extreme fatigue.
4. Don't try to drive faster than the crowd; the risk isn't worth the little time that is saved.

Railroads this week-end will be running extra trains and special sections to their regular trains, and airlines and excursion boats forecast record breaking business, but the big volume of holiday trafic will be on the highways. This is expected to be bigger than ever before because there are more automobiles and better roads, and because of the growing public appetite for longer and more frequent pleasure trips.

SUITOR SHELVED AS FATHER AND GIRL FLY TO PARIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 2.—George Russell Carr, vice president and general manager of the Dearborn Chemical company of Chicago, whose air dash from London to Scotland yesterday ended his daughter's plan for an elopement wedding at Gretna Green, left Croydon airport this morning in a British Airways plane for Paris.

The daughter, Martha, 27 years old, disconsolate over her broken romance, went with him.

Robert Strautz-Hope, 34 years old, Hungarian, a member of a New York stock brokerage firm, with whom Martha had made the elopement dash, was unaware of their departure. When informed of it he said his plans were uncertain.

"If I knew where they are going," he said, "it is quite likely I would follow them. I want to meet Mr. Carr and straighten this matter out."

SIX BANDITS GRAB $48,000 IN JEWELS AS GUARD STANDS BY

New York, July 2.—(AP)—Six bandits took two bracelets and two rings valued at $48,000 from Mrs. James V. Forrestal, a broker's wife, early today in front of her Beekman hill apartment after waiting in a parked car for her return from a night club.

Mrs. J. V. Forrestal

As she drove up to the apartment in the chauffeured car of her escort, Richard B. W. Hall, a broker, four men suddenly appeared alongside, demanding her jewelry. She turned over the gems as a fifth man appeared and ordered his companions to "hurry it up."

Another holdup man had stuck his hand into Hall's pocket and found nothing. He missed $700 in another pocket.

A private watchman saw the robbery, but was powerless to interfere because he could not get a pistol permit.

BLAME DENHARDT FOR LOUISVILLE DEATH OF GIRL

Louisville, Ky., July 2.—(AP)—Brig. Gen. Henry H. Denhardt was accused of causing the death of Miss Patricia Wilson, 25 years old, whose body was found atop of an elevator in a hotel here a year ago, in a suit asking $70,000 damages filed today in Circuit court by Edward C. Langan, administrator of the girl's estate.

Denhardt, former adjutant general and lieutenant governor of Kentucky, recently was tried in Henry county on a charge of having murdered his fiancée, Mrs. Verna Garr Taylor. The jury disagreed and the case was reset for a second trial next fall.

In the Langan suit the petition filed by Attorney James T. Robinson alleged the portly general "assaulted, beat and bruised" Miss Wilson, "causing her to fall down an elevator shaft in the hotel.

Contending Denhardt's "malicious acts were the proximate cause" of the girl's death, Langan, public administrator and guardian of Jefferson county, seeks $50,000 for Miss Wilson's estate and $20,000 punitive damages.

Reached at his home in Bowling Green, Ky., Denhardt was quoted as describing the suit as "absurd, laughable, and ridiculous." He laughed and added: "That's just one of those things."

"I never heard of the girl and was not in Louisville at the time. I was not at the hotel and no one saw me," he said.

Street Workmen Paid Off; PWA Asphalt Exhausted

Commissioner of Public Works Oscar E. Hewitt announced yesterday that 39 street repair gangs, comprising about 1,000 men, have been paid off because the PWA contract for purchase of asphalt expired Wednesday and no more paving material is available. Under the arrangement the government provided material and unskilled labor and the city skilled laborers.

Jury Ponders Fate of 21 Accused of Aircraft Plot

Los Angeles, Cal., July 2.—[Special.]—Fate of the 21 men charged with conspiracy to seize and destroy the Douglas Aircraft company factory at Santa Monica was undetermined late today as the jury of seven women and five men was unable to reach a verdict after 31 hours of deliberation. Charges were preferred against the men in connection with the sitdown strike of 400 workers last February.

Judge Refuses Alimony to Dog Fancier's Wife

Judge John C. Lewe refused yesterday to award temporary alimony to Mrs. Mabel H. Viner in her divorce suit against Joseph W. Viner, 909 North La Grange road, La Grange Park, a dog fancier. Mrs. Viner charged cruelty and Viner filed a cross bill charging adultery. In a preliminary hearing on alimony yesterday his attorney, Robert Cantwell Jr., admitted that Viner struck his wife on March 31, the day they separated, but did so because she admitted misconduct with an unidentified man who spent the night at his home while Viner was in Denver. Letters supported the testimony of misconduct.

WOMAN, 90, FALLS TO DEATH.

Mrs. Helen Kamberos, 90 years old, 4348 Ellis avenue, a widow, fell to her death yesterday from the second floor apartment in which she lived with her son, Nicholas. The Hyde Park police said she apparently mistook a large, open window for a door.

SURFACE LINES WANT TRANSFERS WITH 'L' IN LOOP

Point Out Way to Save Passengers' Time.

A proposal that the interline transfer system in effect between the elevated and surface lines systems should include interchange of transfers in the loop district was made yesterday by surface lines engineers at a hearing before the Illinois commerce commission.

The commission is conducting hearings on the city's petition for extension of the present limited interline transfer arrangement to give a universal transfer system outside the downtown business district.

Want District Included.

Although the surface lines have opposed the principle of interline transfers and fought the inauguration of the system, its engineers assert that if a universal system is to be adopted as the city demands it should include the loop district as well as other sections of the city.

Allen Traiser, surface lines engineer, testified that it takes from eleven to fourteen minutes for an elevated train to go around the loop and that elevated passengers could save time and walking if they were allowed to board the nearest street car and transfer to trains leaving the loop. The present system does not allow transfers in the downtown business district.

No Comment from "L."

Elevated officials have not yet had the opportunity of expressing their position on the surface lines proposal. Assistant Corporation Counsel James J. Danaher, who is conducting the case for the city, said after the hearing that if such an arrangement were put into effect the surface lines would be permitted to share in revenues from loop passengers which now go exclusively to the elevated.

The commission announced that it had extended the interline transfer arrangement between the elevated and the Chicago Motor Coach company to Sept. 30. The arrangement, ordered for a trial period, would have expired July 18.

LEGISLATIVE HIGH JINKS.

The Illinois legislators seem to have made the last night of their session a noisy if not a merry one. Reports indicate that in the robustness of their final fling they almost did as well as any large student body of one of our institutions of higher learning could do in celebrating a great football victory in the theaters, restaurants, and streets of the city nearest by.

If distinctions are to be noted, it may be observed that the disorderly members were annoying nobody much but themselves, although doing the dignity of their assembly no good, whereas the gentlemen from the institutions of higher learning have their fun at the expense of every other person they encounter.

Traditionally these high jinks in the crude manner will mark the closing night session in nearly every state legislature. The confusion is wild and frequently use is made of it to kill or pass bills. The shrewder members of the legislature do not ignore the fact that their lighter headed associates can't possibly know what is going on.

It may be remembered that when the Delaware legislature adjourned this year Gov. Richard C. McMullen spent some days trying to find out whether the assembly had passed a 7 million dollar school appropriation bill without which there would be no money to run the state educational system. The statesmen were in a roistering mood and on the final night the bill was shunted from the house to the senate, there amended and supposedly sent back. But the subsequent record was clouded in mystery. Some of the legislators thought the bill had been passed and some were sure it had been forgotten. We don't know what Gov. McMullen finally discovered, but the episode was one familiar to legislative last nights.

As a minor incident here in Illinois, it once took nearly a week to find out whether the assembly had abolished the grand jury system, because at the time the bill was supposed to have been passed too many members were trying to knock the glass pendants off the great chandeliers in the hall of the house by throwing missils at them and too many others were trying to avoid being cut on the tops of their bald heads from flying glass for any one to know whether a vote had been had or not.

Among the comments on the work of the Illinois legislature was one from Senator T. V. Smith of the University of Chicago faculty, who doubles in philosophy and lawmaking. He went serenely through the proceedings with a human eye to what was happening, and it was his opinion that, taken over a period of time, the representatives of the people were a commendable outfit of fellows constantly improving their work and that, even if perfectibility was not to be expected, the representative system was a credit to the nation. That's a philosophical view of a political necessity.

FREE PRESS AND EDITORIAL EMPLOYES.

Opposition by newspaper publishers to the policy of the closed shop is founded on considerations of greater importance to the public than to the publishers, since it concerns the right of the public to a free press. In other industries or enterprises objections to the closed shop are primarily economic. In the newspaper the issue raised is primarily that of freedom of utterance, a civil right guaranteed by the fundamental law of the republic and essential to the preservation of any democratic society.

But the recognition of this right imposes upon newspaper publishers a clear responsibility for its exercise with jealous regard for the rights and interests of their employés who, for the protection of the civil guaranty, are required to forego such material advantages as may be derived from the closed shop or other measures devised, wisely or unwisely, in the expectation of improving the economic conditions of employés.

In other words, newspaper publishers ought, in THE TRIBUNE'S opinion, to assume the obligation of giving to their editorial employés, voluntarily and as of right, every advantage in compensation and working conditions which they might reasonably hope to obtain through the adoption of the closed shop. It should be a guiding principle, to be followed in the fullest good faith within the circumstances of each newspaper enterprise, to maintain scales of pay and working conditions for editorial employés which will not be inferior in any material respect to those obtained by unionized employés in the most favored of the mechanical departments.

Editorial work of all categories is skilled work, requiring in the worker qualifications of mind and character, special aptitudes, knowledge, training and experience which are a valuable asset to the employed, the employer, and the reading public. It is both a private and public service of first rate importance which should be assured of voluntary, ungrudging recognition and appropriate compensation. Those who render this service should certainly not be permitted to suffer disadvantage from restraints upon the privileges of collective pressure enjoyed by other employés, restraint based upon the paramount public interest in a free press.

HALF DEPENDENT—HALF INDEPENDENT?

President Roosevelt has before him the bill appropriating a billion and a half dollars to be spent by Harry Hopkins on relief. There was a shadow of revolt against the amount and the manner in which it was to be turned over without congressional specifications. The administration prevailed and Mr. Hopkins will get his money.

Any one knowing that this sum has been appropriated might think the year was 1933. Then Mr. Roosevelt and his associates in government were dealing with what they called an emergency. The Hundred Days may still be remembered as a period of the most extraordinary legislation that ever went through congress.

Everything hung on one substantial peg. It was emergency. Congress was dizzy, but the administration was in high gear and recovery was promised within a year and a half. Nearly all this extraordinary legislation, marked "Hurry with the utmost dispatch," was intended to lapse by its own provisions within two or three years. It would not thereafter be needed.

All of us spoke of nothing except emergency. Nearly all administration measures started from that springboard and the wizardry was to bring order and general well-being out of scrambled finance, fading industry, and general pessimism in short order. The country was to see the difference between the sure touch of the master of the nation's destiny and what had been described as the vacillating, uncertain and timid procedure of the previous administration.

And now people may ask themselves what they have. Is it a depression or a carefully planned recovery? Have hard times been continued all through the administration which was to cure them so effectually, or have they been so carefully nourished that millions of people can exist now only by the same extraordinary measures of the support given them by the federal government beginning March, 1933?

Congressmen who could not understand the present situation, or said they couldn't, called attention to the fact that by the time Harry Hopkins had another billion and a half for his relief work the nation would have spent 14 billions on that particular item of administration. People know there has been a marked degree of recovery, although they see it retarded in so many instances by interference either directly chargeable to the federal administration or to agencies which it supports. The budget shows little evidence that there has been a marked change during the years of the present violently reformist administration. The national debt constantly increases, presenting the country with the dangers every such a dislocated fiscal system carries with it when it is permitted to continue.

Furthermore, the country is told that for the first time in its existence it must realize that there will continue to be a large number of the population that cannot be expected to gain employment and which will be too large for any of the ordinary methods of rescue from their inevitable and unendurable poverty. There are always unemployables, some of whom must be taken under the protection of the state or the community. But people are told that a large class of employable persons will not be able to earn their own living under any future conditions which can be foreseen.

The United States never before wrote despair across the future of so many millions of its able bodied men and women. People may naturally seek the cause for this. One fact which is unavoidable will show that recovery which was to be permanent and sound has for the first time produced a new class of able bodied dependents who must be taken in hand by the federal government and be forever its wards.

Such, at least, is the admission made by the federal administration when it demands the relief funds from congress. The creation of such a class is a particular achievement of the present government. Other governments, at other times, have gone through severe depressions in which there was the greatest popular pessimism and have emerged without confessing that a large element of the population has been permanently damaged by what had happened to the country.

It is not out of order to say that we have here a new national disease, the progress of which may cause the liveliest alarm. Its effect upon national well-being, national character, and the national future may not be clearly perceived, but when a nation concedes that under its economic system it is impossible for millions of people to live, the people who assert that are clearing the way for a different economic order.

No nation can constantly increase the number of persons willing to be supported by government appropriations without coming to the time when it must face the probability of surrendering its freedom of action to new dictates of economy and a new form of government in which these mandates can be executed.

A society half pauperized means, or would seem to mean, the end of a free democracy. A nation cannot endure half dependent and half independent.

Editorial of the Day

O, YEAH!

[Rocky Mountain News, Denver.]

From out of Wellesley hills in Massachusetts the Delphic voice of Roger W. Babson has spoken again. This time to all of us it says: Buy a farm.

"We have never advised farming as a money making scheme," he oracles. "We, however, do advise small farms as insurance. Every family should have a farm to which it may go 'if it does happen here.'"

Now that cryptic "it" refers not to Fascism, but to another awesome specter, inflation. A few years of that and there will be a stampede of city folks back to the land. Therefore, Mr. Babson counsels, buy now while land is cheap and get 10 or 20 acres of good and improved land, preferably near a city.

Now if Mr. Babson expects us to dodge inflation through land speculation that's one thing. If his idea is to give city folks a chance to invite their souls to God's great out-of-doors and charge it up to recreation, that's another. But if the argument is that we can make a living on a little farm, he should paint the other side of the picture.

Has he, we wonder, ever supported a real farm? Or seen his land blow away in dust or wash away in cloudbursts? Or broken his back trying to hold his crops from the maw of grasshoppers, potato bugs, bean beetles and middlemen? Or got up in the rain to milk and felt old Bess wrap a wet tail around his neck and plant her hind foot in a full milkpail? Or found his best layers on a sitdown strike? Or experienced any one of a million little plagues that turn seasoned farmers into bolsheviks and city-bred farmers into bankrupts?

Well, we have. And having had our fling at it we think we'd rather let inflation wipe us slowly out of sight.

MY AMERICA.

More famed than Rome, as splendid as old Greece,
And saintlier than Hebrew prophet's dream;
A shrine of beauty, Italy-inspired;
A nobler France, by truth and freedom fired;
As hale as England, treasuring the gleam
Of knightly Arthur; though a land of peace,
As brave as Sparta—till all hellish wars shall cease.

In thought, as wide as is her prairie sea;
In deeds, as rugged as her mountain piles;
As noble as her mighty river tides.
Let her be true, a land where right abides;
Let her be clean, as sweet as summer isles;
And let her sound the note of liberty
For all the earth, till every man and child is free!

"WELCOME TO OWLS NEST," he shouted, pumping the President's hand. . . . This is THE TRIBUNE'S description of Mr. du Pont-Capulet meeting Mr. Roosevelt-Montague (git back thar, Shakespeare). A neat gesture, we ween, but we can hardly smother the guess that the pumping was designed to convince the head man that the pumper didn't need any more priming.

A STRANGE RACE, masters. It knows it has life, it hopes it has liberty, and it pursues happiness by going on picnics and becoming lunch for the swarming mosquitoes of the inundated prairies.

NEWS DISPATCHES about the Irish election stress the information that there were no broken heads and, indeed, no fights. If the Irish aren't going to be serious about their republic, how can they expect the English to realize they mean business?

AT THAT, this would be a better world if all the popping off were done by the firecrackers.

SPEAK UP AND COME DOWN.

After reading about the slow trains it occurred to me that the Line ought to have a Classic department. Most of us aren't up on modern humor, but nearly every one has an old one, and a good one, to resurrect. Here's mine. . . . Ephraim was the owner of the two-man bank in Hometown; he had one teller and he was all the officers himself. He was supposedly quite deaf. But it couldn't have been very serious. One day Benjamin, who owned a small farm, went up to Eph and said: "Will you lend me three thousand dollars on my place?" Eph cupped his hand to his ear and replied: "Ye'll have to speak up louder—and come down a thousand." W. M. M.

But Think of Us Standing for This!

I been reading your Line fer five years now, and I think I got the hang of it. Say I'm walking down the street and see or hear something funny, or maybe it ain't but I think it is. Then I set down and write what I saw or heard and thunk was funny and you do the rest. Always wanted to see myself in print with a pretty name, so any time you see Yvette that's me. Gee, it makes me hot and cold all over to think of THAT standing for me. Yvette.

SIR: This talk about pioneers in buckskin breeches has me in stitches. I am thinking about pioneers, buccaneers, and pirates hunting pots of gold and treasure chests . . . and wouldn't they be jolted out of their buckskins if they came to life and glimpsed that modernistic, highly illuminated sign over a special selling booth: TREASURE CHEST. (And below, on the counter, "Panties, 50 cents."). E. R.

TAPS, BUT DON'T SLEEP NOW.

We renew the suggestion that there's a certain fame to be awarded the poet who will write a really good lyric for the army call "Taps," which is sung on appropriate occasions by the W-G-N octette. The song, of course, already has words, but better ones are desired. Ye Ed has bragged that the Line poets can write them, and we'd like to have them prop up our limb. Here's a rhyme and meter guide:

Soldier, rest!
As God's guest
'Neath this loam
Have no fear—
Soldier, rest!

We'd recommend three stanzas, each of that length. There's no rush and it might be well to listen to W-G-N singers rendering this version between 10 and 10:15 next Monday evening. The melody is inspiring and deserves the best in poetry to go with it.

SHOTS FROM THE ROUGH.

Golf may not help the nerves, but it adds to the vocabulary. I now know which end of a caddy to take hold of. . . . As a biennial player, I took up the game again this year, and one of the lads, bewildered at the ball rolling along the grass even when I hit with an 8 iron, suggested superciliously, "Open your face." After that he shut his trap and I improved; made a birdie 2 and can prove it; have notarized statement. . . . When I went out to play they had signs reading, "Kindly Replace the Turf," but when I came in they changed 'em to read, "Please Returf the Place."

IS YOUR CHILD HUNGRY?

THE food intake, beyond that indispensable for mere existence, is measured by activity. The needs of the muscular system are telegraphed to the digestive tract, hunger ensues, and nourishment is then sought to the point of satisfaction.

But there is a vast difference between the adult and the boy who must supply his body with energizing fuel for play and enough more wherewithal to build muscles, grow bones, and manufacture blood. What we eat is combustible and the process of digestion and metabolism oxidizes it just as a furnace burns coal. The more we consume and assimilate the more heat we generate. Nevertheless, we have all seen desk workers—sitters—use as much as or even more than others of similar physical proportions who engage in manual labor. The former are clogging the flues of the body while the latter, through exercise, are providing avenues for the escape of heat.

But we started in to discuss the caloric requirements of children. Observe a 10 year old boy through a single 24 hour period. If he is well, he is the busiest chap imaginable. He must do this and that, and what an insatiable drive possesses him! When he returns from school in the afternoon not a moment is lost in joining his pals in play or in the pursuit of some project that calls for exertion—increased work on the part of the mind, the heart, and the lungs. Is it any wonder that he dispatches twice as much as his father, who is perhaps double his weight? Because he is developing, more calcium, phosphorus, nitrogen, and iron are demanded.

All children—boys and girls alike—should be given more sustenance of the right sort than their parents, but the program of proper feeding cannot end with adolescence. It must be maintained, unless there is some constitutional endocrine deficiency, until growth ceases.

There is just one precaution which should be mentioned, namely, fondness for sugar. In many instances this is due to the fact that meals are not balanced. Ice cream soda is a delightful confection and there is a place for candy, but the routine employment of sweets must be watched and if possible accounted for.

But quantity is not the only consideration. We can supply large amounts and our children will remain undernourished. Vitamins are essential and no child should ever outgrow the milk habit. A quart of clean milk each day is our best source of calcium. Furthermore, if the fluid comes from a herd that is out of doors, exposed to sunlight, where green pastures are accessible, vitamins A and B will be adequate and C and D will be present in fair proportions.

There are no items on the menu that will quite replace fresh vegetables and fruits. Tomatoes, cooked or raw, are particularly good, as they constitute a very important source of vitamin C. If I had my way every youngster would take cod liver oil daily until adult status had been attained. Much can be said about the value of vitamins in building a bulwark against infections and, again, this is where the normal diet comes into play.

The child who is not hungry is ill. If he is not active and, at the same time, desires large meals, there is something wrong.

Be as fussy as you wish about your child's diet, as nature will usually dictate when he has enough.

I remember very well a stalwart, athletic father who brought his pale, spindling 12 year old son to the hospital one day with the statement that he could not account for the boy's lack of vitality. "You see," he said, "we have been extremely careful of his diet. He is terribly fond of meat, especially roast beef, but we do not give it to him every day and then but a small portion." Great was the astonishment of this fond parent at the advice he received. He was told that the lad was half starved. He craved meat because he needed more protein and iron.

WASSERMANN TEST.

D. H. D. writes:

1. How would extensive uremic poisoning show up in a Wassermann test?
2. Why is mercury used in the treatment of syphilis?
3. Where did syphilis originate and what causes it in the present day?
4. What percentage of insane are or have been syphilitic?
5. Do mercury treatments harm a pregnant woman?
6. What are some of the first symptoms of insanity? Are they noted in the eyes, the walk, or the speech?

REPLY.

1. Not at all. The Wassermann test is for the presence of syphilis.
2. Mercury helps to kill the spirochaeta pallida.
3. The disease has probably existed ever since a spirochete first found its way into a minute scratch on the mucous membrane of a human being. In a majority of cases, infection occurs during sexual contact with an infected person.
4. The proportion of mental disease due to syphilis is between 10 and 15 per cent. General paralysis [paresis] is responsible for 10.6 per cent of all organic insanity.
5. Pregnant women are not harmed by any form of anti-syphilitic treatment if skilfully administered. Such treatment is necessary for the birth of a healthy baby.
6. There are many mental diseases, the symptoms of which naturally differ. Usually some abnormality of behavior is the first symptom noted.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR.

L. D. writes: Has the adrenal operation, in connection with eliminating superfluous hair, been performed successfully in this country? Does such a procedure have any effect on other organs later?

REPLY.

There are a number of causes for superfluous hair in women, one of which is an adrenal tumor. When an adrenal operation is performed it is because there is something wrong with the adrenal gland and not for cosmetic reasons. In other words, the operation is not a cure all for unwanted hair. I would advise the person who has an abnormal growth of hair to go to a physician and let him determine the cause. He will then recommend measures to be taken according to whether the growth is innocent or a symptom of some other difficulty in the body.

HEART FIRST AID.

D. K. writes: Referring to your article on first aid during a heart attack, in school we were taught that the secretion of the adrenal glands strengthens the heart beat, increases blood pressure, etc. Why would it not be possible, when a patient is suffering from a heart attack, to excite the victim in order to stimulate the adrenal glands to secrete, thereby strengthening the beat and increasing the blood pressure?

REPLY.

During a heart attack—if the pulsations are feeble—direct administration of adrenalin is quicker and more effective. Inducing anger or excitement would be too slow. But most types of heart collapse will respond to inhalations of ammonia or complete rest lying down.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY H. BASIL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TEHERAN, Iran [Persia].—California methods of drying fruits for market have been adopted by many Iranian farmers, who have, at the instigation of the government, planted fruit trees along the water courses of their farms. The government's encouragement for raising fruit is connected with its efforts to overcome the deficiency in rainfall which plagues Iran.

The annual rainfall of much of the country is so low that it is giving great anxiety to the government and people, because Iran is primarily agricultural. The products of the earth are needed for export in order to cover the cost of things which must be bought abroad.

Iran has areas, to be sure, which are well watered and well forested. Rain falls in Ghilan and Mazanderan on the Caspian sea littoral north of the Elburz mountains. Cold winds saturated with moisture come from the northeast and mingle with the more moistened hot air of these provinces to form clouds and rain.

Afforestation to the south of this chain of mountains is thought to be a means of increasing the country's rainfall. However, this would incur a big expense, for sources of water must be created to supply such forests for several years.

The government, however, has adopted a means of its own to increase the humidity of the country's air. It is encouraging the peasants, by subsidies, to plant trees on every small course of water used in irrigation of their fields. The peasants are advised to plant fruit trees to insure more immediate profit. Both the climate and soil of the country are favorable to the growth of fruit, and Iranian dried fruit has a good market now in Europe.

RADIO NOISES.

Chicago, June 24.—[Friend of the People.]—Is there anything that can be done to put a stop to a blaring radio on the outside of the music and radio shop in our block? I work nights and get to bed at 3 a. m. and at 8:30 or 9 every morning this radio is started full blast and never stops until 10 or 11 at night. I have appealed to the police a couple of times and have written and telephoned to the proprietors, also, but it still goes on. It is impossible to sit in my living room or get any chance to sleep in my front bedroom. Can you suggest anything or give me any help? It would be heavenly if you could get it quieted down for the mornings at least. J. H. T.

Officers who interviewed the owner of the radio store in question report that the owner stated he did have a radio in front of his store during alterations in order to attract attention. He further stated that he did not think any one was annoyed by this procedure and that it was not his intention to cause a nuisance or give any one a cause to make complaint and that he would immediately discontinue this practice. We will keep the location under observation to see that there is no further cause for complaint.

ESTATE EXPENSES.

Chicago, July 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My father died five years ago. He had all his money at a certain real estate firm and he made this man the executor of his will. The will states the executor should pay all funeral expenses. The real estate man went bankrupt a year later. Nothing was said to me all this time about a funeral bill, but now I have some property of very little value and the lawyer states there is a funeral bill to be paid. Do I have to pay this funeral bill? E. Z.

On the face of your statement it would seem obvious that the funeral expenses should be paid out of the estate, but the fact that the question has been raised implies that additional facts are involved.

EXECUTOR OF WILL.

Chicago, June 22.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. My sister was appointed executrix of my mother's estate, and at the time of mother's death my sister was a resident of Indiana. Will was filed here in Chicago as estate is in the state of Illinois. Would her being a nonresident of the state make the filing of the will illegal?

2. Could I handle the affairs pertaining to the estate from now on without refiling, and can this sister turn her appointment as executrix over to her husband without the consent of the other heirs? My sister [appointed executrix] is living in Indiana with her two children and, while her husband is working in Chicago, their home is in Indiana.

3. Does that make his legal address Illinois? Where would her legal address be? E. E.

1. It would not invalidate the filing of the will but it would render her ineligible as executrix.
2. It seems probable that the court would appoint you as substitute executrix if you made a motion to that effect. Technically you would be called administratrix with the will annexed.
3. It would not be conclusive.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DOUBLE INDEMNITY.

Chicago, July 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A New York bank failed and closed in December, 1930, stockholders being liable for double indemnity.

1. Could this debt be outlawed in six years in the absence of a judgment?
2. Could judgment have been obtained without my knowledge or without serving notice on stockholders to appear?

N. C. F.

1. Since it is not clear that the case is covered by other provisions the ten year period would seem to apply.
2. New York has a procedure for entering a judgment that will become enforcible if the defendant later enters the jurisdiction. They would not have jurisdiction to enter a judgment without service of process that would be enforcible against you here.

POLITICS AND LABOR.

Chicago, July 1.—I have been a union man since 1914 and believe the labor organizations have done much for the workingman. However, if control of labor is allowed to pass to the radicals and racketeers, we will eventually lose much of what we have gained. Lewis and his kind have always been present in our ranks, but under the able direction of Samuel Gompers they were kept pretty well under control. With his passing they have gradually increased their influence and now threaten domination.

I believe any man or group of men has the right to quit or strike if dissatisfied, but they should not be allowed to take possession and keep fellow workers who want to work from earning a living. A patriotic administration at Washington with the welfare of the country at heart would not allow the present wrongful acts. I have always been a Democrat and have never voted otherwise. When my party was determined to enter the league of nations I refused to vote on the national ticket. I'm an American first—before party preference.

Though somewhat disappointed in Roosevelt's first administration, I voted for it again in 1936. The waste and extravagance were bad, but I never dreamed they would attempt the communistic practices they since have adopted. Unless the Democratic party can purge itself of this New Deal radical domination, the party is doomed to pass into oblivion.

All indications point to Roosevelt seeking a third term in 1940, with John L. Lewis running for Vice President. They won't put it over, but they will wreck the Democratic party and the prestige of organized labor. P. J. KELLY.

THE PATRON OF THE PEOPLE.

Sparta, Ill., June 28.—Mathematicians are able to calculate any circle of astronomical movement upon the basis of an arc of the circle. Constitutents of government would calculate the whole administrative circle of the man at the helm of the government from what, respectively, they deem an arc of that circle. Every lay citizen in the United States is now toiling on his view of the Roosevelt policies.

The curve of the New Deal circumference does not coincide with belief in even potential equality between all breeds of men. The President is the incarnation of that benevolent lord of all ages who would see lesser human beings in enjoyment of the greatest possible material comfort but always in slavery, or serfdom, or security. The interest of our chief executive in merely people constitutes the interest of a superior breed in an inferior breed.

Mr. Roosevelt would point common people not to equity before the law but to humanitarianism of the executive of the law. The President would not be bound by rules in assigning to ordinary people the benefits of the contemporary civilization. In an aside for those above just "the people" the chief executive relates disregard of rules in government of the people with "shackles for the liberties of the people." G. A. M.

THE RIGHT TO WORK.

South Bend, Ind., June 30.—Laboring men have the right to strike, but they have no right to interfere with the right of honest, competent, and industrious workmen to earn their daily bread. To protect the bread winner I am for a law that provides that:

Any person or persons who by threats, intimidation, force, or by any other like means prevents any other person or persons from earning a living at their usual occupation or prevents any person from enjoying the privileges and immunities guaranteed them by the 5th and 14th amendments to the constitution of the United States, shall be liable to any person aggrieved in a penalty of five hundred dollars for each offense, to be recovered in a civil action in any court of competent jurisdiction.

Under section 5, article 14, amendment to the constitution, congress has the right to pass this law.

ANDREW N. HILDEBRAND.

SENTIMENTALISTS AND CRIME.

Solon Springs, Wis., June 30.—The actual results of the "liberal" policy of sentimentalists toward the criminal and the criminal insane are shown constantly, but with notable clearness, in recent events. Robert Irwin, we learn, has been in the insane asylum three times. Why three times? Why more times than one? After his last release he committed three murders. I am personally familiar with numerous cases of criminals being released from Illinois institutions who almost immediately celebrated their release by murder.

Three little girls have just been horribly murdered in California. When the guilty fiend is apprehended he probably will be found to be a criminal, or even a man criminally insane, who has been confined, like Robert Irwin, more times than once. But why more than once? Why are not such persons, who are as dangerous as mad dogs, confined once and once only? Why are they patched up temporarily and turned loose to continue their murderous careers?

Such sentimentality does neither themselves nor society any good. It is no kindness either to society, to the relatives of these criminals, nor to the criminals themselves to let them run at liberty. If there is ever a day of judgment these sentimentalists and sob sisters certainly will have plenty to answer for.

GIRLS IN THEIR SPORT TOGS.

Chicago, July 1.—I certainly agree with C. R. Wagner about girls wearing shorts on the street and other public thoroughfares, and I'm not an old fogy, either. I like athletics and wear shorts myself, but not off the tennis court or away from the grounds of girls' camps. There is absolutely no excuse for any girl or woman to disport herself in this manner and provoke [and justly so] derogatory comment. Come, girls, why spoil a good thing by abusing its privileges? Before you know it you will get everybody so disgusted with you that all types of comfortable sports togs will be abolished. Most of these shorts come in sets with a neat little skirt to match which can be worn when appearing in public. And what is the matter with culottes for bicycle riding? They offer just as much freedom and look ever so much nicer.

The other Sunday I saw two middle aged women with shapes like the proverbial old apple tree sauntering along the street half a mile west of the beach in shorts, and, believe me, they looked awful. I regretted I did not have my camera with me. I was just itching to take a snapshot of them from the rear and presenting them with the picture when it was developed and printed. I bet they would have sued me for libel!

BEATING THE MARRIAGE LAW.

Chicago, June 30.—When I read about the increase of marriage licenses issued to prevent a physical examination it made my blood run cold to think people are so ignorant and don't appreciate what a wonderful thing it is to hav the Saltiel hygienic marriage bill become a law. If they could see some of the children born to couples who had venereal disease, but wouldn't admit it before being married, they would think before rushing for a marriage license. Personally I think they are cowards, and think they are running away from trouble, but if they have the disease it will catch up with them regardless of how or what they do. ELIZABETH TRACY.

THE WELL BEHAVED MALE COTTONWOOD.

Chicago, July 1.—Before some uninformed persons start to destroying cottonwood trees allow me to state that the pistillate [female] tree bears and spreads the cotton. The staminate tree, which is always the finer one, bears no cotton.

MEDICUS.

THE FORGOTTEN CYCLIST.

Chicago, June 22.—Where are bicyclists supposed to ride? It is not safe to ride in the street, and a bicycle is a vehicle and cannot be ridden on the sidewalk. If there is such a thing as a bicycle path perhaps some reader could tell me where it is located. ALICE HAYES.

Country Clubs Have Plans for Gay Week-end

Programs Arranged for Children, Adults.

BY JUDITH CASS.

"WHY go away over the Fourth?" is the thought that must have occurred to hundreds of Chicagoans within the last few days when they received announcements of their favorite country club's plans for celebrating the nation's birthday. Since the holiday falls this year during the week-end, not only the "Glorious Fourth" but the third and the fifth as well are coming in for their share of dances, golf, and tennis tournaments, children's parties and firework displays.

Among the gay clubs during the week-end will be the Onwentsia. A buffet supper and dance for 200 members and their friends is taking place tonight. Tomorrow is dedicated to the children of members, with a dinner and a program for them, and the traditional fireworks afterward.

Three tournaments, for men members only, are scheduled for Monday. The John H. Hamline Memorial cup, 36-hole medal play handicap for the club championship, which was won last year by Frederic McLaughlin II., will be played, as will the Bland Ballard Memorial cup, open to members who were members over 35 years of age on July 4, 1908. Samuel T. Chase won this event last year.

Special prize events will be the 18-hole matched play against par and the 18 hole blind bogey play in the afternoon.

Chicago Golf Club Dance Tomorrow.

The Chicago Golf club is holding its holiday dinner-dance outdoors tomorrow night instead of tonight, because so many members will be in Lake Forest for Miss Katherine McLennan's wedding to Keith S. Brown. The President's cup, the golf tournament that always marks the holiday at the Wheaton club, will be played Monday. John D. Black is following the custom established by previous presidents, and is presenting the cup this year. There will be fireworks Monday evening.

Tomorrow will be "Do As You Please Day" at the Barrington Hills Country club, with golf, tennis, swimming, and other sports to fill the daylight hours. A buffet supper at 6:30 o'clock will be followed by a surprise program and fireworks after sundown.

A buffet dinner-dance is taking place this evening on the screened porch of the club. In the afternoon men golfers will play the first round for the Oak Knolls trophy, and a low net prize event also is scheduled. A men's flag tournament is planned for Monday, and there will be approaching and putting contests for women.

Week-end events at the Indian Hill club will include a dinner-dance outdoors this evening, weather permitting. A women's bridge lecture will be given this morning, with a buffet luncheon and contract in the afternoon, and there will be golf events for men. A buffet supper is planned for tomorrow evening.

A 36 hole tournament for the Thomas H. McInnerney trophy will occupy men players of the club most of Monday, and the qualifying round of the club championship also will be played. There will be a buffet luncheon, contract for women in the afternoon, and, of course, swimming, tennis, and other games for the younger generation.

Charles H. Conrad had looked forward to playing in one of the tournaments at the Indian Hill club, since he and Mrs. Conrad are here from Tryon, N. C., for a short stay. However, Mr. Conrad's leg was injured several days ago and he will have to confine his activities to sitting in a comfortable chair on the club porch.

Golf Tournament at Knollwood Club.

At Knollwood today men members will play in the 18 hole club handicap, and tonight there will be a dinner-dance outdoors. A number of tennis tournaments, including singles, doubles, and mixed doubles, are scheduled for the three days.

The 18 hole tournament for the Service Men's trophy, donated by N. W. MacChesney, will be played Monday, with only ex-service men competing, and the Independence day trophy, a 36 hole tournament, also will be played. Buffet suppers will be served tomorrow and Monday evening.

The Governors' cup, a tournament for the cup donated by the board of governors, will be the principal event of the week-end at the Shoreacres club. This match will be played all day Monday. A buffet luncheon is planned for tomorrow.

Children will have their own Fourth of July celebration Monday at the Glen View club, beginning with a swimming pool party in the morning. The west porch will be reserved for a luncheon for them, and afterward there will be a program featuring a ventriloquist and trained animals, and still later in the afternoon a parade led by a brass band. A fireworks display will take place that evening.

This evening there will be a dinner with dancing under the stars on the upper porch of the club, weather permitting. The grandfathers' cup, the golf sweepstakes and a low net event will occupy golfers this afternoon. Tomorrow mixed foursomes will play after 2 o'clock, and a buffet supper will be served.

Dainty, Youthful, and Cool

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

This dainty summer frock with a definitly youthful air is fashioned, in the original, of batiste print. Lace ruffling edges the collar and the wing sleeves. There is a choice, you will notice, in both collar and sleeves. The version sketched at the left has a regulation shirtwaist collar and the wing sleeves. The frock at the right has a plain collar gracing a V neckline, and puffed sleeves with tight bands.

We want to call your attention to the skirt. It has, my dears, 16 gores, no less! You will be a picture of grace in this model, you may be sure. Dainty fabrics are ideal for this style, since it takes so well to both crisp and softly fluttery fabrics. Plain shades and prints are equally effective, and the trimming may be organdy ruffling or braid, if you don't happen to like lace.

You will wear this exciting little dress both in town and in the country, and it's perfect for informal dances and parties of all kinds. It's easy to make, and a diagrammed chart gives you explicit directions, so that you can't possibly go wrong.

Style No. 2673 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 30, 32, 34, 36, and 38 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 5¼ yards of 39 inch material, with 3 yards of ruffling.

Travel Luggage Must Include Aids to Beauty

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Deciding on where to go for a vacation and getting clothes ready and packed isn't all to a happy vacation. If you are going somewhere you've never been before, it is well to scout around and find out from folks who may have been to the same place just what should be taken along. If, for instance, one planned a cruise to some tropical spot, you'd learn that it were well to pack into your shoe bag one pair of shoes that are big enough to galump around in for feet unused to the climate are likely to feel miserable in the kind of shoe you wear back home.

"Travel light" is the universal order today. They tell me that the travel world has gone hand-bag minded today, the trunk bringer along being reminiscent of an earlier day when one took everything along she owned to be prepared for every emergency. Such is the social order today that you wear what you have along, regardless of preconceived ideas or back home ideas of correct form. It makes your journey so much simpler to travel light, whether you go in a plane, by train, or trailer. Take what you are sure you'll need, but leave at home those extra things you just take along because you think you may need them.

You want room enough in your bags, room enough to get at things easily; also, so you can keep your bags orderly. But naturally, it's your cosmetic needs and their packing in which we are most interested. You will appreciate their being packed safely from breakage, for which you must supply yourself with a convenient case that will hold your liquid preparations and creams securely.

You may be in luck, possessing one of the handsome makeup cases filled with the products you'll use, but if you are not, you can get one of the zipper cases that will adequately hold everything you need in the pocket compartments. Take a supply of tissue with you for comfort,

Take eau de cologne or a skin tonic if you're making a cross country trip by train. Take plenty of cream for the dry skin if you're motoring, and foundation cream, also. Take a hand lotion if you're going to ride or play golf a lot, and an oily lipstick to keep lip skin from cracking. By all means, take that sunburn lotion with you, for you'll need it some time during the holiday spree.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

LONDON. — [Special.] — In almost every respect English cosmetics are like those in America, with the possible exception of lighter creams. But over here cleansing milks, which are seldom found in the United States, are enormously popular. They are the preferred quick cleansers—and women here like to cleanse their faces a couple of times a day. That dewey English freshness, you know!

One of the most popular of these is a milk of lavender. Another, the product of a French house well known in America, is an avocado beauty milk. This preparation was created for English use and is, if we remember correctly, only marketed here. It's a delightful daytime cleanser, practically scentless, applied to the face with cotton wool. It removes makeup quickly, gives the skin a good dose of moisture at the same time, and is an excellent makeup base in the bargain.

These cleansing milks are especially popular with women who go in for sports. They tuck the container into their golf or tennis kit, or keep it in the pocket of their car. It takes no time at all to freshen up a couple of times a day.

English women are not as prone as we are to replenish makeup in public. It's not second nature with them to powder every 20 minutes or to add fresh lipstick each time they look in the mirror. But they do, a couple of times a day, retire from the public eye and cleanse their faces. Which, incidentally, is a darned good beauty habit—a lot better, certainly, than our national custom of piling on fresh makeup over old.

MacMillan Has Happy Debut at Ravinia Park

Toronto Conductor Shows Great Skill.

BY CECIL M. SMITH.

Sir Ernest MacMillan, conductor of the Toronto Symphony orchestra and a citizen in which the Canadian metropolis must take inordinate pride, made his initial appearance at Ravinia Park last evening.

The concert, the first of twenty-four orchestral programs to be given in the north shore pavilion between now and August 8, enabled Sir Ernest to demonstrate his ability in the double rôle of conductor and composer.

For full measure the festival association also presented José Iturbi as piano soloist in Beethoven's Third Concerto.

Sir Ernest's first program enabled us to assess his skill in the interpretation of many assorted kinds of music, comprising as it did Dvorak's "Carneval" overture; the conductor's own "Two Sketches for String Orchestra on French—Canadian airs, "played here for the first time; the Fifth Symphony of Sibelius; Strauss' "Artist's Life" waltz; a Haydn serenade for string orchestra, and the Beethoven concerto mentioned above.

Reading the Sibelius symphony in the first performance it has had by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Sir Ernest achieved a profound success, not all of which lay on the surface. This is a surpassingly difficult score, full of problems in tempo and balance which might easily cause the downfall of any but a totally assured conductor.

The orchestra responded to its guest leader with enthusiasm and a great deal of tonal splendor. This is a hard work to learn in two rehersals. What if the intonation of the violins was not always scrupulously clean? Here was a performance with breadth, drive, direction, and power.

The "Sketches on French-Canadian Airs" are delightful essays in the revivifying of old folk music. The second sketch was especially attractive. Its active melodic bass and sharply accented rhythmic displacements made it seem to occupy a musical middle ground between the 18th century Handel and the 20th century William Walton.

Mr. Iturbi's playing of the Beethoven concerto was a model of fluency and translucent tone.

Disdaining to push his own pianism to the fore, he allowed the cool formalism of the opening movement to speak for itself, and approached the bewitching slow movement with exquisite serenity and restraint.

Mr. Iturbi will play and Sir Ernest MacMillan will conduct three times more this week-end. The Schumann concerto is listed on tonight's program. Two concerts will be given on Sunday, at 3:30 and 8:30 o'clock.

Women Play First Concert on Lake Front

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The Woman's Symphony orchestra, whose severe black costumes have long been a feature of the scenery of musical Chicago, burst out in summery white last night to signalize its first appearance of the season at the Grant park band shell. This was the second in the series of 68 free concerts being presented nightly, under park district sponsorship and with the coöperation of the Musicians' union, by the city's principal orchestras and bands.

Ebba Sundstrom conducted; soloists were Helen Bickerton, soprano, and Raymund Koch, baritone. An audience that topped 10,000 applauded a program whose princpal item was the Tschaikowsky Fourth symphony and which drew its lighter materials from Dvorak, Rimsky-Korsakoff—even Gershwin and Romberg.

In preparing these summer programs, Miss Sundstrom evidently works just as carefully on fine points of interpretation as she does for the organization's winter concerts in the Auditorium. Last evening's performance had a nice rhythmic verve and profited by the conductor's meticulous phrasing. It is impossible to speak about the tonal effects, since the speaker system has not yet been whipped completely into shape and some of the instrumental colorings are marred by roughness of texture.

For the same reason one can only commend the soloists' interpretations of the numbers which they chose and leave a windy discussion of the fine points of their voice quality for a more auspicious occasion.

By the way, the tone of both orchestra and voices is better a hundred yards from the band shell than it is right up close. This may drop a bolt into the ranks of those patricians who occupy the reserved seat section.

Another "by the way." The great number of these reserved seats, many of which remain empty through half the evening, must create a certain amount of ill will in the people who try to reach them and are turned away. They can hardly help wondering who they are reserved for. Come to think of it, who are they reserved for? In perfect democracy is banished from Grant park itself, where, O where in this whole wide world, will it find a place to lay its head?

The Chicago Woman's Concert band, Lillian Poenisch, founder and director, will give a free concert on Navy pier at 3:30 this afternoon. The program consists mainly of light classics, with Beethoven's "Egmont" overture for contrast.

Sandal Hosiery Has Lace Mesh to Cover Toes

BY RHEA SEEGER.

In the midst of all the fevered discussions for and against open-air sandals, tricky new summer sandal stockings have arrived to fill in the openings in such footgear. For such decorative numbers, they wear astonishingly well. If they can see a fashion sleuth through days of shopping without giving way under the strain, they're some stockings! Being a guinea pig and testing the life of this sheer hosiery has been fun.

The stockings have toes and heels of lace mesh, and if it isn't the toughest, longest wearing bit of lace we've ever taken around the town, we've been dreaming. There's no wear out to the lace, we "ran" into trouble, the visible kind, with a ragged finger nail after the hosiery had given plenty of service.

With toe and heel portions of lace showing through the most open worked sandals, the curse is seemingly removed. For the benefit of captious swains who object to ruby toes showing through, or to appease the caustic comments of home folks, brothers and the like, these lace inset stockings are the answer.

They come in grand summer street tints that go with everything, thin wool to thinnest sheer black linens and shantungs. And they'll go well with your giddiest sandals.

A new evening tint called capucine has just arrived, quite the most torrid tone of the summer. Especially effective with all the ethereal black chiffons, the slinky white satins and the gaudy gypsy colored and striped chiffons, they provide the right new ankle lure for the most daring of summer evening gowns.

Good Morning!

Time spent with the Marx Brothers, be it "A Night at the Opera" or "A Day at the Races," is sure to be time merrilly spent. For Groucho, Chico and Harpo are the sort of entertainers who never let you down.

They maintain their cheery reputation in their latest vehicle. It's a ridiculous farce, plummed with unique gags, laugh provoking situations, fast action. And, for contrast, it presents a lovely, lavishly staged toe dance specialty—featuring Vivien Fay. The Crinoline choir is also there with Negro songs and dances.

As to the slight story:

Dr. Hackenbush, a veterinary surgeon and his confreres, Tony, a jack of all trades, and Stuffy—who's just Stuffy—set about getting hypochondriacal and wealthy Mrs. Upjohn to pay up the mortgages on the sanitarium run by the sweet girl of the piece, Judy.

Judy is engaged to a crooner, with a steeplechase horse he runs as a side line. . . . Villains, represented by Douglas Dumbrille and Leonard Ceeley, have designs on both horse and sanitarium.

Situations develop hilariously, culminating in a riotous horse race that is, of course, won by the steeplechaser. Acting's excellent throughout.

Chico's piano playing which wrecks the piano, Harpo's reconstruction of the wreckage into a harp which he manipulates as he alone knows how, and Groucho's enforced but much interrupted courtship of Mrs. Upjohn [the stately Margaret Dumont whom he mauls in all his films] are high lights of the production.

If you crave to laugh quite steadily for a good two hours—why, a visit to the United Artists theater should satisfy that desire.

Jean Harlow's Last Movie Completed by Use of Her Double

Hollywood, Cal., July 2.—[Special.]—Instead of scrapping "Saratoga," the unfinished film in which the late Jean Harlow was facing another week of camera work at the time of her sudden death, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio has decided to put out the picture with a slightly changed ending.

The "shots" which were needed to knit together the action and plot have now been filmed by Mary Dees, former beauty contest winner, who doubled in "long shots" for Miss Harlow during the earlier sequences. Miss Dees' features at no time will appear.

Barrymore Gag Spoils a Take of Crime Movie

John Plays an Inspector in "Bulldog Drummond."

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., July 2.—[Special.]—John Barrymore can't resist the temptation to put over a good gag, no matter how trying on the other fellow. This week Barrymore was doing a scene with John Howard in "Bulldog Drummond Comes Back."

As the inspector in the story, Barrymore was attempting to find a criminal. The script called for Barrymore to say, "What does this man look like?" then reach in his pocket, pull out a picture, show it to Howard, and say, "Is this the man?"

The first take was ruined when Howard broke into riotous laughter on the last line. Barrymore's prop picture was of a shapely girl, briefly attired.

Director Sidney Lanfield was wearing an overcoat and felt hat on a set registering about 30 degrees for Sonja Henie's new picture, "Lovely to Look At." He addressed the girl skaters, who were shivering in thin evening dresses, as follows: "I want more life in this scene; some smiles; look happy. You people don't look as if you're having any fun."

Paramount publicity men who still weep big tears over their claim that they built up the Dionne quintuplets only to have Darryl Zanuck of Twentieth Century-Fox steal them from under Paramount's nose, are again tearing their hair out, strand by strand, as another colossal idea missed fire.

An idea man suggested to Cecil B. DeMille that the part of Tarsus, a giant Negro pirate and ally of Jean LaFitte in "Buccaneer," be played by Joe Louis. The publicity boys had already started the propaganda mill grinding and the negotiators were oiling up in anticipation of the director's okay when DeMille's quick but flat answer came back.

"That's old school publicity stuff," scoffed the director, and waved the idea man out of his presence.

Great was the wail as the publicity department lamented in unison, "Zanuck will grab him when he hears the story."

One of the reference books being used by the research staf of Twentieth Century-Fox in preparing the background of "In Old Chicago" was written shortly after the fire and published the following year by two CHICAGO TRIBUNE men, George P. Upton and James W. Sheahan. Title is "The Great Conflagration of Chicago—Its Past, Present, and Future."

Tom Keene has been signed by Monogram studio for a series of eight westerns. Keene is 6 feet 2, has blue eyes and brown hair, and refuses to wear makeup. His first picture will be "God's Country and the Man."

About a week ago in Vienna a newspaper phoned Samuel Gorin, father of the singing actor, Igor Gorin, and told the father it had just received a report of Igor's death in Hollywood, which the paper wished to substantiate. Father Sam was just arranging a transoceanic phone call to learn particulars, when he suddenly thought that it was about time for the international broadcast of a radio program on which Igor sang. Father tuned in, heard Igor's voice, and phoned back to tell the Vienna newspaper its report was false.

Elissa Landi is staging a production of her latest literary output, a play titled "Author's Copy," at Santa Monica Little theater.

Alice Brady is supposed to be a washerwoman as Mrs. O'Leary in the picture "In Old Chicago," so she had the studio put Nana, her colored maid, on the pay roll as her technical adviser.

Fritz Feld, the heel-clicking actor, won't click heels for a while. Introduced to a visitor on the set, he squared off in the usual manner and landed back on the floor with a sprained back.

Sally to Have Good News for Children in Sunday Tribune

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Tribune Charities, Inc.]

Talk about snails—some of you boys and girls are slower than even a lazy snail! Yesterday I received a flock of letters from children who want to come to see "The Singing Marine" at the Roosevelt theater on July 8. All those letters were a day late—I warned you the letters would be read on Thursday.

A number of other letters had to be discarded because the writers forgot to include either the name, address, or the age. I guess you were too excited to remember that I need such details.

Of course, there were plenty of boys and girls who remembered the rules and wrote good letters, who will be rewarded by finding their names listed with the winners in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. They'll all receive personal invitations from me and I'll see them next Thursday.

You youngsters who didn't win invitations will, I am sure, forget your disappointment when you see the good news I have for you, which you'll also find in tomorrow's TRIBUNE. I'm announcing our next party, and it's what some of you children would call a peacherino!

BY NANCY CABOT.

One quilt maker's efforts to produce something simple yet striking resulted in this attractive pieced pattern called "Star and Pinwheels." The 12 inch square blocks are set together to form an all-over design and are surrounded by a 3 inch border and a ½ inch bias binding. The pattern of "Star and Pinwheels" was begun one winter in the 1870's, and was completed, even to quilting, for a Fourth of July celebration of the same year. The blocks were made in spare moments and the quilting was done by the maker and her several friends, and the result was most original without being bizarre.

SYNOPSIS.

On his return from abroad Michael Eden, heir to millions, postpones his marriage to Katharine McCann because his foster father, John Millis, tells Michael his foster mother is ill and needs him. From all sides Katharine is warned to break Michael away from John Millis. Millis asks Michael to sign a will making him Michael's heir. Michael signs, expecting to change the will after his marriage to Katharine. Mrs. Millis attempts suicide when she discovers her husband flirting with her nurse. Michael rescues her, and agrees to take her away from Millis.

INSTALMENT XVIII.

A HASTY DEPARTURE.

Many records for quick transfers of appallingly large sums were broken in the next two hours. Michael explained clearly what he wanted, and then stood firm. In the end he got what he asked for.

He also asked if he might have the use of a private wire, and sat talking to the United States for the better part of two hours, pursuing his ends determinedly. When he shook hands with them all and thanked them and told them good-by, they were looking at him with candid respect.

"You don't want a partnership in the firm, Mr. Eden?" laughed the formidable old gentleman whose wire he had been monopolizing.

"Not yet. I may be back later if your offer is still open," Michael returned lightly. Then he added, "I'm sorry to have been such a nuisance, but I didn't know any other way to get what I wanted."

"Did you get what you wanted?" the old man asked kindly. He was thinking that a very determined young man was now the possessor of the Eden fortune.

"I guess so," Michael said unenthusiastically. It was a relief to know that he was set to go, but he had not been able to get in touch with Katharine.

The exodus which Michael was engineering could never have been accomplished so quietly and smoothly if it had not been for his competent mother. The nurse stared in bewilderment at her patient, so cool and collected and swift in her decisions was the woman. By 4 o'clock their trunks had been sent to the station and the house was in its usual perfect order. By 5 Mrs. Millis met Michael in the city, where he bought her, quite casually, a Russian sable coat which she had wanted all her life, and took her to tea. At 6 she and Miss Carney were comfortably installed in a hotel, and Michael was ready for the hour for which he had been planning every minute of his crowded day: he was going to see Katharine.

Wherever he had gone that day Michael had tried to keep his home informed, so that Kit could reach him if she called. He had made repeated efforts to get her by telephone, and had finally sent a man to Mr. Crosby's office. The elevator man said that he thought Mr. Crosby had been kept at home with a cold, and probably the young lady had gone out to his house; she had to, sometimes. Joan had assured him that Kit would be home for dinner, and that as she herself was going out they ought to have a little peace. Joan was still a bit peevish over her neglected card party of the night before. Michael had not even had the good grace to mention it.

So Michael presented himself at the apartment just as Joan was leaving, with two pretty orchids for Joan, and a somewhat soppy roll of treasures from the kosher delicatessen nearby, with which he intended to amuse Kit. He was eager and excited, and did not show his fatigue as yet, though the black patch on his cheek looked a little more sinister than it had on the debonair young man of the morning call.

"Why did you ditch us last night?" Joan demanded, "and what did you do to your face?"

"Wouldn't the face suggest why I ditched you?" Michael laughed.

"What did Kit think of it? I bet she didn't enjoy it," Joan hazarded.

"She was good enough not to mention the disfigurement," Michael said quietly. Then, as Joan flushed, he went over and kissed her shyly. "Don't you go back on me, Joan," he warned. "I'm awfully nasty lately, but I'm sure it won't last. I'll get over it when things settle down. I am taking my mother east tonight. I am relieved that we are attempting some change, though the circumstances are not entirely happy."

Joan smiled forgivingly and found that she had no desire to inquire further into his affairs. She left him busy arranging his cheese and rye bread and dill pickles and sausages.

At first Michael looked anxiously at the door at every sound. He wanted a few minutes to get his party under way. When he was almost ready, and the coffee was perking, he went over to stand at the window, so that he might see Kit as soon as she turned the corner. Then, slowly, a wretched fear came over him, and he began to watch with feverish eagerness. It was not until the hour when she was actually due at the studio arrived that he gave up. Quietly he turned off the heat under his various little messes, put on his hat, and left.

At first he thought that he would go over to the studio, but he hated to interrupt her at work. He decided that instead he would inspect his mother and attend to two or three errands which he had left to the last. He could tuck in a visit to Kit the last hour before he left.

As he started for his car he found that he was reeling a little.

"If you will just trail along," he said to his chauffeur, "I will walk a few blocks. I seem to need air."

"For God's sake, Michael," Terry exclaimed, "are you sick?"

"Hadn't noticed it," Michael said stubbornly.

Terry took him by the arm and dragged him by main force into the club, where he installed him in a big armchair. "What are you going to drink?" he demanded. He looked distinctly worried.

"You might get me a cup of black coffee and a bowl of crackers and milk. I just remembered that I was so busy getting breakfast and dinner that I did not eat any, and I quite forgot lunch."

He ate mechanically, doing the best he could to conceal his distaste for food.

"Terry," he said finally, "I'm taking my mother east tonight. It was decided only this afternoon. I have not been able to get in touch with Kit and I've got to see her before I go. Will you help me out with mother? I have parked her at the Edgmont. You collect mother and deliver her at the station. That will give me a chance to run over and see Kit the last hour and meet you at the train."

"Swell. The old girl and I get on famously. I'm a far handsomer man than you. Better plan to catch Kit at the studio."

"No, I'll see her afterward." Michael's voice dropped and Terry noticed for the first time how harried he looked. "By the way, Terry, mother is leaving father. She tried to kill herself last night. It was pretty awful. If I hadn't happened to get there——" He stopped a moment and then went on more rapidly. "She's in bad shape. Some one has to do something. I can see no way but the way I am going. Look out for Kit while I'm gone. Never let her forget for a minute that I'll be back as quickly as ever I can. It won't be but a few weeks at the most. I'll get mother in good shape again—and then, listen for the wedding bells."

He added a few explicit directions and drove away.

"Wise guys may laugh all they like," he muttered, "at these curses. I know this much, that after a few weeks of possession of the Eden millions that poor kid looks little like my old friend Mike."

It was a little after 11 when Michael got back to Katharine's apartment. Kit was not home yet, nor was Joan. He found himself locked out and sat down resignedly on the steps in the hall. Joan found him there, slumped down wearily, sound asleep. He merely laughed at the girl's horrified concern.

"It's nothing at all, Joan," he said. "Just a Comedy of Errors, and I've been making them. I am leaving town on the midnight train, and I wanted to tell Kit good-by. I had nothing to say excepting that she must be good while I am away, and that I will come back and get her as soon as I can."

Two Blueberry Pie Recipes Do Honors Today

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Lovers of blueberry pie don't mind the deep colored stains left on the tongue, the teeth or the lips. They'd gladly smear blueberry juice from ear to ear, if necessary, to sink their incisors into a wedge of flaky crusted, darkly oozing pie. O, what a joy!

And what a joy it is to make a fresh blueberry pie, in anticipation of the pleasure it will bring at dinner-time! I have two recipes to offer, one thickened with flour and flavored slightly with lemon juice, and the other thickened with tapioca and flavored somewhat with brown sugar.

Blueberry Pie.
I.
[Flour-thickened.]

1 quart fresh blueberries
1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons flour
Juice of half a lemon
Pastry for double crust

Mix sugar and flour. Spread half of this mixture over the bottom of a pastry lined pie pan. Cover with blueberries. Add lemon juice and remaining sugar and flour. Cover with pricked top crust pinching edges together well. Bake at 450 degrees for 15 minutes to "set" the pie crust. Reduce heat to 375 degrees for the rest of the baking period, about 20 minutes.

Blueberry Pie.
II.
[Tapioca-thickened.]

2½ tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
¾ cup white sugar
½ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon melted butter
3 tablespoons water
1 quart blueberries
Pastry for double crust

Combine tapioca, white and brown sugar, salt, butter, water and berries. Let stand while pastry is being made. Line a 9-inch pie plate with pastry, allowing it to extend half an inch beyond the edge of the plate. Moisten edge of pastry with cold water and fold inward, even with the rim of the plate. Fill with berry mixture. Moisten edge again and place top pastry on pie, drawing it snugly across the top to prevent sagging at edges. Press edges together and trim off surplus pastry, being careful not to cut folded edge of lower crust. Bake at 450 degrees for 15 minutes, then reduce heat to 375 until filling is cooked, about 20 minutes more.

Blueberry muffins and blueberry pudding are almost, if not quite, as much a treat as is the pie. The blueberries don't grow as thickly in muffins or pudding, however.

Blueberry Tea Muffins.
[1 dozen]

¼ cup vegetable shortening
½ cup sugar
2 eggs
2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
¾ cup milk
½ cup blueberries

Cream fat and sugar together. Add beaten eggs and mix well. Sift remaining dry ingredients together, reserving ½ cup flour in which to dredge the blueberries. Add dry ingredients and milk alternately to first mixture. Stir in lightly the floured blueberries. Bake in greased muffin pans at 400 degrees for 25 or 30 minutes.

Blueberry Pudding.

¼ cup shortening
¾ cup sugar
1 egg
2¼ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup milk
1 cup blueberries

Cream fat and sugar and beat in egg. Sift other dry ingredients, reserving part of the flour to dredge the blueberries. Add dry ingredients alternately with milk to first mixture. Beat thoroughly. Stir in floured blueberries and pour mixture into greased layer cake pan. Bake in 350 degree oven for 40 to 45 minutes. Cut in squares and serve hot with lemon sauce.

Culbertson's "Gold Book of Bidding and Play"

[Copyright: 1937: By Ely Culbertson.]

If a player is vulnerable and opponents are not vulnerable, he can gain about 100 points more by trying for a slam than the value of his second game. If both sides are vulnerable he breaks about even.

A blind finesse offers even chances for a full trick or nothing. Therefore, if a player will bid a small slam whenever he can account for eleven sure winners while the twelfth will hinge upon a finesse, he will mathematically neither gain nor lose by bidding a small slam. It must be remembered, however, that in many cases, instead of a blind finesse, declarer has at his disposal a number of plays such as the establishment of a second long suit, a ruff, a throw-in play, or a squeeze. Hence this rule:

1. A small slam, vulnerable or not vulnerable, should be attempted whenever the estimate of combined hands indicates that the making of the twelfth trick depends upon only one favorable circumstance, such as a finesse.

2. A small slam should not be bid whenever it depends upon more than one "50-50" circumstance, such as two finesses or a finesse coupled with a favorable suit break.

TODAY'S HAND.

SOUTH
♠ 8 7

♣ K 10 8 3 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 spade	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	3 spades	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

South felt that his hand was too much of a "minnie" to open originally. After North's third hand opening, however [which incidentally was a sound strategic bid], South felt that he should take considerable action to dispel the impression he had created by his original pass, hence, decided in favor of two no trump rather than two clubs.

West opened his fourth best club. Declarer won and, on the hope that the club ace would be played immediately, returned a club toward dummy's jack. West ducked, however, and East showed out. Declarer saw that it would be necessary to run the spade suit in order to acquire nine tricks. Rather than disclose his diamond holding by returning to his hand with a diamond and finessing for the spade queen, he played to drop this vital card by leading the ace and king. The queen not failing, a third round of spades was led, declarer discarding a club and holding his breath against a heart shift. His hopes were heightened by seeing West discard the deuce of hearts.

East had been planning a heart shift from the very beginning, but when he saw the deuce signal he abandoned the idea without further thought, and shifted to a low diamond. Declarer almost whooped with joy as he gobbled up the trick, ran two more diamonds, and three more spades for his contract's fulfilment.

That the heart deuce was a miserable discard is beyond denial. But, on this particular occasion, East should not have paid it the slightest attention! On the bidding West simply could not hold the ace, king, and a small diamond, and any other diamond holding by West could not avail. The situation itself shrieked for a heart shift, and in this specific case East should have relied on his own diagnosis instead of on a signal from a partner who, obviously, could not have been expert.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: The bidding has been:

South	North
1 no trump	2 hearts

What should South rebid with: ♠ A J 7 ♥ A Q 7 ♦ K 10 9 5 ♣ K Q 6?

Answer: Three hearts.

Summer Ideal Time to Study One's Children

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Among the many opportunities of one sort and another that summer offers to parents is that of studying their children. Things are more leisurely in summer, you are with the children more, and probably you see more of their friends and of them with their friends. Leisure time like this that you may have with them often is revealing, not just of surface behavior, but of the deeper aspects of them as people. If there have been school or play or home difficulties during the year, now is a good time to watch them. Don't do anything for a while—just watch.

I was thinking mostly of mothers when I wrote the above, but summer provides opportunities for fathers also to get to know their children and for children to get to know their fathers. If you are one of those men who spends his Saturdays and Sundays away from home, or on personal interests of his own, if you always take your vacation off somewhere with several other men, try this summer taking your vacation with the children.

And by that I mean a vacation in which you do things together. There is nothing like enjoying the doing of things together to foster the feeling of comradeliness and to disclose, too, qualities of personality and character. I know of several men who got their first real glimpses of their children through a family vacation, enforced at first by lack of funds for their usual expensive camping trips or cruises, but later repeated voluntarily. And repeated by them not from a sense of duty but because they had enjoyed themselves.

As we were saying, summer provides not only opportunities to enjoy your child and to get to know him better, but also to really study him. The result of all this may be the disappearance of friction, or of behavior that has been worrying you. Many problems at which you have been working "in a fog" will clear up in this way. Among them may be this one that I receive so many questions about—of children taking things not their own—which will be discussed tomorrow, Sunday.

Fathers will find helpful our booklet called "Living with Our Inbetweens. Children from 8 to 12." A 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope will bring it to you. Address Mrs. Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

If a Fellow Is Indifferent He Seldom Is Won

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"For almost two years I have been completely infatuated with a handsome Italian chap. Yes, he has black eyes. I have tried being attentive and indifferent in turn, but nothing seems to give him the slightest interest in me. I am, needless to say, quite desolate. I would appreciate your advice as to what I may do to impress him in some slight way."

You have been unable to impress the young man in the two years you have known him, so your chances for doing so now or ever seem very remote. His attitude indicates clearly that you haven't aroused in him sufficient interest that he should seek you out as a companion to share with him his pleasures and amusements or with whom he would wish to spend evenings alone.

You will be much better off if you look for some one else with whom to spend your time, some one who will relish your friendship and enjoy the time spent with you. Just to keep on thinking of your handsome black eyed Romeo will do no good. It will only make you unhappy. You must realize that if you had made an impression he would have been around before this, wanting to date you. But he hasn't, and the sooner you are able to forget him the better.

It's not the easiest thing in the world to do and it takes time, but it's up to you. Unless you make up your mind to do it, you will be unhappy. Were he to have shown even a casual interest there might be some hope that he would change his attitude later.

If you do not find a substitute for him soon, devote your time to other things. Keep your mind occupied. Don't pass up eligible admirers because they haven't the same appeal at first meeting that this chap had. Very often we learn to care more for those who haven't that first appeal. Through association we learn to appreciate their finer qualities, qualities that are endearing.

CHICAGO TO GET NEW HOSPITAL FOR CONTAGION

Court Orders Merger of $1,000,000 in Trusts.

Construction of a modern hospital for study and treatment of contagious diseases was assured Chicago yesterday when Judge Cornelius J. Harrington in the Circuit court signed an order making possible the consolidation of trust funds totaling more than $1,000,000 for the purpose.

The site for the hospital, donated by the University of Chicago, is on the east side of Drexel boulevard between 58th and 59th streets. This site will be sufficiently isolated, but convenient to other medical buildings on the campus, according to university officials.

$160,000 from Durand Estate.

Judge Harrington's order was entered in a friendly action brought by the Northern Trust company, as administrator of the estate of the late Annie W. Durand, to construe the terms of her will. The judge held that the will could be interpreted to permit the use of $160,000 for the construction of the new hospital. This money was realized from the sale of the old Durand hospital and laboratories at 637 South Wood street to a Mary E. Cashin.

Mrs. Durand left funds in her will for the building of hospitals in two of the poorest and most thickly settled parts of the city. The Durand hospital on Wood street was built in 1913 and was operated by the John Rockefeller McCormick institute for Infectious Disease. This hospital was discontinued in 1933 when its income dropped far below operating expenses.

Funds from Hospital Sale.

Attorneys for the University of Chicago introduced evidence to show that the provisions of Mrs. Durand's will could be fulfilled by use of the money from the sale of the west side hospital for the new institution, as a population shift in the city has produced south side slum areas, which best could be served by a hospital on the campus.

The new institution will be called the Charles Gilman Smith hospital, under the terms of a trust fund established by Mrs. Harriet G. Smith, who died in 1896. The trust fund now has reached $500,000.

Also going into the pool for the campus hospital will be funds from the McCormick institute, which was founded in memory of a son of Harold F. McCormick and the late Edith Rockefeller McCormick.

Pledge by Mr. McCormick.

Mr. McCormick pledged the payment of $612,500 as a permanent endowment fund in 1947 and for 25 years has been paying 4 per cent interest a year on this amount into the fund.

A similar pledge was made by Edith Rockefeller McCormick, who had paid about $2,000 at the time of her death in 1932. Efforts are being made to recover money from her estate on this pledge.

University of Chicago trustees will hear a report on the hospital project on July 8 and then will authorize the drawing of architectural plans. It is expected that construction will be started next spring and completed in the summer. Present plans call for forty beds in the institution.

Cost Around a Million.

The building and equipment will cost between $350,000 and $500,000, and about the same amount will be expended for maintenance endowments and furnishings.

"Within the limits of its size, we hope to make the new hospital the world's best for contagious diseases, said George O. Fairweather, assistant treasurer of the university. "Most hospitals of this kind are a decade or more old."

GENERAL FOODS ASKS OPTION ON TELEVISION SHOW

Calls for Initial Program on NBC Chain.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Anticipating the early availability of television for commercial broadcasting, General Foods corporation, one of radio's biggest and most successful sponsors, has filed application with NBC for an option to sponsor the initial commercial visual-radio venture. The corporation would make Capt. Henry's Show Boat, which is moving to Hollywood next Thursday, the first sponsored television program.

The application revealed that contracts with the new cast of entertainers—and these include Charles Winninger, Jack Haley, Tommy Thomas, Nadine Connor, Virginia Verrill, and Meredith Willson and his orchestra—have clauses in them stating that they shall be in full force and effect with the advent of television. [Lanny Ross, long associated with Show Boat, finished his contract last Thursday.]

Other programs under the General Foods banner are George Burns and Gracie Allen, Jack Benny, Jane Froman, Robert Ripley, and B. A. Rolfe. And locally they air baseball over WIND.

News notes: Tyrone Power Jr. is to be the headliner of a new dramatic serial to be aired by the same sponsor as the Rippling Rhythm Revue in August. . . . Gracie Allen is to dance with Fred Astaire in his next picture, "Damsel in Distress. . . . Bob Burns takes over for Bing Crosby next Thursday and John Scott Trotter, who used to play the piano at the Blackhawk for Hal Kemp, becomes the orchestra leader replacing Jimmy Dorsey.

$45,000 AWARDED BOY, 11, FOR BURNS WHEN 2 WKS. OLD

Big Verdict Returned Against Hospital.

A Superior court jury yesterday awarded George Maretick, 11 years old, 3801 North Crawford avenue, $45,000 damages from the South Chicago Community hospital, 2323 East 92d street, for permanent injuries incurred when he was burned in the hospital two weeks after his birth.

Court observers declared this was one of the largest verdicts ever returned by a jury in Cook county, and the first awarded for injuries suffered by such a young child. It was also one of the few ever assessed against hospitals, which are usually immune from such suits because they are incorporated as charitable institutions.

$50,000 Asked in Suit.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Evelyn Maretick Running, who has remarried, brought suit for $50,000 in his name because of injuries incurred by George on Oct. 12, 1926, when he was lying in a crib in the hospital beside an incubator containing another new baby.

Attorney Royal Irwin, counsel for Mrs. Running, told the jury before Judge E. I. Frankhauser that the incubator was fashioned from a metal hood placed over a crib. Inside the incubator was placed an electric light to supply heat for the baby, one Walter Zurawski Jr.

Short Circuit Blamed.

A short circuit occurred in the wiring, Attorney Irwin related. This started a fire which destroyed the incubator and burned the Zurawski baby to death.

The flames spread from the incubator to the crib of Mrs. Running's baby. Before the flames were extinguished they caused severe burns on the left side of his head and left arm and leg. The burns have prevented hair from growing on the left side of George's head, Attorney Irwin said, and have permanently withered the muscles in his arm and leg.

In defense, the hospital averred it had not been negligent, that the tragedy was purely an accident.

Lady Montrose [No boy]	120	8-1
Schoolmom [C. Corbett]	105	8-1
Recussion [M. L. Fallon]	101	10-1
Rifted Clouds [L. Haas]	112	20-1
Alkit [C. Landolt]	106	15-1

Squaw Lady [D. Packer]	109	50-1
Shatterproof [J. Westrope]	107	10-1
After All [I. Anderson]	109	6-1
Mars Shield [A. Robertson]	115	3-1

BY FRENCH LANE.

The country's best fillies and mares will put on the show this afternoon at Arlington Park when the Matron handicap—one of the few stakes of this kind run anywhere—will be offered as the opener of a big holiday racing week-end.

In the equine world the Matron stakes takes the place of a beauty contest except that it is speed and stamina that count rather than good looks. Still it is pretty certain that the winner of this contest will have a beautiful head and neck, a striking figure and, above all, very shapely legs.

If Miss Chicago wins—that's what they're calling Mars Shield, winner of the Kentucky Oaks and Texas Derby—the crown will drop on the brow of a tomboy. Mars Shield has all the outward appearances of a beauty queen, but when she gets out on the race track she's rough and tough and always hard to catch.

Chicago Horses Run.

Mars Shield will be the representative of Mrs. Ethel V. Mars in the Matron. There could be another Miss Chicago crowned, however, for Mrs. Emil Denemark will be represented by the 1936 Kentucky Oaks winner Two Bob, and by Brown Feathers, a granddaughter of Man o' War. Warren Wright will also have a horse in the skirmish. His horse, After All, will seek the honors for his Calumet Farm stable.

Mars Shield will rule as the favorite in the field of fifteen and Mrs. Denemark's entry will likely be the second choice.

Miss Indiana in the race will be Thomas D. Taggart's 4 year old mare Marica, Miss Louisiana will be Mrs. A. B. Letellier's Shatterproof and Miss Missouri will be the Woolford Farms, Rifted Clouds.

Two Kentucky Horses.

There are two Miss Kentuckys that can run fast and far. Either could cause a lot of trouble. They are Mrs. Roy Carruthers' Schoolmom, a brilliant winner in a tune up race at Arlington this week, and Recussion, owned by Arthur B. Hancock.

The Matron is over the Hertz mile course, which has been in splendid condition for the better part of a week. It will probably be run in sizzling time. No less than a half dozen trainers announced yesterday that the horse that beats his charge will have to run the eight furlongs in better than 1:37. High weights in the race will be Two Bob and Marica. The former will carry 123 pounds and the latter 122. Mars Shield gets into the contest under 115 because she is a 3 year old.

Mars Shield at 3-1.

The betting last night indicated the Matron would be quite a wild wagering affair. While Mars Shield ruled as the favorite, the odds against her were 3 to 1. The Denemark entry of Two Bob and Brown Feathers was at 7 to 2. Next in line was Marica at 5 to 1 and the fourth choice was Warren Wright's After All at 6 to 1. All the others were quoted from 8 to 1 to 50 to 1. Those juicy 50 to 1 odds were offered against Squaw Lady, owned by F. P. Letellier of New Orleans, brother-in-law of Mrs. A. B. Letellier, who is sending Shatterproof after the prize.

The riding might play a big part in the outcome of the race, still most of the leading contenders will be handled by skilled pilots. Robertson, the leading jocky at Arlington, will be in the saddle on Mars Shield. Kurtsinger on Two Bob, Dotter on Marica, and Anderson on Schoolmom.

If 15 go to the post the Matron will have a gross value of $6,870, with the winner's share the handsome prize of $5,010. It is expected that a holiday throng of 25,000 or more will see the fillies and mares strive for the honor.

The handicap is the sixth race on the program and will be run at about 5 o'clock.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 2.—Ohio State has lost Jesse Owens, who startled the western conference two years ago with a world record in the broad jump. But Ohio State—and let the Big Ten beware—has another colored athlete, Charles Walker, who has completed his freshman year and who tonight in the National A. A. U. junior track and field meet declared himself ready to carry on where Owens left off.

Freshman Walker won the national title with a leap of 24 feet 10 inches, which established a new meet record. Robert Hubbard of Minnesota was second to the Buckeye star, but his best effort was nine inches short of the champion's record.

Six Marks Fall.

The former broad jump record had withstood challenge for six years. It was placed on the A. A. U. books by Chicago university's John Brooks, then competing for Chase park, Chicago.

Walker's record was one of six meet marks which were broken. Another was tied. All provided fitting prelude to the fiftieth senior championship meet, which will be held at Marquette university tomorrow afternoon.

Three thousand five hundred saw tonight's events. Twice that number are expected to watch the nation's most proficient athletes compete in the final of the two day carnival tomorrow afternoon.

Walker Ties in High Jump.

By his jump today Walker proved he has an excellent chance in the senior jump tomorrow unless, of course, his work this afternoon and evening dulled his form. Moreover, this 20 year old boy, who graduated two years ago from Scott high school, Toledo, and whose brother, Mel, is a noted high jumper at Ohio State, competed in his brother's specialty last night.

Charles finished in a four way tie for third place in the high jump, tying at 6 feet.

Other records established in the national junior meet were 10,000 meter run, javelin throw, 400 meter dash, 1,500 meter run, and the 200

Cleveland Pitcher Tests His Ailing Arm Tomorrow

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 2.—What about Bob Feller, the lad from the Iowa corn fields who donned a Cleveland Indian uniform last season at the age of 18 and blazed a spectacular strikeout trail across the baseball horizon?

Bob Feller.

The baseball world has been waiting anxiously almost three months to learn whether the youth ever will again pitch effectively with the arm which was regarded as invaluable until last April 24, when something snapped in the muscles and put him out of action.

The answer, or at least a hint, to the final result of the injury will come Sunday. The Indians intend to start him that day in Cleveland's vast municipal stadium against Detroit's Tigers.

The Feller case has not only been one of baseball's biggest sensations, but one of its most intriguing mysteries. He made himself a sensation on last Sept. 13, when he fanned 17 Philadelphia Athletics, equaling a mark established three years previously by Dizzy Dean against the Cubs.

Could Feller's Trouble Be Only Imaginary?

The affair became a national topic when the Des Moines minor league club charged Cleveland with invading its territory for talent, a dispute finally patched up last December when Commissioner K. M. Landis decided the Cleveland club was guiltless but should pay the complaining party a few thousand dollars as balm.

Mystery sneaked into the case as soon as Feller claimed he was an invalid. The baseball experts took sides. Some predicted the kid wouldn't be any good for at least another year. Some said he would pitch inside of a week or two. Baseball players and managers were divided in their opinions. Some of them claimed there never was anything wrong with the young man. They said he merely developed a kid's imagination. The Cleveland officials charged, as they were, with a desire to collect spring exhibition receipts at any cost, sprinted in circles to dodge the barbed darts of the baseball writers.

Pitches Five Innings After Hurting His Arm.

The idea that Feller merely developed a mental hazard, although he undoubtedly hurt his arm, resulted from what happened on the day the arm went bad. He pitched six innings, whereupon he was exused at his own request. The Browns scored four runs on him in the first inning that afternoon and none thereafter. He complained that he felt sharp pain when he threw a curve ball to Knickerbocker in the first inning. But the Browns who hit against him will still tell you they didn't notice any difference in his "stuff" during the five subsequent innings.

Since his injury on April 24 Feller has pitched only two innings of baseball. The Cleveland club originally intended to start him inside of ten days after the mishap, but that proved impossible. The home office then asked that he be advertised to appear on a subsequent date at Chicago. The club manager, according to reports, refused to accept this advice and Feller didn't appear. Then no attempt to use him was made until June 23 at Washington in a game already lost. He was gone in two innings. He allowed four hits, walked two, and fanned one. He didn't look like the original Feller.

When he made his first bid for

Walkup Limits Chicagoans to Six Hits.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., July 2.—The second place White Sox faded today when confronted by a chance to close in on the pacemaking Yankees. The Chicagoans went into the eighth inning with a one run lead, but John Henderson Whitehead suddenly fell apart, the lowly Browns shoved three runs across the plate, and the day's business ended with the Sox on the useless end of a 4 to 2 score. It was Whitehead's fourth successive failure as a nine inning journeyman pitcher.

No alibis can be offered by the Dykes employés, who usually are able to make a noticeable impression with their bats. On this occasion they were painfully feeble against a fellow named Elton Jim Walkup. They could disturb him with only six hits, only one of which came in the last four innings. They scored on him once only because he gave up a pass at the wrong time and the second time because Mike Kreevich stepped in with a triple.

No One Was Surprised.

Whitehead's blowup, while coming after he had worked brilliantly enough through five successive innings, wasn't entirely unexpected. His conduct at the start furnished a gentle hint that he was none too robust. Four hits popped loose against him in the first two innings and a fortunate double play probably saved him from extinction then and there. After the shaky start he settled and for five innings gave up only two hits, both fly balls which scraped the short right field screen.

The pace of the big Texan was slowed down in the eighth on a double, a pass, and a single. That tied up the argument and Clint Brown, the rescue man, was called on again. His usual skill was absent and before he could halt the march the Browns had registered two more.

John Lucky in First.

Whitehead yielded a pair of passes and two singles in the first inning so he probably considered himself fortunate to escape with only one run against his record. With one out Davis singled to right and West walked. Clift flied to Radcliff and a free ticket to Bell filled the bases. Dykes knocked down a low drive close to the bag by Allen and held

Budge Whips Von Cramm in English Final

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WIMBLEDON, England, July 2.—John Donald Budge, 22 year old member of America's Davis cup forces, defeated Baron Gottfried von Cramm of Germany, the world's No. 2 ranking player, in the finals of the men's singles competition in the all-England tennis tournament today before a crowd of 15,500, which included Queen Mother Mary. The scores were 6-3, 6-4, and 6-2.

Don Budge.

The red-headed Oakland, Cal., star had no difficulty against Von Cramm. His powerful shots and speed amazed the crowd. Budge put up the greatest game of his career in scoring his second victory over the German. English tennis fans, however, expected the triumph, for they had watched the young American easily win from England's No. 1 player, Henry Austin, in the finals of the Queens club tournament two weeks ago.

"I Must Be Lucky."

Budge was presented to the queen mother after his victory over Von Cramm. He declined to reveal what she said. Later, however, Budge said:

"Why, I must be lucky. Imagine being able to play that kind of tennis on an occasion like this."

Budge's victory brightened America's Davis cup hopes. Observers who saw the American crush Von Cramm believe Budge will have no trouble scoring two singles victories against any squad the United States meets, and for the other point necessary to triumph. Budge probably will pair with Gene Mako in the doubles.

Scores 36 Placements.

Budge scored 36 placements. In the third set 22 out of his 40 points shot past Von Cramm.

The new champion and Gene Mako will seek the men's doubles title tomorrow against the British team of George Patrick Hughes and C. R. D. Tuckey, defending champions. Hughes and Tuckey reached the final round today by defeating Ladislaus Hecht and Roderich Menzel, Czechoslovakia, 6-2, 6-2, 6-4. Budge and Mako rallied to triumph over Von Cramm and Heinrich Henkel, Germany, 4-6, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4, 6-3.

In the Wake of the News

EDWARD J. HUGHES, Illinois secretary of state, was traveling in a smoking car. . . . The discussion waxed hot about the 14 count of Referee Dave Barry in the 1927 Tunney-Dempsey bout. . . . Mr. Hughes had been a good listener, so one of the debaters demanded to know what he thought about it. . . . This was his comment: "Which one of you fellows can remember the name of the referee in the Dempsey-Firpo fight?" . . . There was no response. . . . "Can any of you remember the referee of the first Tunney-Dempsey bout in Philadelphia?" he inquired. . . . Nothing but silence. . . . "Well, Barry at least kept his name in your memories," observed Hughes. . . . Two of Snyder's high jumpers, Dave Albritton and Mel Walker, have cleared 6 feet 9¾ inches. . . . Purdue and Notre Dame, who divided a two year series in football a few seasons ago, will play another game at South Bend in 1939. . . . Illinois and Notre Dame, who open a two year contract next fall, are working on a new three year agreement beginning in 1940. . . . Wisconsin probably will be back on Notre Dame's schedule about that time, too. . . .

GALAN'S HOME RUN WITH 1 ON JOLTS PIRATES

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Cubs' flair for the dramatic in their stubborn determination to stay in first place went into a bigger and better home run phase yesterday. Four homers were socked by Cub batsmen and the fourth of these was the biggest and most thrilling of all, a smash by Augie Galan with one on and one out in the ninth which in the wink of an eye transformed a 7 to 6 Pirate victory into an 8 to 7 Cub triumph.

The outcome kept the Cubs in first place, ahead of the Giants, who also won, and dropped the Pirates, who Thursday, as a result of Cub success in St. Louis, had gone into a third place tie with the Cardinals.

With seeming intent to set the stage for the whopping windup, Manager Grimm started Larry French, who thus far hasn't been able to beat a first division team.

Wins the Hard Way.

If Manager Grimm had in mind winning the hard way when he appointed French he must have beamed at Larry's handicapping. In the first inning Lee Handley and Paul Waner doubled, Arky Vaughan singled and Gus Suhr knocked a homer. Because a double play was mixed in the Pirates made only three runs.

In the third the Cubs tied the score with the first of the Cub homers, one by Frank Demaree. Stan Hack doubled with two out, and scored the first run on Rip Collins' single. Then Demaree hit his homer, scoring behind Collins.

Bill Jurges' homer put the Cubs ahead 4 to 3 in the fourth. But French still was pitching. In the fifth the Pirates made two runs on a walk, a double by L. Waner and the third of P. Waner's four hits. The Pirates again led, 5 to 4.

French Still in There.

French still was in there in the seventh and Manager Grimm must have been chuckling aloud at his sly prank by this time. The Pirates pounded Larry for the tenth, eleventh and twelfth hits and two runs to go ahead, 7 to 4.

In the home seventh, Manager Grimm decided he had gone far enough with his handicapping technique. He got French out of the panorama by letting Lonnie Frey bat for him. Red Lucas got the Cubs out in order in that seventh and Curt Davis, the day's winning pitcher, retired the Pirates in order in the first of the eighth.

Again the homer technique. Collins opened the home eighth with his second single. Demaree and Herman were retired. The Cubs still behind, 7-4. Socko! Gabby Hartnett drove one into the bleachers, waddling home in Collins' wake. Jurges was retired and the Pirates still looked like the winners.

Lucas Calm Enough.

Lucas seemed calm enough going into the ninth. Cavarretta lined to Handley. Two outs to go and the Cubs would topple out of first place. Ken O'Dea batted for Davis and ran the count to three balls and two strikes. He took a half hitch at that third ball, but changed his mind in the nick of time. The next pitch was wide and Ken walked. The rapid George Stainback went to first to run for O'Dea. But Stainback didn't have to be rapid this time.

HILDA LIVENGOOD TAKES ILLINOIS GOLF TITLE, 6-4

Defeats Miss Johnson in Final at Elgin.

Hilda Mae Livengood of Danville, 18 years old, freckle faced, and with the power of many of the leading men golfing stars in her broad shoulders, won two decisive victories at the Elgin Country club yesterday to become the first two time state winner in the annual Illinois women's golf championship.

Hilda Livengood.

Touring the par 76 rolling course with businesslike precision, the University of Illinois sophomore required only 30 holes of play to sweep aside two opponents and win her second state championship in three years.

Stepping to the first tee in the morning semi-finals, Miss Livengood, who won her first title at Springfield in 1935, soon was master of her match with Miss Virginia Lindblad of Lincolnshire, whom she defeated 3 and 2, and then in the afternoon the Danville star disposed of her most persistent golf nemesis, Shirley Ann Johnson of Sunset Ridge, to win the championship.

First Victory Over Shirley.

Miss Livengood's 6 and 4 victory over the Chicagoan was the first triumph she had ever scored over Shirley, the latter having beaten Hilda no less than three times in other tourneys.

Miss Johnson, winner over Miss Livengood at Park Ridge in 1934, in the western junior and again in 1936 in the Chicago district tourney, did not awe the Danville girl yesterday. Hilda held a two hole advantage after nine holes, with a medal 40, four over par. The remaining five holes were just a breeze for the downstater.

Miss Johnson, who defeated Mrs. Ella Mae Williams Cutler of Elgin in the other semi-final match, 2 and 1, was repeatedly in trouble during the championship match. Shirley dubbed two shots, hit the traps once and three-putted one green during the out nine and her game didn't improve coming home.

Two Holes Spoil Medal.

If Miss Livengood had been able to get past the fourth and ninth in par figures against Miss Lindblad, she would have turned in a subpar medal of 35, which would have been the best nine hole card of the entire tourney. She hit the trap and overshot the green at the fifth for a five on the par three hole and took three to reach the ninth green. Yet Hilda made the turn with a four-up lead.

Miss Johnson and Mrs. Cutler were all square through nine holes, each carding medal 39's. Shirley took a one up lead at No. 12 as Mrs. Cutler drove out of bounds and the Northwestern university junior stayed in front, winning on the seventeenth with a par 4 as Mrs. Cutler used three strokes to get onto the green.

Next Tuesday Deadline for Junior Golfers

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Closing dates for three of the most important tournaments of the 1937 golf season were announced yesterday. Most imminent is that of the Western Golf association's annual junior championship, the deadline for which is next Tuesday. Final entry dates for the forty-first national amateur championship and the sixteenth national public links tournament are July 14 and July 24, respectively, each to be filed with the United States Golf association, 73 East 57th street, New York. Entries for the western junior must be forwarded to the secretary, J. Harvey Irwin, 175 West Jackson boulevard.

The western junior, which in the past has produced such stars as Bob Cochran, Chuck Becka, Johnny Banks, Fred Haas Jr., and Sid Richardson, will be played at the Cherry Hill Golf club in Flossmoor on July 13, 14, 15, and 16. Among those already entered are Joe Franco of Winnetka, runner-up to Richardson last year; Andy Paul and Emil Vinovich of Peoria; F. E. Richard, Lee Summers, and John Hayes of Urbana; Philip McCanna of Burlington, Wis.; R. S. Durkes of Dixon, Ill., and Louis Trierweiler of Aurora. Richardson, who recently won the Big Ten championship, has vacated the title, having passed the age limit. The tournament is open to all amateur golfers, members of the Caucasian race, who have reached their sixteenth birthday and have not attained their twentieth birthday. The entrance fee is $1.

The national amateur, which goes to the far west for the second time in history, will be decided at the Alderwood Country club of Portland, Ore., the week of Aug. 23. The field of approximately 180 will be determind in sectional qualifying rounds to be held in 31 districts throughout the country on July 27. The Chicago district qualifying round will be held at Olympia Fields.

The public links championship will have the Harding Memorial park course at San Francisco as its site the week of Aug. 9. Qualifying rounds for this must be held locally in the period between June 26 and July 19, inclusive.

The next pro-amateur event of the Illinois section of the P. G. A. will be held on Tuesday at the Techny Fields Golf club, Northbrook. Jock Anderson of the home club requests professionals to bring their own amateur partners.

TRANSPORT, away fast but taken back under light restraint to follow the early pace, raced around the leaders on the stretch turn and ridden out, came away fast in last eighth. NOAHS PRIDE, under strong riding from the start, worked his way to the front before going a quarter, served ground in the stretch and held on well. GRASSWRACK, never a great distance back and taken to the outside after three-eighths, closed resolutely.

ESSAYFREE, making his first start, secured passage on the inside while being rushed to the front in the first three-sixteenths, was rated around the turn under light restraint, increased his advantage when shaken up and probably had something left. LAUERMAN, forced to race wide and away slowly, gradually improved his position and shook off ODDESA MAID in the final eighth. Latter, raced wide early and under restraint for about three-eighths, went with determination when placed to pressure and saved ground in the stretch but could not withstand LAUERMAN.

DISTRACTIBLE, forced to race wide around the turn much of the opening quarter, following which she was steadied to the stretch, raced to the lead quickly when set down but was inclined to loaf after taking command and was kept under pressure to the end. SLEEP WELL made the early pace under restraint, increased her advantage on the stretch turn and held on well despite her inability to hold the winner. MIDDLEBROOK was under stout urging after three-eighths and gave an even performance.

MAD MONEY, forced to race wide throughout as GARRY, racing on the inside was inclined to bear out, had fine speed from the start, began to draw away approaching the final eighth and held on resolutely to the end. GARRY, under pressure early but restrained on the turn where he was inclined to bear out, could not get to the winner when called upon in the stretch. TAKEN, TRANSPORT and LEGAL ADVICE, on the inside to the stretch where he came out, was slow to rally but came with good speed in the final eighth and was getting to the leaders.

Root. Went to post at 4:10½. At post 1½ minute. Start good, for all but SARANARA, from permanent gate. Won easily, place driving.

TERPSICHORE, taking command quickly, made the pace easily for three-quarters, came away following a mild rousing after reaching the final quarter and held away to the end. CONTRAST, on the inside for three-quarters, during which she raced under restraint, responded well after coming to outside in the stretch, and wore down BANISH FEAR in the final eighth. Latter, also under restraint for about three-quarters, held on well to last eighth, then began to weaken.

SPARTA, in very close quarters on the inside shortly after the start, was eased back in going to the outside of the leaders after about three-eighths, responded when called upon in the final quarter and won drawing out. BOOTMAKER forced the pace under occasional light pressure, drew into command approaching the stretch, offered strong, although futile, resistance. to SPARTA'S challenge and weakened in the late stages but outstayed SIR JIM JAMES. Latter, on the inside after the first quarter and well tested, failed to withstand the leaders yet held on well and was wearing down BOOTMAKER at the end.

Yields Only Seven Hits in Victory Over Bees.

New York, July 2.—(AP)—Carl Hubbell was back with all his stuff today and pitched the Giants to a 6 to 2 victory over the Boston Bees for the New Yorkers' sixth straight victory.

Yielding only seven hits and fanning seven, Hubbell scored his third straight victory in his comeback campaign and his 11th of the season. He has lost four games. Only one extra base hit was struck off him—Rabbit Warstler's homer with the sacks empty in the fifth.

Gus Mancuso connected for three straight hits, including a homer with a mate aboard that clinched the game in the sixth. Lou Chiozza also had three hits, driving in two runs.

Haas, Leslie Reach Finals of College Golf

Oakmont, Pa., July 2.—(AP)—Louisiana State's Paul Leslie and Freddie Haas will meet tomorrow for the national intercollegiate golf championship.

Leslie got the jump on Bill Barclay, Michigan, nursed his lead carefully, and finally won, 3 and 2, in one of today's semi-finals. Haas, on the other hand, started like a duffer, was five down after ten holes and then, when it appeared he was certainly doomed, began to hit his shots like a champion. His rally overtook Vincent D'Antoni, Tulane, and he won, 5 and 4.

The 21 year old youngsters, Haas, a New Orleans boy, who was graduated last month, and Leslie, a Jefferson City, Mo., junior, have been serious intercollegiate contenders in each of their college years.

Galan's Homer in Ninth Wins for Cubs, 8-7

even get to perform his familiar trick of climbing atop the right field screen. Galan's shot went clear over the bleachers into Sheffield avenue. Stainback and Galan weeded through ushers and ladies' day guests to the home plate and the game was over.

French Wabbly in First.

The Cubs tied the score after French and Galan had executed infield popups in the third inning. Hack doubled to left center and scored on Collins' single to right. Demaree then lined his No. 6 homer into the bleachers in right center, scoring behind Collins.

Cubs Take Lead.

French passed Lucas on five pitches to get the Pirate fifth under way. Handley forced Lucas, French to Herman, but L. Waner doubled to left, Handley stopping at third. P. Waner fouled seven pitches, then singled to left, scoring Handley and Brother Lloyd. Vaughan forced P. Waner and was then out trying to steal second.

The Waners got after French again in the seventh. With one down Lloyd knocked his second hit, a single to left, and stopped at second on Paul's fourth straight, a carom off Hack's glove. Vaughan walked, filling the bases. Suhr sent a long fly to Galan, L. Waner scoring. Todd singled to center, P. Waner, scoring and Vaughan taking third. Todd stole second without a play, but Jurges threw out Jensen.

Start Overtaking Process.

The Cubs started the overtaking process after Curt Davis had retired the Pirates in order in the first half of the eighth. Collins opened with a single, but Demaree and Herman were put out. Hartnett then rammed his No. 4 homer into the right field bleacher, scoring behind Collins.

Then the big windup in the Cub ninth.

Carleton Draws Bowman as Foe in Today's Game

Joe Bowman and Tex Carleton will be the opposing pitchers in this afternoon's Pirate-Cub game.

The first of Paul Waner's four hits yesterday gave him a record of having hit in his last 22 games. Big Poison hasn't failed to hit in two successive games this season.

The boys in the Cub counting room foresee a sellout for tomorrow's double-header, though all reserved seats have not been sold, as they have for Monday's double-header between the Cubs and Cardinals. It was announced that 20,000 grandstand seats will be placed on sale at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Curt Davis won his first decision of the year. He stopped the Pirates cold, except for a single by Arky Vaughan with two out in the ninth. The Pirates, so notoriously weak [supposedly] against left handed pitching, apparently got mixed up, thinking French a right hander and Davis a lefty.

The ladies' crowd of 23,998 was the second before which the Cubs have won in the ninth inning this week.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., July 2.—In the second of the series with the White Sox tomorrow the Browns will be forced to look at Bill Dietrich. The last time they saw him was June 1 and it was a memorable occasion. That was the afternoon on which Dietrich entered the record book with his no-hit game. Oral Hildebrand will pitch for St. Louis.

Mr. Joe McCarthy, manager of the Yankees, is going to hear a lot of remarks from the White Sox rooters when he pays his next visit to Comiskey park. The fans are already organizing for some concerted "needling" of McCarthy for his failure to name Luke Appling as his shortstop for the All-Star game next Wednesday.

Rollie Hemsley, the Browns' bad boy catcher, was put on the suspended list today by Manager Hornsby, "I'll keep him out about ten days and that probably will make him behave for the rest of the season," remarked the boss.

Sox, Beaten by Browns, 4-2, Fail to Gain

it to a single, Davis scoring. Knickerbocker also exploded a healthy drive in Dykes' direction but the manager threw him out.

One Hit and One Run.

After being denied entry to first base in the opening innings, the Sox picked up the tying run in the third on one hit. Dykes walked after indulging in a big argument with Umpire Ormsby, who called time while a pitched ball was coming up. Ormsby claimed Dykes had stepped out of the box and Dykes denied the claim. The manager was angry because the pitch was the fourth ball but he walked on the next, so he felt better. Sewell filed out and Whitehead tapped to Walkup, but Radcliff came through with a single to center and Dykes scored.

The Sox were a little ashamed of themselves for what they failed to do in the fourth. Walker filed to West for the first out. Bonura almost tore a hand off Knickerbocker with a twisting single. Appling hammered a single into West's territory, and Bonura dashed to third. Appling went to second on the throw in. They had to stand at their stations while the next two batters went out to the infield.

Mike Pleases His Pals.

The Mount Olive, Ill., delegation which apparently made up a good portion of the attendance of 1,117, had a chance to identify itself in the fifth. Their fellow citizen, Kreevich, lifted them up out of their seats. With one out Whitehead singled over third and Radcliff filed to Bell for the second out. Kreevich then drilled a hit into center and it hopped past West for a triple. Kreevich was resting on third before Whitehead reached the plate with the run that put the Sox in front by 2 to 1.

Whitehead had one out in the eighth before falling into the mixup which brought on his banishment, as well as defeat. West doubled off the screen in right, Cliff walked, and Bell singled to center, West scoring the tying run and Cliff going to third. Brown's attempt at rescue started with a pass to Allen, which loaded the bases. Knickerbocker sent a fly to Kreevich and Cliff scored, Bell going to third. Huffman beat out a slow bounder to Appling and Bell scored, Walkup then popped to Hayes.

Yanks Get Six Hits; Senators Triumph, 8-3

Washington, D. C., July 2.—(AP)—Bump Hadley's usual luck ran out on him today and the Senators clubbed him for an 8 to 3 victory over the New York Yankees. In spite of Joe Di Maggio's seventeenth homer of the year, the Yanks couldn't do much with the offerings of Carl Fischer and Ed Linke and managed to collect only six hits.

RED SOX, 8; ATHLETICS, 4.

Boston, Mass., July 2.—(AP)—The Red Sox celebrated their return to Fenway park today, thanks to homers by Ben Chapman and Buster Mills, with an 8 to 4 victory over the Athletics.

John Marcum gave up eight hits to the A's in the six innings he pitched, including a homer by Russ Peters with two on in the first. Marcum was yanked with none out in the seventh after Newsome doubled and scored the last Philadelphia run on Ambler's single. McKain then stepped in and held the opposition to three hits in the last three innings.

A. A. U. Decides Not to Send Team on German Tour

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., July 2.—The national Amateur Athletic union tonight agreed at an informal meeting to decline the invitation to send a team of track and field stars to Germany for an exhibition tour. However, after the Pan-American games in Dallas, Tex., against athletes from South and Central America, the United States winners here tomorrow in the 50th annual meet will be divided into squads to tour Japan, England, Switzerland, Hungary, France, and Holland.

The refusal of the A. A. U. to deal with Germany is considered in line with the fight conducted by Jeremiah T. Mahoney, now president of the association, who tried to keep United States from participating in the Olympic games. Mahoney resigned the presidency of the A. A. U. at that time. He was elected again last winter and apparently considered this as a mandate to carry out his program which is based on disapproval of German politics.

Is Bob Feller a Boy Wonder or a Hasbeen?

fame by fanning eight St. Louis Cardinals in an exhibition at Cleveland last year, an American League umpire was working the game. The same umpire observed Feller during his two-inning workout at Washington. The umpire's opinion was that the kid from Iowa was a long way from being the pitcher who had baffled the Cardinals in his maiden effort against big league batters.

For the last few weeks Feller has been working out daily and using his pitching arm normally. For weeks after the mishap he made no attempt to throw seriously. He merely lobbed the ball underhanded. But since the arm has emerged from the cripple class he has made no attempt to throw curve balls. He was cautioned against their use before he went in for his two-inning workout against Washington. And while reams of copy have been run off about his amazing speed, his curve ball is a big factor in his future.

He May Be Sent Home for a Rest.

It is common gossip among the baseball folk that the club would have started Feller long before now if it hadn't been for a double excuse. First, the club's business office is said to have become scared over the charge that it had brought on the trouble by forcing the lad when he wasn't ready to do strenuous work in the pre-season games. Then the officials—at least this is what baseball people say—decided that Feller could take his time; that when he pitched it would not be on orders from them but at his own request. In other words, they took stock in the theory that his own imagination was responsible and they'd let him wear it off.

Even big league trainers, and most of them are pretty wise to ball players' complaints, can't agree on the nature of the injury. Feller has insisted, and the Cleveland club's physicians have made a similar diagnosis, that the soreness was in the region of the elbow. Trainers believe the damage was in the shoulder and that the elbow trouble was the result of favoring the shoulder. But wherever the damage is located, the Cleveland club may send Feller home to rest for the remainder of the season if he is hit hard or is wild on Sunday or whenever he makes his next start.

Senior Enters Final of State Tennis Meet

Walter Senior of San Francisco entered the finals of the men's singles in the Illinois state tennis tournament at the Skokie Country club yesterday. The smooth stroking coast star, seeded second, triumphed over Samuel P. Hayes Jr. of South Hadley, Mass., ranked No. 5, 6-2, 6-4, 6-2.

Allison Is Maroon Star.

In the women's singles, the first four seeded players remained in the running as play reached the semi-final round. The upper half of the bracket will bring together Helen Fulton of Winnetka and Catherine Wolf, South Bend school teacher.

Miss Wolf scored a 12-10, 6-1 victory over Miss Fulton in the finals of the Wisconsin state tournament at Milwaukee last week. The lower half sends Mrs. Marjorie Gladman Van Ryn of Austin, Tex., top seeded, against Elizabeth Kesting of St. Paul, fourth seeded player.

In the quarter-final round yesterday Catherine Wolf defeated Virginia Hess Grelle of Chicago, 6-3, 6-2; Helen Fulton eliminated Christine Waples of Chicago, 6-2, 6-0; Mrs. Van Ryn turned in a 6-1, 6-1 victory over Virginia Winston of Evanston, and Elizabeth Kesting won from Margaret Stiel of Oak Park, 6-3, 6-4.

The first four ranking doubles teams in the men's division advanced to the semi-finals without trouble. Today's pairings list the Murphy twin combination,

NEW FINANCING HEAVIEST SINCE EARLY FEBRUARY

Issues of Week Exceed 182 Millions.

Corporate and municipal financing in the week ended July 1 totaled $182,789,613, largest since the week ending Feb. 11, when a total of $224,946,043 in new securities was floated, a survey showed yesterday. The preceding week's total was $110,000,000, and a year ago it was $192,499,205.

Utility issues led in last week's operations, accounting for a total of $116,949,000. One big issue, that of the Union Electric Company of Missouri, was responsible for the increase. The company marketed $95,000,000 of bonds and notes through a banking syndicate.

Offerings by Classes.

	1937.	1936.
Industrial	600,000	94,193,000
Utilities	116,949,000
Railroad	50,154,000	30,935,000
Miscellaneous		2,252,000
Total	$182,789,613	$192,499,205

New financing scheduled for next week by 121 municipalities totals $9,460,126, compared with the revised total of $15,841,659 in the last week. The Daily Bond Buyer reported yesterday.

The Interstate Commerce commission yesterday authorized the Butte, Anaconda, and Pacific Railway company to issue $2,500,000 of capital stock. The stock will be sold at 133.87 per cent of par and proceeds will reimburse the company's treasury for capital expenditures and for reduction in the company's first mortgage debt. The company will pay off $1,491,000 of its 5 per cent 30 year bonds Aug. 1.

Convert Into Stock.

American Type Founders, Inc., announced that at the close of business July 1 approximately $400,000 of the $600,000 debentures called for redemption had been converted into common stock. Conversion privilege for debentures expires July 6. Debentures will be redeemed at 107½ per cent of their principal value plus 2⅛ per cent interest.

The Central railroad of New Jersey asked interstate commerce authorities yesterday to extend the time in which it may pledge $1,174,000 of general mortgage 5 per cent bonds for loans or other purposes. The authority expired June 30, and the road asked its extension to permit sale or pledging of the bonds "if necessary to meet fixed charges or other corporate needs." The application did not set any specific date to which extension was sought.

Nonreserve State Banks to Pay Social Security Tax

Washington, D. C., July 2.—(AP)—The treasury decided today that all state banks which are not members of the federal reserve system must pay social security taxes. State Banks are not instrumentalities of the state governments, and therefore are subject to the security act, the department said.

Investors' Guide

Interstate Power.

Investors' Guide: Please give me information on Interstate Power company bonds, first 5s of 1957, and the condition of the company.—R. H. S.

Answer: Directly or through subsidiaries, Interstate Power company [Del.] supplies utility services to more than 325 small communities in Minnesota, Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, and Oklahoma. Population of the territory served is about 425,000. The company is controled by Utilities Power and Light corporation through ownership of all common stock.

Earnings have not been satisfactory since 1931, the most recent year in which preferred dividend requirements were covered. Net income was $475,000 or $3.96 per preferred share in 1932, $341,000 or $2.84 in 1933, $268,000 or $2.24 in 1934, and $72,000 or 60 cents in 1935.

A loss of $127,000 was reported in 1936, but the company said a net income of $123,000 would have been shown had provisions for retirements not been increased from the schedule of prior years.

Interest and other fixed charges were 95 per cent earned in 1936, compared with 1.03 times in 1935, 1.12 times in 1934, 1.15 times in 1933 and 1.21 times in 1932.

Funded debt consists of $28,775,000 of first mortgage 5 per cent bonds due in 1957 and $7,500,000 of 6 per cent debentures due in 1952. Both issues are speculative, although the first 5s rank ahead of the unsecured debentures.

Bell Telephone Pennsylvania.

Investors' Guide: Will you please explain the abbreviations, Bell T Pa 5s '48 B 117⅝ and Bell T Pa 5s '60 C 123⅜" from the list of bond quotations in the financial pages? .Why the difference in price when they are both 5s? Are these bonds considered a sound investment?—H. A. M.

Answer: The abbreviations to which you refer mean Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania 5 per cent bonds due in 1948 [or in 1960] series B [or series C]. Both issues are a direct obligation of the company and are secured by a first mortgage on all its property now owned or hereafter acquired in Pennsylvania. There are $35,000,000 of series B bonds and $50,000,000 of series C. They are considered a high investment rating.

The C series may not be redeemed before Oct. 1, 1957, and hence may be regarded as more desirable for long term investment than the B series, which may be redeemed any time after Jan. 1, 1944. Possibly the more distant call date accounts for the difference in price.

Expect Best Yield Since 1931.

An aggregate wheat crop of 871,000,000 bushels will be harvested this year, the largest since 1931, if the present condition of spring and winter wheat is maintained, according to reports issued yesterday by Chicago statisticians. For the first time since 1932 production promises to equal domestic requirements.

B. C. Snow. [Walinger Photo.]

A winter wheat crop of 642,000,000 bushels, or 7,000,000 bushels less than on June 1, was forecast. The spring wheat outlook was placed at 229,000,000 bushels. No estimate on production of the latter grain was made a month ago. In 1936 the winter wheat harvest was 519,000,000 bushels and spring wheat totaled 107,000,000 bushels.

No Allowance for Rust.

The current estimate on the wheat crop, according to the six Chicago experts, makes no allowance for black rust damage in the spring wheat belt. The winter grain crop has been only moderately affected. However, the Aug. 1 returns are expected to reflect the effect of the rust infestation, which is said by B. W. Snow to be the worst ever experienced in the winter wheat belt.

If the current crop outlook is maintained to harvest it would leave the United States with a total available supply, including carryover from 1936-'37, of approximately 960,000,000 bushels of wheat to cover domestic bread, feed and seed requirements. After making allowance for a normal carryover at the season there would be about 150,000,000 bushels available for export.

Reduce Canadian Estimates.

Estimates on the spring wheat crop of the three Canadian provinces were reduced more than 100,000,000 bushels during June as the result of continued hot and dry weather. The prospective yield was estimated yesterday at 216,000,000 bushels by Chicago statisticians, compared with 320,000,000 bushels on June 1, and with 212,000,000 bushels harvested in 1936, when the yield was the smallest in 17 years. The 1931-'35 average crop was 303,000,000 bushels.

A slightly better than average corn crop is forecast for this year by the reports of the Chicago experts, the indicated yield on July 1 being placed at 2,579,000,000 bushels, which, if realized would be the largest since 1932. The 1936 harvest was only 1,524,000,000 bushels, the smallest in many years.

Estimate Oats and Rye.

An oats crop of 1,185,000,000 bushels was indicated, or nearly 400,000,000 bushels in excess of the abnormally small yield in 1936, and comparing with a 1928-'32 average of 1,215,000,000 bushels. A rye crop of 49,000,000 bushels was forecast, or slightly in excess of domestic requirements, and 3,000,000 bushels more than the department of agriculture's June 1 returns and comparing with 26,000,000 bushels secured in 1936.

The department of agriculture will issue its July report on the condition of American grain crops and prospective yields on Friday, July 9. On the same date the Canadian government will issue a report on the acreage and condition of crops in that country.

Estimates on the leading American grain crops by Chicago experts issued yesterday showed a wide range, especially in spring wheat and corn. Indicated yields compare as follows [millions of bushels]:

Wheat Reserves on Farms.

Farm reserves of old wheat in the United States on July 1, 1937, are estimated by Nat C. Murray at 25,000,000 bushels, compared with 44,000,000 bushels a year ago, and a 1927-'36 average of 51,000,000 bushels. The current holding is the smallest on that date in over 10 years with one exception.

Farm reserves of corn are estimated at 200,000,000 bushels, the smallest in more than 10 years and comparing with 392,000,000 bushels last year and a 1927-'36 average of 403,000,000 bushels.

Wheat Upturn Checked by Selling Wave

CHICAGO GRAIN FUTURES

Closing prices on the principal September deliveries of grain on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday:

	Yesterday.	Thursday.	Year ago.
Wheat	$1.25¼	$1.25	$1.01½
Corn	1.12½	1.14	.71½
Oats	.38⅞	.39½	.34⅛
Rye	.89¾	.91⅝	.68
Soy beans [Oct.]	1.14¼	1.13⅝	.....

The rise in wheat prices on the Chicago market was checked yesterday. After an early advance of about 2 cents a bushel the market was depressed by a wave of selling. Wheat for delivery in September closed a quarter of a cent a bushel higher at $1.25¼. The price of wheat for delivery this month dropped 1⅞ cents.

At yesterday's closing prices wheat was bringing approximately 25 cents a bushel more than it was on June 21. The rise has been brought about by the rapid spread of black rust through the winter crop belt and the continued drouth in Canada.

Canada Hot and Dry.

Dry and hot weather was again reported yesterday over the Canadian producing belt. The Winnipeg market, which was closed Thursday, advanced 5 cents a bushel, the maximum permitted under the exchange rules.

No change was shown in the character of the crop reports from the Canadian northwest. Rainfall over night was inconsequential and the trade generally was inclined to the belief that only a miracle would result in this year's spring wheat harvest exceeding 200,000,000 bushels.

The Liverpool market closed equal to 3½ to 4 cents a bushel higher in sympathy with the continued drouth in Canada and on buying induced by the less favorable political situation in the far east.

Hedging Sales Heavier.

More than 5,000,000 bushels of winter wheat were received yesterday at leading markets, including southwestern interior terminals, and hedging sales were heavier, being especially effective in the July delivery in Chicago.

Corn and other grains were firmer early in sympathy with wheat, but developed independent weakness later following the issuance of the private crop reports suggesting much larger yields than last year. Corn closed ⅞ to 1⅞ cents lower. Oats were off ⅝ to ¾ cent and rye was down 2 to 2⅛ cents a bushel on futures. Soy beans were 1 cent higher to ½ cent lower.

It is expected about 1,000,000 bushels of Argentine corn will be received at Chicago within the next few days.

DIVIDEND RATE IS INCREASED BY TRANSAMERICA

Directors of Transamerica corporation yesterday declared a semi-annual dividend of 25 cents, placing the stock on a 50 cent annual basis instead of the 40 cents maintained since July, 1936. The new dividend is equal to $1 a share on stock after the forthcoming reclassifications.

Birtman Electric company declared an extra dividend of 25 cents in addition to the regular quarterly 25 cent dividend on the common stock, and the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the preferred stock.

Keystone Steel and Wire company declared a dividend of 15 cents on the capital stock. Regular quarterly dividends of 25 cents on the common and $1.12½ on the $4.50 cumulative preferred stock were declared by directors of Spiegel, Inc.

HINTS GERMANY MAY PAY ON WAR DAMAGE CLAIMS

New York, July 2.—(AP)—The New York Post said today it had been informed by Duncan J. Kerr, president of the Lehigh Valley railroad, that claimants for damages against Germany, growing out of the worl war, may share a possible 20 million dollar compromise settlement.

The claims originated out of damages to American owned property abroad, and Black Tom and Kingsland explosions.

Kerr, one of the principal claimants, was reported by the paper to have said agreement between two types of claimants—those whose properties were damaged in the explosions, and those whose European holdings were damaged—had resulted in "an excellent chance" that Germany may agree to the compromise settlement out of sequestered alien funds in the United States treasury.

Northwest Airlines Plans Chicago-Seattle Service

Northwest Airlines, Inc., has been authorized by the airmail division to fly a Chicago-Seattle route via Minneapolis and St. Paul, Croil Hunter, vice president and general manager of the company, announced yesterday. He said a 10½ hour service is planned between Chicago and Seattle.

FARMERS TURN THUMBS DOWN ON WHEAT LIMIT

Oppose Proposal to Restrict Crop.

Washington, D. C., July 2.—(AP)—Representatives of wheat farmers turned thumbs down today on administration suggestions that federal benefit payments be so conditioned that they would restrict plantings of wheat for harvest next year. Secretary Wallace, H .R. Tolley, the agricultural adjustment administrator, and government economists had proposed that the farmers put a limit on wheat acreage under the federal soil conservation program of 1938.

Instead the fifty-six representatives who had been summoned here from thirty-one states by telegrams from government officials voted to continue present policies which allow a farmer to grow as much wheat as he wishes as long as he shifts part of his acreage from corn, oats, and other major crops to those classed as spil conserving.

One of Few Rejections.

Observers said this was one of the few times that farm leaders, called to Washington with expenses paid, rejected an administration proposal.

Alfred D. Stedman, an assistant administrator, told reporters the AAA would continue its soil conservation program in 1938 with a general crop depleting base rather than a specific limitation on wheat.

Some of the wheat area spokesmen vigorously opposed restrictions on acreage at a time when wheat prices have been near seven-year high marks and domestic and world supplies are low.

Farmers from wheat areas were said to have agreed that plantings this fall and next spring probably would approach those for 1937. The acreage seeded for harvest this year, an administration statement said, was about 18,000,000 acres, the largest on record excepting that of 1919.

Surveys Export Situation.

A survey of world wheat production and trade by government economists was pessimistic about the United States regaining its wheat export markets. The survey summarized prospects for Uinted States exports as follows:

GERMANY—Internal policy has "practically eliminated Germany as an outlet for United States wheat."

GREECE—May resume buying of hard red wheat when prices are on a competitive basis.

ITALY—In poor crop years may need considerable quantities, chiefly durum.

NETHERLANDS—Trade agreement may regain part of former trade with United States.

UNITED KINGDOM—Difficult for United States to sell wheat in competition with Canada and Australia.

SEIBERLING SUES OLD FRIEND FOR $3,000,000 STOCK

Cleveland, O., July 2.—[Special.]—A rift in a financial friendship that aided in establishing Frank A. Seiberling, Akron rubber manufacturer, for the second time as one of the world's leading individual powers in the rubber industry seemed evident today when Seiberling, and seven members of his family, brought suit in Common Pleas court here against Edgar B. Davis of Luling, Tex., oil magnate and former associate of Seiberling in the rubber industry, for nearly $3,000,000 of stock.

Davis, in 1927, as "a loan to a friend," established a credit with the Prudential Securities company to protect the Seiberling creditors, following financial reverses which threatened the Seiberling fortune after his resignation as president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, and refused to accept interest on the loan.

The suit filed today, however, was to regain nearly $3,000,000 worth of common capital stock in the United States Rubber company held by Davis as collateral during the debt settlement, according to the petition. Seiberling claims that all obligations have been paid, but that 59,431 shares of the United States Rubber stock are still due him.

New York Banker Elected Officer of Carnegie Steel

New York, July 2.—[Special.]—Benjamin F. Fairless, president of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, today announced the election of M. D. Howell, 49, of New York, as a vice president of the company, effective Aug. 15, 1937. Howell's duties will cover a broad field, including the installation and supervision of new office procedure. Howell is vice president of the Chemical Bank and Trust company, where he is in direct charge of negotiating conditions and drafting agreements for large industrial term loans, and has directed

Stock Prices Climb in Late Buying Rush

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 2.—Shaking off draggy tendencies that retarded an upswing for most of the session, stock market prices made a decided spurt in the closing hours today, registering gains ranging up to 3 points or more. Leading industrial shares were uncommonly buoyant, and rails finally pushed through a narrow range to the top side. Utilities also were higher. Trading was more active, transactions totaling 838,735 shares.

Many quarters seemed of the opinion recent important foreign developments had been fully discounted and that the market was beginning to recognize that the summer recession in business would be much smaller than anticipated.

Trade News Favorable.

Among the day's favorable developments was domestic trade news showing increased freight loadings and higher retail sales.

Early activity on the market was influenced by evening up for professional account. Trading was slow and irregular, with prices mixed in fractional range. However, the improvement in sentiment became evident in the second hour and the market strengthened.

Steel stocks again played a leading part in the upswing. United States Steel common came back after sliding under par, for a net gain of 1 point. Youngstown also closed 1 point higher, while Bethlehem, Republic, and Inland Steel were able to show only fractional increases.

Chrysler met steady support and jumped 2¼ points. General Motors firmed a large fraction. Other motor stocks were mixed in a narrow range.

In the aviations, Wright Aero jumped 14 points on 500 shares. Boeing and Douglas advanced more than a point each, but the former was in more active demand.

Railroad Issues Rise.

Carrier shares showed gains ranging from fractions to almost 2 points. Atchison, Southern Railway, and Union Pacific were among the larger gainers, each adding a point or more.

American Telephone, North American, and Consolidated Edison were outstanding in the utility division, the first two gaining more than a point each. Western Union slid a fraction. Preferred issues of the New York Steam corporation rose sharply on the approval by the state public service commission of a plan to exchange Consolidated Edison preferred for New York Steam preferred. The 6 per cent rose 9¼ points and the 7 per cents 11½ points.

Nonferrous metal shares were buoyant as a group. U. S. Smelting jumped 4 points, American Smelting jumped 4 points and American Smelting 3¾ points.

Socony-Vacuum and Pure Oil kept pace with each other in volume, and were the two most active issues of the day. Pure Oil gained 1¼ points while Socony added a fraction.

DEALERS VICTORS IN STOCK TRADING FIGHT WITH CURB

Washington, D. C., July 2.—(AP)—Over the counter dealers won an important victory over the New York Curb exchange today in their competition as markets for certain securities. The securities commission granted the request of Bristol and Willett, New York over the counter dealers, to stop the curb exchange from conducting unlisted trading in the 7 per cent preferred and common stocks of the American District Telegraph company of New Jersey.

The commission ruled there was insufficient public trading in these securities on the curb exchange and that Bristol and Willett and other over the counter dealers made more of a market for the issues than the exchange.

The decision climaxed a long fight between over the counter dealers and the curb exchange over trading in numerous securities. Dealers of several New England states have combined to protest a pending application of the exchange to add twenty-five more securities to its unlisted trading section.

The commission ruled that transactions for specialists' own accounts on the exchange do not count in determining the volume of public trading.

ALL MARKETS CLOSE MONDAY; MANY WILL NOT OPERATE TODAY

All important security and commodity markets in the United States will be closed Monday in observance of Independence day, and most of them, except the big grain and live stock markets, will transact no business today.

Security trading throughout the world will be almost at a standstill today as the London, Paris, and Amsterdam exchanges are closed Saturdays during the summer. The Toronto Stock exchange also voted to take a holiday today, but will be open Monday along with European commodity and security markets.

Grain markets voted to remain open today because of heavy business at this season. Officials of the New York and Chicago cotton markets and the New York wool tops market yesterday decided to close today. The New Orleans cotton market already had announced the Saturday holiday.

The Savannah and Jacksonville naval stores markets will be open today. Banks will be open today, but closed Monday.

Almost all brokerage houses handling grain business announced they will be open today, and a few announced they will accept orders Monday to be filled outside the United States.

BENDIX AVIATION TO ENTER HOME APPLIANCE FIELD

Entrance of Bendix Aviation corporation into the home appliance field on a small scale was announced yesterday with disclosure of formation of Bendix Home Appliances, Inc., in which Bendix Aviation has a 25 per cent interest.

The new company will market a fully automatic washing machine which is said to be of revolutionary design. It will retail at $179.50, considerably higher than the average washing machine price.

Bendix came to be interested in the machine when a group of inventors and business men came to a Bendix subsidiary with their invention several months ago. Bendix engineers perfected the invention and made it commercially practicable, it was said. In return, Bendix got a 25 per cent stock interest in the new company and Bendix Products company, a subsidiary in South Bend, Ind., was given a contract to manufacture the machines on a cost plus basis. Initial production is to run between 500 and 600 units a day, with provision for increasing this to 1,000 units.

The new company will have sales offices in Detroit.

FAHRNEY HOME IS SOLD FOR AN INDICATED $50,000

The residence of the late Emory H. Fahrney, patent medicine manufacturer whose two daughters' family affairs have figured prominently in the news in recent years, was sold yesterday for an indicated $50,000. The property, at the northeast corner of Euclid avenue and Superior street, was bought by Patrick J. Healy and his wife Lillian, of River Forest. The property fronts 165 feet on Euclid and 207 feet on Superior.

A two-thirds interest in the property was conveyed by the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, trustee for the estate of Fahrney. The remaining one-third was conveyed by the widow, Marion H. Fahrney.

For several years the marital episodes of the divorcée daughters, Mrs. Merry Fahrney Parker-Pickering-Elszner and Mrs. Myrtle Fahrney Saemann have been prominent in the news.

The new owner of the Fahrney residence, who now lives at 926 William street, River Forest, is in the fuel oil business. He will move into the home this month.

Elevated Lines' June Trafic Above Year Ago

The Chicago Rapid Transit company—the elevated lines—yesterday announced that trafic in June was 0.45 per cent above that of June, 1936, the first time this year that trafic has exceeded the corresponding month of last year. May trafic was 0.86 per cent below that of May, 1936, and the total of the first six months this year was 3.65 per cent below 1936.

United Light's Profit Above Five Million

A number of utility companies yesterday reported improvement in earnings for twelve month periods ending in 1937.

W. H. Sommer, president of the Keystone Steel and Wire company, said yesterday that the company's earnings for the fiscal year ended June 30 are expected to fulfill earlier predictions of about $1.50 a share on the capital stock, which would compare with $1.90 a share in the preceding year.

He said the decline in earnings was caused by wage increases and social security taxes, which together increased labor costs approximately $500,000. Sales were the largest in the company's history.

FRANCE FORBIDS PRICE BOOSTING IN NEW DECREE

Effect of Devaluing Money Feared.

PARIS, France, July 2.—[Special.]—Fearing the political consequences of an abrupt rise in prices, the Chautemps government today moved to offset the inflation effects of its franc devaluation.

The government exercised its new power of decree by "forbidding" advances in wholesale and retail prices. Persons violating the terms of the decree were threatened with fines and imprisonment.

A central committee of price supervision, headed by George Bonnet, new finance minister, was set up to punish profiteers who seek to capitalize on the debasement of the currency.

May Punish Profiteers.

The committee is empowered to punish profiteers with prison sentences ranging up to six months and fines from 50 to 10,000 francs [approximately $390]. At its discretion the committee may allow exceptions if price increases are found to be justified increased cost of imported goods.

The control system is similar to that put into effect by the Blum government last October to prevent profiteering in the wake of the previous franc devaluation.

Observers believed the elaborate machinery for preventing price advances would prove only temporarily effective. The reduction in currency value, it is felt, will inevitably force an upturn in prices.

FRENCH FRANC FIRMER.

The French franc advanced moderately yesterday in foreign exchange transactions in New York. It closed at 3.84 5-16 cents, compared with Thursday's quotation of 3.83¾ cents. Exchange experts said the market indicated that the French authorities were maintaining rigid control over the franc to prevent too rapid an advance in value. The French fund was reported to have sold francs several times during the day.

Other foreign currenices were firm. The British pound advanced ¼ cent against the dollar, closing at $4.94½. The Holland guilder rose 0.04 of a cent and the Canadian dollar added 1-16 of a cent.

More Gold Coming to U. S.

Additional gold totaling $2,784,000 was engaged yesterday for shipment to this country. Engagements included $2,434,000 in England and $350,000 in India.

Gold was quoted in the London markets yesterday at the equivalent of $34.72, compared with $34.71 on the preceding day.

Receipts of gold at New York yesterday included a consignment of $281,900 from London. At San Francisco a shipment of $4,832,000 of gold from Japan was reported. An additional $155,000 arrived from Hongkong.

SOUTH. PACIFIC FILES NEW PLAN FOR COTTON BELT

Washington, D. C., July 2—(AP)—The Southern Pacific company filed today with the interstate commerce commission a new plan for reorganizing the St. Louis Southwestern Railway lines' capital structure. More than 87 per cent of the stock of the St. Louis Southwestern [cotton belt] is owned by Southern Pacific.

Under the new plan the annual fixed charges of the St. Louis Southwestern would be $1,007,136 as against $1,709,370 called for in the first plan brought forward.

The Southern Pacific told the commission the St. Louis Southwestern management's plan entailed issuance of more than $44,000,000 of income debentures, an amount "far beyond" the lines' ability to pay "except in times of highest prosperity."

FREIGHT TRAFIC RISES AS GRAIN MOVES IN WEST

Ore and Live Stock Also Show Increases.

Railroad freight trafic during the week ended June 26 increased 2.3 per cent over that of the preceding week, totaling 773,733 cars, the Association of American Railroads reported yesterday.

Increased loadings of winter wheat by western railroads were largely responsible for the more than seasonal rise, although the grain movement was slightly under that of the corresponding week last year.

Gains over the week ended June 19 were also large in ore and live stock loadings, and in miscellaneous freight shipments. Ore shipments showed a gain of 24,875 cars over the like week of 1936.

Total Above Last Two Years.

Last week's total showed an increase of 60,145 cars, or 8.4 per cent over the corresponding week a year ago, and a gain of 156,870 cars, or 25.4 per cent over the like week of 1935.

Gains were made over the June 19 week in all classifications of freight except coke and local merchandise shipments, while increases were shown over last year in all groups except coal, grain, and live stock shipments.

Total loadings for the week were still far below the high mark for this year of 794,855 cars loaded during the last week of May.

Group Loadings Compared.

	Wk ended	—Change from—
	June 19.	Prec. wk.	Yr. ago.
Miscellaneous	316,009	3,808	26,244
Merchandise	166,576	—1,459	5,276
Coal	113,489	633	— 668
Grain	41,383	9,952	— 344
Live stock	12,441	2,027	— 370
Forest products	39,753	282	3,723
Ore	74,337	2,252	24,873
Coke	9,745	— 51	1,409

The Dow-Jones loadings index, based on the average for the last fifteen years as equal to 100, advanced to 91.1 from 90.4 for the preceding week.

The Associated Press seasonally adjusted weekly loadings index, based on the 1929-1930 average as 100, advanced to 78.9, compared with 78.6 the preceding week and 72.8 a year ago.

HOGS SET NEW HIGHS; EASTERN DEMAND HEAVY

Another sensational advance swept hog prices to new highs throughout the country yesterday, with most markets in the east approaching the $13 level. Buffalo reached $12.90, with Pittsburgh at $12.85. The Chicago top at $12.50 was second highest for July since 1926.

Eastern packers, who are experiencing the most acute shortage in their history for this season, deluged the markets in the middle west with buying orders, many of which went over unfilled due to the shortage of supplies. Selected 180 to 220 pound stock reached the $12.50 top, and most of the 230 to 250 pound butchers sold at $12.35 to $12.45.

There was a good sale for light fresh pork loins up to $28 in wholesale channels here yesterday, a new 1937 high.

The sharp rise in hogs and pork lent strength to other live stock, with the trend of prices higher in most classes. Lambs sold strong to 25 cents higher. New crop natives to city butchers reached $11.60, while packers bought at $11.25 and below.

Action was better than usual for Friday in the cattle trade. The scant supply of fed steers and yearlings sold quickly at strong rates, the best on sale reaching $15.25. Weighty grass cows and hefers were firm, with light weights weak. Calves sold steady.

Auctioning First Illinois Wheat

President Kenneth E. Templeton of Board of Trade (holding sack of grain) is shown as he auctioned off the first consignment of new Illinois wheat to reach Chicago this year. The wheat brought $1.27 a bushel, representing the best price which wheat has commanded during the harvest season in nearly 10 years. Shown with Templeton is a group of brokers on the exchange.

Business Bits

Sam Nides.

Sam Nides, formerly advertising and sales promotion manager of R. Cooper Jr., Inc., and E. G. Cloud, formerly vice president and controler of the same company, have formed a new organization, Nides, Cloud, Inc., for the distribution of a coal stoker. Nides is president and Cloud vice president of the new company. An extensive advertising program has been planned for the product. Temporary offices of the new firm are at 200 East Chestnut street.

John H. Rumbaugh, recently executive vice president of C. F. Childs & Co., Chicago, is now president of John H. Rumbaugh, Inc., New York firm doing government securities consultant service.

John W. Baker, Paul C. Butcher, and J. F. Mannion, all of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company; Louis W. Fischer, of the American National Bank and Trust company, and Louis Schaefer, of the National Boulevard Bank of Chicago, yesterday were graduated from the Graduate School of Banking conducted by the American Bankers association through its American Institute of Banking section in cooperation with Rutgers university at New Brunswick, N. J.

Two new associate brokers, nine solicitors, one correspondent, and one sub-solicitor were added to the Chicago Mercantile exchange's list of clearing house member representatives this week, Maurice Mandeville, chairman of the clearing house committee, announced yesterday.

COURT APPROVES SETTLEMENT OF BANK DIRECTORS

New York, July 2.—[Special.]—Federal Judge Vincent L. Leibell approved today a proposed settlement of claims against sixteen directors of the defunct Harriman National Bank and Trust company and the estate of another director under which Frederick V. Goess, receiver for the bank, will receive $900,000. This sum will bring the total settlement payments to $1,026,739 and leaves some $5,800,000 in claims still unsettled.

Martin Conboy, counsel for the receiver, told the court that the unsettled amount of the claims still stands against twelve remaining directors of the bank in an action pending in the state Supreme court, but that the amount recoverable was problematical.

TREASURY ENDS TESTIMONY ON TAX AVOIDANCE

Senate Investigators to Meet Tuesday.

Washington, D. C., July 2.—[Special.]—The treasury department today completed the presentation of evidence before the senate committee investigating methods of tax avoidance. The committee agreed to meet in executive session next Tuesday to determine what procedure to follow in the future.

A peculiar circumstance accompanied the ending of today's session. Roswell B. Magill, undersecretary of the treasury, had come prepared to submit evidence concerning certain personal holding companies which had been demanded by Senator Robert M. La Follette [Rad., Wis.]. Last week La Follette called the attention of the treasury to secret testimony before the senate finance committee in 1936 which, he said, disclosed some tax evasion cases "much more glaring" than any submitted by the treasury at the present inquiry.

Names Kept Secret.

There was much speculation about these mysterious cases which was heightened today. When Magill announced that he was ready to present the cases asked by La Follette, Senator Pat Harrison [D., Miss.], chairman of the senate finance committee, quickly suggested that the evidence should not be made public, but be given in executive session. This was agreed to and the names of the corporations or individuals involved remained secret.

La Follette, who was not present, said he would insist that the evidence be made public. Rumors immediately began to circulate that Senator Harrison had moved to protect some important figure connected with the administration. Whether these rumors had any foundation could not be determined.

Pension Trusts Discussed.

No names were presented at the last session today. Charles T. Russell, deputy commissioner of internal revenue, engaged in a long discussion of pension trusts as a means of reducing income taxes. He said he did not believe "abuse" of such trusts was widespread at present, but that "it might well become so."

The other discussion involved the taxation of non-resident aliens. The present revenue act imposes a fixed rate of 10 per cent on these aliens. The treasury suggested that a more equitable distribution of the tax burden among citizens and residents of this country and residents of other countries deriving income from United States sources.

CAR OF ILLINOIS WHEAT IS SOLD AT $1.27 A BUSHEL

The first carlot of Illinois wheat to arrive in Chicago this season was auctioned off at $1.27 a bushel yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. The grain was purchased by Ernest Brunkey, representing the Quaker Oats company. Kenneth S. Templeton, president of the exchange, acted as auctioneer.

The grain was shipped here from Morrisonville, Ill., by the Shellabarger Grain Products company. It was rated by the state inspectors as sample grade red winter wheat and tested 55.3 pounds per bushel. Moisture content was 17 per cent. The shipment was about 1,500 bushels.

The custom of auctioning the first shipment of Illinois grown wheat was observed on the exchange during the 1890s but was discontinued. It was revived this year at the instigation of Cash Grain association.

AIR LINES GET RATE BOOST FOR MAIL SERVICE

Washington, D. C., July 2.—[Special.]—The postoffice department today awarded increased air-mail payments amounting to $350,000 to $400,000 annually to American Airlines. Additional mail pay amounting to $31,000 a year also was awarded to Pennsylvania-Central Airlines. Postoffice officials said boosts were being considered for several other operators, including Northwest Airlines.

American Airlines officials said the bulk of the new revenues will be carried over into net profit as the company is already flying the route involved without subsidy. The increased payments will become effective July 15.

In making the announcement, postoffice officials expressed the opinion that the air transport industry as a whole will be operating at a profit within the next two years. Officials also said that the air-mail subsidy for the fiscal year ended June 30 for the first time in history of air-mail operations fell below $1,000,000.

The average rate on accepted bids for 273-day United States treasury bills offered last Wednesday was 0.49 per cent annually, at an average price of 99.628, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau announced yesterday. In the preceding offering of 273-day bills, on June 25, the average rate was 0.619 per cent at an average price of 99.531.

Crop Ratings—2.

Yesterday we discussed the manner in which the department of agriculture appraises the outlook for growing crops by a percentage comparison with a theoretical "normal."

This rating method is more satisfactory than an appraisal based on a comparison with the preceding year or with the average for a period of years, the government statisticians say. One or two or perhaps more crop failures over a period of 10 years reduces the average for the period, they point out. Under such circumstances the average does not give a fair example of a normal crop.

Each farmer knows what his land can produce under favorable conditions and by gathering reports from thousands of farmers and other correspondents the government statisticians say they can make a fair approximation of the outlook for the country as a whole.

Under the system employed a "normal" crop means a better than average crop. Only in a season when conditions were exceptionally favorable would a crop be rated at better than normal in any producing region.
